SUB-COMMITTEE OF SENATE BACKS BILL TO PENSION JUSTICES AT 70

MAY CAUSE THREE OR FOUR TO RETIRE

If Passage Brings This About President's Aids May Be Saved From Going Down the Line for His Scheme.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—A Senate sub-committee today had taken the first steps toward smoothing the way for speedy consideration of the Sumners bill to permit Supreme Court justices past the age of 70 to retire voluntarily at full pay of $20,000 a year.

At the close of today's meeting Senator McCarran, chairman of the Judiciary Subcommittee considering the measure, said he was hopeful the bill might be rushed through the full committee at its next regular meeting on Monday so that it could be brought up in the Senate the following Wednesday. Senator Borah alone among the five members of the subcommittee opposed the measure, contending the retirement age should be 75.

There was a growing belief that administration Senators would push the Sumners' measure through to early passage in the hope that it would persuade at least three or four Justices to step off the bench and thereby avoid the necessity of going down the line for President Roosevelt's proposal to increase the size of the court up to a total of 15 members. The Sumners bill is not a part of the President's court reorganization plan, but has been before Congress for two sessions.

"Feeling of All Members."

The House has already passed the bill to give to Supreme Court Justices the opportunity to retire at full pay, with full constitutional immunity from income taxes and economy cuts, that is now enjoyed by members of the lower courts.

"That was the feeling of all members of the committee," McCarran said, "that Justices should have the same opportunity now enjoyed by inferior Judges."

McCarran said that the committee members discussed all implications of the President's proposed court change but he made only guarded references to the nature of the discussion which was held behind closed doors. Although Senator Logan (Dem.) of Kentucky could not be present, he has indicated his approval of the bill, McCarran said.

Impression of Borah.

Borah was asked at the close of the committee meeting whether the Sumners measure had been discussed as a compromise proposal which would induce Supreme Court Justices to retire and thereby avoid necessity for a stand on the administration's drastic proposal.

"That was not considered," Borah said, "but my impression is that a growing number of Democratic Senators are hopeful that this will be the outcome if the bill is passed."

Borah said he felt the age limit ought to be 75 and not 70 and he added that he was also opposed to a provision in the measure which would give the President the right to call upon retired Justices to serve in the lower courts.

"They should not be subject to being sent around to try cases in the lower court," Borah said. "It is undignified."

Justices Who May Retire.

Borah pointed out that even if the age limit were advanced to 75 in the voluntary retirement measure it would "take out" Justices Brandeis, Vandeventer and McReynolds. And he added that Chief Justice Hughes and Justice Sutherland would also within a few months soon reach the 75 year limit.

The Idaho veteran, who delivered an effective radio defense of the Supreme Court shortly before the President's proposal to increase the size of the court, would not say whether he planned actively to oppose the Sumners' bill. He said, however, that it was improbable that it could come before the Senate as early as McCarran had prophesied.

Asked if he was planning a radio attack on the President's proposal,

ROSCOE POUND CALLS COURT SCHEME 'GRANDSTAND PLAY'

Forcing Retirement of Judges at 70 Is "Plain Stuff," Says Former Law Dean.

By the Associated Press.

HONOLULU, Feb. 16.—Roscoe Pound, former dean of Harvard's law school, Republican, termed President Roosevelt's judiciary reform plan "just a big bluff."

"This talk about forcing retirement of Justices over 70 is stuff, just plain stuff," he added.

In 1929 Dean Pound served on former President Hoover's National Committee on Law Observance and Enforcement.

"Some of the greatest Judges who ever sat on the Supreme Court bench have been over 70," he said. "Practically all lawyers are agreed that some reform and modernization of court procedure should be effected, but a reform of procedure only is not sensational enough for the President to drop in the lap of Congress. It looks like a grandstand play."

COURT PLAN TO BE DISCUSSED BY ST. LOUIS LAWYERS' ASS'N

Group to Meet Thursday Night; Bar Association to Consider Scheme Tomorrow.

The St. Louis Lawyers' Association will discuss President Roosevelt's plan for reorganization of the Federal judiciary and enlargement of the Supreme Court in a meeting, open to all members of the bar, Thursday night at 8 o'clock at the Coronado Hotel.

The St. Louis Bar Association, as has been told, will meet for the same purpose tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at Hotel Chase.

FLINT BUS DRIVERS VOTE DOWN PLAN TO END STRIKE

FLINT, Mich., Feb. 16. — The 10 weeks' old strike crippling bus service in this city of 165,000 continued today after 80 drivers unanimously rejected a new settlement proposal.

Robert Hosmer, chairman of the Flint Association of Bus and Trolley Coach Drivers, said the strikers voted down a plan to return to work at their former wage scale of 55 cents an hour pending a nonpartisan inquiry of the ability of the Flint Trolley Coach, Inc., to pay more. The striking drivers "sat down" early in December demanding a wage increase from 55 to 75 cents an hour. After occupying the company's garages for several weeks, the men left the buildings but service was not resumed.

COURT PLAN ON RADIO TONIGHT

Senator Van Nuys to Oppose, McAdoo to Speak for It.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—Two radio addresses, for and against President Roosevelt's court reorganization plan, will be heard tonight.

Senator Frederick Van Nuys (Dem.), Indiana, who is against the plan, will speak over the Mutual network at 10 o'clock (9 p. m. St. Louis time), and Senator William G. McAdoo (Dem.), California, will speak over the NBC network a half-hour later, in favor of it.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—All existing reports and documents describing the activities of private detectives in 50 General Motors plants in 1934, 1935 and 1936, were destroyed to prevent them from falling into the hands of Senate investigators, the LaFollette Civil Liberties Committee was told today. The testimony was elicited from Harry W. Anderson, labor relations director for the giant motor corporation.

He admitted that he personally examined and "stripped" the files of William Knudsen, executive vice-president, soon after the Senate passed the resolution authorizing the present inquiry into labor espionage. In the face of the committee's expressed incredulity, he insisted that he did so without consulting Knudsen.

Late today it was disclosed that General Motors used Pinkertons to investigate the suspected theft of its style and engineering designs in 1935 by the Chrysler Corporation. The investigation failed to discover anything in support of that suspicion.

The committee drew from Anderson an acknowledgment that some of the papers called for by the Senate subpena might have been destroyed after the subpena was served. Of course, if this was done deliberately to frustrate the committee, it would constitute contempt, but the point was clouded in doubt. It appeared that some of those who destroyed reports, including the manager of the Pontiac plant, were not aware the subpena had been issued.

Chairman La Follette hammered on the fact that, although General Motors paid $839,764 to private detective agencies, in less than three years, not one report or memorandum relating to those activities was found in the files of the 50 General Motors plants by committee investigators. Anderson and his predecessor, Merle C. Hale, were called to explain why, when and how they disappeared.

Reasons for Hiring Pinkertons.

Hale, who testified yesterday that General Motors hired the Pinkertons partly to see that its foremen treated the workers well, and partly to collect newspaper clippings on labor developments generally, said today that another reason for the Pinkertons' employment was the company's desire to ascertain "the causes of labor unrest in the plants."

"Now that you no longer employ the agency, I think you can be frank with the committee," Chairman La Follette suggested.

Under severe questioning, Hale said that the detectives were instructed to attend meetings of the workers "to find out what their complaints were," and to "see what kind of a selling talk the union organizers were putting up."

Spy Office Near That of Union.

As one step toward fulfilling its duties, the Pinkerton agency rented an office in the same building and on the same floor as the headquarters of the United Automobile Workers. Hale continued:

"This wasn't the sort of thing I wanted at all. The service for the first few months was unsatisfactory. They didn't go about it the way I wished, and they didn't get the kind of information I wanted. That's why I arranged a different setup."

As he went on, Hale remembered another reason for using the Pinkertons. He said the company "desired to know how our men felt about the company's labor policies—whether they considered them favorable or unfavorable."

"Was it necessary for you to hire private detectives to get that information?" asked LaFollette. Hale said he thought it was.

The Pinkertons reported to him both orally and in writing, he said, and he "made a summary of the high spots." Asked whether these summaries were filed away, he replied:

"No. I kept them in my desk for a week or two, and then destroyed them."

Knew Spies Were in Plants.

He said he was aware that the detectives were sifting around through the plants, disguised as employes, and "pumping" the workers, but wasn't aware of all the methods used by them.

"I've learned more about the setup since I came here than I ever knew before," he said.

The hearing room rang with laughter when Hale said the reports were destroyed to keep them from falling into the hands of employes, "because they might not have understood the situation."

La Follette asked Anderson if it wasn't true that reports and documents called for by the committee's subpena were destroyed after the subpena was served.

"I think the management gener-

NO CONTEST, PLEAD TWO KANSAS CITY VOTE DEFENDANTS

Trial of Seven Gets Under Way With Two Women Throwing Themselves on Mercy of Court.

ABATEMENT PLEA DENIED BY JUDGE

U. S. Attorney Charges Democratic Captain Had Republican Judge Driven Out for Not Heeding Him

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 16.—The Federal Government opened its case against seven poll officials and political workers, charged with vote fraud conspiracy in the last general election, with the assertion that "the silent proof of the ballots themselves" will substantiate the accusation. The seven on trial are the first of 57 indicted.

A jury had been assembled in less than 50 minutes in Judge Merrill E. Otis' Federal Court yesterday. Randall Wilson, First Assistant United States District Attorney, informed the Court that two defendants, Mrs. Chloe G. Albright, Republican judge, and Tessie Mears, Republican clerk, both of the Thirteenth Precinct of the Twelfth Ward, wished to enter pleas of nolo contendere (no contest). In effect, the plea placed the two women at the mercy of the Court, without the admission of guilt.

Testimony About Ballots.

Robert Pulliam, a Deputy United States Marshal, was called to the witness stand today, and testified to bringing the ballots and other election records under subpena from the Election Board office to the Marshal's office. Chief Deputy Marshal Joe Vandiver testified the records were guarded day and night. He identified the sack labeled "Thirteenth Precinct."

F. W. Appleby of Springfield, foreman of the grand jury that returned the indictments, also identified the sack. A defense objection to his testimony, on the ground that he was disclosing what took place in the grand jury room, was overruled, and Appleby proceeded to relate how the grand jury examined the ballots and records.

Judge Otis overruled a defense request for a plea in abatement, sought on the ground that State laws prohibit the opening of ballot boxes by anyone other than authorities designated under the statutes. The court ruled that no state law may conflict with Federal statutes.

Fred Bellemere, Democratic chairman of the Election Board, and Vincent J. Doherty, chief Deputy election commissioner, testified yesterday on routine election matters.

Statement of Prosecutor.

In his opening statement to the jury, United States District Attorney Maurice M. Milligan said the ballots themselves would be "silent proof of this conspiracy." He told the jury, "We will show that the count made by the poll workers and (John) Drummond, the precinct captain, (a defendant) were false and corrupt.

"Nor will we stop with that silent and conclusive testimony. We will bring before you the fact that 162 citizens of the United States, citizens of Missouri, Jackson County, and Kansas City, rightfully had the right to have the ballots they cast read as they cast them. We will bring into this court 25, 30, 40, even 50 of those 162 persons, who will testify they voted for candidates whose votes were stolen from them.

"Further, we will show you that a Mrs. Alder, employed in the polling place as a Republican judge, was approached by Drummond on the day of the election, at 3 o'clock or thereabouts. Drummond told her, "We're not going to count these votes. Will you agree not to?' She told him 'No.'

"He left and returned in a few minutes. He asked 'Do you still mean to count these votes?' She replied affirmatively, and felt she should call the Board of Election Commissioners. She telephoned and told what had happened. Three men went out in response to that call, representing themselves as emissaries from the Election Board.

Democrat in Republican Post.

"One of the three said, 'Lady, you're going with us.' She refused to. She was so harassed she was finally driven from the polls. Her place was taken by a man named Elijah Burke (one of the defendants) who filled her Republican job, although he himself is a Democrat."

"Mrs. Albright will testify," he went on, "that she saw Drummond stuff a dozen ballots in the box. She complained to him, and she

MOTHER OF 23 BEING TRIED FOR MURDER IN IOWA

Woman Last of Five Charged With Backwoods Killing—Selection of Jury Is Under Way.

MAN SHOT 5 DAYS AFTER MARRIAGE

Young Widow Serving Life Sentence—She Confessed and Named Others in Conspiracy.

By the Associated Press.

ELKADER, Ia., Feb. 16.—Minnie Hines, 49-year-old mother of 23 children, was placed on trial for murder yesterday. Selection of a jury was begun.

Wrinkled, stooped, shapeless in a loose-fitting dress, she listened while attorneys asked veniremen whether they lived in or knew persons living in the backwoods Mossy Glen neighborhood near Littleport, Ia., scene of the killing of Dan Shine last May.

During a recess, she "set the world straight" on the number of her children, previously listed by officials at 18.

"I've had 23," she said, "but only 18 of them lived."

She is the last of five persons charged with participation in the murder plot against Shine, 56-year-old farmer who married his housekeeper, Pearl Hines, 28, Minnie Hines' niece, five days before he was killed.

The young widow confessed the murder plot shortly after Shine's body was found in a closet at his home, a string tied to a shotgun trigger and twined in his fingers.

Now serving a life sentence in prison, she declared her aunt and Jim Hines, Minnie Hines' third but commonlaw husband, concocted the plot.

"They got me to marry him," she said in her statement, "and then got Maynard Lennox and Albert Cornwell to help kill him and fix his body so it would look like he killed himself so I would get his farm."

Lennox, her 19-year-old friend, admitted taking part in the murder and was sentenced to prison for 40 years.

Cornwell, a junk dealer, and Jim Hines were convicted and are now awaiting sentence.

192 PERSONS REPORTED KILLED IN BLIZZARD IN NORTH JAPAN

TOKIO, Feb. 16.—A snow storm in Northern Japan is thought to have killed at least 132 persons and injured many others.

The blizzard, the worst suffered in North Japan in 15 years, was marked by avalanches and caused widespread damage on land and sea.

Authorities of Iwate prefecture fear the death list in their jurisdiction alone will reach 78. One snowslide near Morioka buried seven persons.

NOLTE FILES FOR SIXTH TERM AS COMPTROLLER

In Office Since 1917, He Seeks Renomination on Republican Ticket.

Louis Nolte, Comptroller since 1917, filed notice of his candidacy today for the Republican nomination for a sixth four-year term in the office. He resides at 1129 Penrose street and was Sheriff for one term before becoming the city's chief fiscal officer.

Politicians have anticipated that, as in the past, Nolte would be unopposed for the nomination. The only Democrat who has filed for Comptroller is State Representative Will L. Lindhorst. However, Democratic committeemen aligned with Mayor Dickmann's administration have been seeking to induce Lawrence Boogher, banker, to run for the office.

CIRCUIT JUDGE JOHN W. JOYNT

Judge's Instructions to Grand Jury And His Reasons for Nullifying Them

In impaneling the present grand jury Feb. 1, Judge Joynt instructed it to investigate fraud in the river front bond election of Sept. 10, 1935, saying election irregularities were of "foremost importance" and urging the grand jury "most strongly" to make a thorough inquiry. His instructions declared:

"Our system of representative government, the foundation upon which it stands, and whatever hope it may have for the future, depends on fair and honest elections.

"In order for our form of government to continue to exist, every eligible citizen should be permitted to cast his or her vote, and that vote should be counted as it is cast by the voter.

"As you must know through the medium of the public press, gross frauds have been charged in the recent riverfront bond election. You will, no doubt, be presented with evidence of this fraud by the Circuit Attorney. It will be your duty, and I charge you, to thoroughly investigate this question and to determine whether or not, in your opinion, our election laws have been violated.

"If you find the election laws have been violated, it will be your duty to indict any such person or persons who have violated our laws. This you should do irrespective of party or person, and without fear or favor.

"To further your investigation you have the right to open the ballot boxes and examine the ballots to ascertain whether or not election frauds have been committed. Again, I urge you most strongly to do your duty in this respect."

Following Judge Joynt's ruling, denying the grand jury access to ballot boxes, indispensable in its inquiry into fraud in the river front bond election, a Post-Dispatch reporter asked the Judge, who had given no written opinion, for a statement as to the reasons for his decision. Judge Joynt replied:

"Decisions of the Supreme Court of this State show the Court's specific rulings, that ballots cannot be gone into except in cases where individuals were to be elected to office.

"Originally, as shown by the Court's decisions, ballots cast in primary elections could not be examined. The Constitution was amended, so that primary elections are now included on the same basis as other elections. But still, nothing is said about bond issue elections.

"The Kansas City case (decision in a Jackson County taxpayer's civil injunction suit) does not in itself apply to this case, but in the Kansas City case other cases were cited in which the Court ruled as I have stated."

Judge Joynt said from the bench that there was "work for the Legislature," now in session, in taking steps to broaden the application of the election laws, to include such cases as the present one.

"The matter might well be submitted to the Legislature, as well as to the courts," he said.

"When I charged the grand jury," Judge Joynt said, referring to his instructions given Feb. 1, "I fully believed that the law was as I then stated, and that I was doing the proper thing. Only after the matter was raised and I looked into the law, did I come to the conclusion that the proper action was that which I have now taken."

MUSSOLINI DECREES AMNESTY IN HONOR OF BABY PRINCE

Political Prisoners Freed, But They Must Return to "Peaceful Work."

ROME, Feb. 16.—Premier Mussolini promulgated an amnesty act today which embraces political prisoners. The decree is in honor of the newborn Prince of Naples, Vittorio Emmanuele. Authoritative sources gave warning that liberated prisoners must return to "peaceful work."

The act bars clemency to those imprisoned for crimes against "the integrity of the race," as infanticide, abortion and the narcotic traffic are classified.

Spies, profiteers and persons convicted of illegal stock exchange or monetary manipulation also are excluded from the act.

THREE NEW CAPITAL WARSHIPS FOR BRITAIN, SEVEN CRUISERS

Two More Infantry, Two More Tank Battalions, Increase in Naval Personnel.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—Britain has ordered construction of three new capital warships and seven cruisers during the fiscal year starting April 1, a Government white paper on defense of the nation disclosed tonight.

The capital ships will be similar to two new $40,000,000 vessels laid down recently, it was announced.

The white paper also disclosed creation of two new infantry battalions and two tank battalions, and a large increase in naval personnel.

The cost of the British naval program during 1936 will approximate $250,000,000 while the cost of the next fiscal year will be substantially higher.

ORDER BARS GRAND JURY INQUIRY IN VOTE FRAUD

Panel Which Has Marked Time Two Weeks Unable to Proceed With Investigation Judge Himself Called For.

CIRCUIT ATTORNEY TO APPEAL AT ONCE

Will Ask State Supreme Court for Writ to Compel Issuance of Subpena for Records in Bond Election.

Circuit Judge John W. Joynt today granted the motion filed with him Feb. 4 in the names of five Fifth Ward voters, against issuance of a subpena for the ballot boxes of the first five precincts of that ward, in the riverfront bond issue election of Sept. 10, 1935.

The effect of his action, unless overruled by the State Supreme Court, will be to prevent the grand jury's inquiry into revealed frauds in the bond election, which it sought to begin under Judge Joynt's specific instructions given when it was impaneled Feb. 1. The ballot boxes are indispensable to the inquiry.

State to Appeal at Once.

Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller will appeal at once to the Supreme Court for a writ of mandamus against Judge Joynt, to compel him to issue the subpena for the needed ballot boxes. He said he would prepare the application for a writ today, with the purpose of placing it before the court tomorrow at Jefferson City.

The Circuit Attorney has prepared a new application for a subpena, under date of next Friday, Feb. 19, in the hope that prompt action by the Supreme Court may enable the grand jury to start the inquiry then, and to carry it on for the remaining six weeks of its term. If further delay should prevent this, he would endeavor to start the inquiry with the April term grand jury, which will be impaneled by Circuit Judge Frank C. O'Malley.

Judge Joynt did not hand down a written opinion. He prefaced his ruling by correcting the records of his court, withdrawing a minute entered in the records last Wednesday, in which he had submitted the motion to Judges O'Malley, J. Wesley McAfee and himself for a joint decision.

Judge Joynt ordered the motion reinstated in his court, thus taking it back into his own sole jurisdiction. He then addressed Circuit Attorney Miller, the only party to the case who was in court, the attorneys backing the motion not being present.

Judge's Oral Statement.

"As you know," he said to the prosecutor, "my order in this case is merely a stepping stone to the final objective desired. Whatever I decide is not binding finally." This referred to the announced decisions of both sides to appeal to the Supreme Court.

"I have made a thorough investigation of the whole matter," Judge Joynt continued, "and have come to the conclusion that the motion should be sustained; therefore I am sustaining it.

"The easiest way to have handled it was to overrule the motion. This matter might well be submitted to the Legislature, as well as to the courts."

This was a reference to a point which, as told elsewhere, Judge Joynt developed in explaining his decision to a Post-Dispatch reporter. The point was that, in his view, the State election laws, as interpreted by the State Supreme Court, are not adequate to punish fraud in bond issue elections, though they

DEFENDERS STOP REBELS ON TWO SIDES OF MADRID

UNIFIED COMMAND INSIDE CAPITAL

Gen. Jose Miaja in Full Control There — Gen. Sebastian Pozas to Have Complete Charge of Forces on Other Fronts.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Feb. 16.—Madrid's defenders, united under the sole command of Gen. Jose Miaja, fought off insurgent attacks from two sides today. It was the first anniversary of the Popular Front Government.

Insurgents pressed against the city from both the southeast and the northwest, but Government commanders contended the united command had given their men fresh vigor.

Under the new setup, Gen. Miaja held full control of defense forces on the Madrid front while Gen. Sebastian Pozas was ordered to take full command in the Guadalajara territory, northeast of the capital, in the Guadarrama Mountains to the northwest and in Estremadura south of the Tagus River.

A member of the defense junta declared "the two armies defending the central front," under Generals Miaja and Pozas, "surely will give the Government forces fresh strength and determination."

Government forces shelled insurgent concentrations at Villavieja and Somosierra in the Guadarramas and were reported by the official bulletin to have repulsed a Fascist attack in the San Benito and El Escorial sectors.

Counter attacks at San Benito and near El Escorial permitted Madrid's defenders to extend their outlying barricades nearly two miles.

Advances were claimed in other sectors about the city. The Government said a general insurgent offensive had been blocked.

Febus (Spanish news agency) reported the insurgent southern army had been fought to a standstill in the Adra sector, 27 miles west of Almeria, on the Mediterranean.

In the Oviedo sector, the insurgent northern command began a fresh attack in an effort to break the long Government siege of Oviedo. Rebels retreated under heavy machine gun and rifle fire.

Dispatches from Barcelona said four tri-motored insurgent planes bombed the railway station at Portbou, on the French-Catalan border, damaging four houses and wounding several persons.

Plane That Attacked British Ships Said to Have Rebel Marking.

VALETTA, Malta, Feb. 16.—It was unofficially reported at this British naval base today that the plane which tried to bomb two British destroyers off the coast of Algeria last Saturday was marked clearly with the colors of the Spanish insurgent air corps.

The plane, this report said, dropped four bombs during the engagement with the Havock and the Gypsy. One struck 250 yards ahead of the Havock and another to starboard of the Gypsy. The others were said to have gone wide. They were dropped from an altitude of 3000 feet. The British ordered machine gun fire in answer to the attack.

A previous report to London of the attack on the warships en route from Gibraltar to Malta, said the plane, "apparently a Junkers (German) machine," dropped six bombs. The British Government sent a vigorous note to the insurgent Spanish administration at Salamanca and to insurgent authorities at Palma, Mallorca.

Insurgents Beaten Back Near Jaen in Southern Spain.

VALENCIA, Spain, Feb. 16.—Besieged insurgents at Lopera, 22 miles northwest of Jaen in southern Spain, were reported today to have been beaten back in an attempt to break through Government lines.

The reports declared the insurgents were unsuccessful despite aid from planes that bombed and machine-gunned the Government forces.

Government aviators were said to have bombed insurgent concentrations at Motril, about 50 miles east of Malaga on the southern Mediterranean coast.

Two U. S. Consular Officials to Make Inspection at Malaga.

GIBRALTAR, Feb. 16.—The American destroyer Kane arrived today to take two Consular officials to Malaga, Spain, to make a report on conditions in the insurgent-held city for the United States Department of State. Robert Longyear, Consul at Marseilles, France, and Leslie Johnson, Vice-Consul at Gibraltar, boarded the vessel.

ally knew about the Senate resolution, and it is possible that they had the files cleaned out," the witness replied. He admitted that plant managers were not told about the subpena until some days after it was served, and that during the interim they continued to destroy papers relating to the activity of the detectives.

"In view of the amount of money spent for this information, can you explain why not a scrap of paper relating to the subject was found in your files by committee investigators?" La Follette went on.

"The adoption of the Senate resolution last June, authorizing this invesigation, is as good an explanation as I can give," Anderson answered.

"You think the files were stripped then?" "I wouldn't be surprised."

"Did you strip your files?" "Senator, I've had too much experience to keep files. I stopped doing that a long time ago."

"Did you go through Mr. Knudsen's files?" (William Knudsen is executive vice-president of General Motors Corporation.) "I did."

"Who gave you permission to do that?" "Nobody. I just went ahead and done it."

"Is it a custom there for General Motors to allow subordinates to walk in and examine the files of their superior officers without permission?" "It is where I am concerned."

"What did you have in mind?" "This investigation."

General Motors preserved but one set of records pertaining to the espionage service performed by the detectives, and those records were partly disguised. They were the records of payments for the service. Many of them were listed merely as payments to officers and employes of the corporation for "professional services." There was nothing to indicate that the money was passed on to the detective agencies.

Henry M. Hogan, of General Motors legal staff, said he ordered a search of the files of Alfred P. Sloan, president of the corporation, made by Sloan's secretary, but that nothing was found bearing on labor espionage.

The Pinkertons billed General Motors for $12 for reporting on a lecture by Prof. A. E. Ross, noted economist and sociologist, of Wisconsin University. When Anderson and Hale denied any recollection of the incident, declaring they never heard of Prof. Ross, Senator La Follette told them who he was, and Senator Thomas (Dem.), Idaho, added that he found it "difficult to think of a man being in charge of labor relations for a great corporation who never heard of Prof. Ross."

"I never heard of him," Anderson reiterated.

Asked whether he had read any books on the subject of labor relations, he replied that he had read two volumes on the history of the American Federation of Labor, and was of the opinion that labor unions originated in Egypt about 2000 years B. C. It was his impression they were craft unions. He failed to disclose whether they were Egyptians or children of Israel.

The Pinkertons and other detective agencies have now been supplanted in General Motors employ by two former operatives of Edgar Hoover's Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, and a former United States Deputy Marshal. They are instructed, Anderson said, to obtain information by any method they elect, except by bribing company employes.

Senator Thomas and Anderson got into a discussion of "liberty," and the Senator—himself a former university professor—asked the witness to define the word.

"Liberty," said Anderson, "is freedom of movement—freedom to move the body from place to place."

Threatening Letters.

One reason for the employment of private investigators by General Motors, Anderson said, is the fact that threatening letters are received by its officers.

"Then perhaps I can tell you how to save a lot of money," Thomas observed. "The sending of such letters is unlawful, and the G-men are at your service to apprehend and punish the senders. The service is free.

"It is a mystery to me that a great corporation like yours, which spends huge sums in engineering research—and makes money by doing it—makes no more serious or scientific effort to maintain peaceful relations with its workers. Its failure to do so leads to strikes, which are a dead loss. Perhaps if you would spend a little more to get at the causes of these troubles, you could save the money you have been spending for the Pinkertons."

10 Men on Stand at Once.

Today's hearing was a mass inquisition. In addition to the General Motors men, Anderson, Hale and Hogan, seven Pinkerton men were on the witness stand at once. La Follette peppered the entire group with questions.

It was disclosed that a Pinkerton operative designated only as "A. U.", is a member of the United Automobile Workers Union in Cleveland. He reported to General Motors on a meeting of the Metal Trades there. Two other operatives, "F. G." and "E. J. C.," acting under Hale's instruction "covered" a speech in Cleveland by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

"We just wanted to get the high spots," Hale explained—"see what selling points he was using, how the attendance was, and whether there was much enthusiasm."

"Did you need secret undercover agents to get that information?" La Follette asked. "No, it was just part of the service."

Still another Pinkerton man, "B. P." was a member of the Mechanics Educational Society, a union of tool and die makers, and was a delegate to the union's convention at Cleveland in 1935. E. S. Clark, Pinkerton official, said "B. P.," got evidence which resulted in the conviction of four union members for dynamiting electric power lines in Elyria, O., during a strike at the Republic Iron and Steel Co.

When a strike of flat glass workers was threatened in Toledo in 1935, R. L. Burnside, a Pinkerton man, spent a week "covering" the situation for General Motors. He said he got all his information from Toledo newspaper reporters. His services cost General Motors $12 a day and expenses.

Attended St. Louis Meeting.

Pinkertons "covered" a meeting of a Federal Labor Board in St. Louis for General Motors, but none of the detail was disclosed.

"A. Z.," a Pinkerton man, was identified as "strictly a Communist operative," a member of the Communist party, who is used to spy on the party's activities, and on the activities of unions to which Communists belong.

When Hale protested that he could not remember many of the incidents about which he was questioned, LaFollette said:

"We got very little evidence from the Pinkerton offices, and the General Motors files were stripped before our subpena got there. The result is that we have to depend on the recollection of witnesses."

Hale asserted emphatically that the shadowing of Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady by a Pinkerton man when McGrady was acting as conciliator in a General Motors strike in Toledo, was not in obedience to any instructions from him, and that he never heard of it until this hearing. He did order a union organizer shadowed, he said.

Louis Seaton, assistant to Hale and Anderson, testified that, at his request, the Pinkertons shadowed Adolph Germer, an organizer for the United Automobile Workers. Ten men were assigned to shadow him, and report the names of workers to whom he talked, but Seaton could not remember what they reported.

"Sit-Down" in Goodyear Stores.

CHICAGO, Feb. 16.—"Sit-down" strikers occupied seven service stores of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. today, demanding $120 to $140 monthly, instead of $80 to $100, and a 48-hour week.

PIERRE A. VOGEL DISBARMENT SUIT IN ADVISEMENT

Testimony Concluded, Circuit Judge Kirkwood Takes Case for Consideration of Decision.

Testimony in the disbarment suit of the St. Louis Bar Disciplinary Committee against Pierre A. Vogel, a practicing attorney for 24 years, was concluded today before Circuit Judge Robert W. Kirkwood, who took the matter under advisement.

The defendant, 50 years old, took the witness stand yesterday and denied the charges of defrauding clients in bankruptcy cases, inciting litigation and passing worthless checks.

Vogel was asked by Murray Steinberg, representing the Bar Committee, to explain why he had pleaded guilty in the Court of Criminal Correction last May to 10 charges of issuing worthless checks. He explained that he was "almost crazy" because of the charges, anticipated difficulty in furnishing bail and followed the advice of lawyer friends, who suggested that he plead guilty and seek parole.

He said he issued the checks on two banks in which he had funds, but learned subsequently that the accounts were tied up through garnishments. Vogel was sentenced to a year in the workhouse and immediately paroled by Provisional Judge Jerome Duggan on his promise to make good the losses, the largest of which was $120.

Acts As Own Lawyer.

Vogel, who is acting as his own lawyer, denied inciting litigation, explaining that he had been successful in preventing property foreclosures for several clients and his services were in demand for this type of work. Witnesses for the Bar Committee had testified that the attorney solicited them and represented that he could prevent foreclosure. He was questioned about his representations to Mr. and Mrs. William Williams, 4540 Westminster place, who testified they paid him $92 on his statement that the sum would cover the entire cost of proceedings to save a piece of their property from foreclosure, and later were asked for $42 by the Referee in Bankruptcy to secure costs. Vogel replied that he made no misrepresentations, and added that costs "depended on conditions."

Questioned about his contract with Hyman Weiss, who testified previously that Vogel promised to prevent a property foreclosure in St. Louis County for $65, the defendant admitted he had made a mistake in the cost. He explained that he failed to represent Weiss at a hearing before a Justice of the Peace because his client had informed him that the Justice had been "fixed." Vogel said he refused to have anything to do with the transaction. Weiss had testified that the attorney had promised to "fix" the case, but that the property was foreclosed.

Says Clients Refused Money.

Regarding his dealings with Mr. and Mrs. William Arste, of Kimmswick, Mo., from whom he was alleged to have withheld $120 of a settlement, Vogel testified they refused to accept the money when he offered it to them, and later he did not have it. The $120 represented the balance of a $370 settlement he made for them in a real estate deal, Vogel related He said they were at first displeased with the settlement, although he explained that, in his opinion, the defendant in the action was not liable.

Mrs. Arste, who was the last witness today, said she employed Vogel in August, 1931, and paid him a retainer of $100 to represent her and her husband in litigation over a real estate transfer. She said she called on the Bar Association in December, 1932, to learn why there was no progress in the case, and ascertained that Vogel had filed their suit that month. Subsequently the lawyer "talked settlement" as to one defendant, Jacob Weiss, although Arste was opposed to settling with Weiss, Mrs. Arste related.

When the settlement was made Vogel, who was to retain $50, gave her his own check for $320, Mrs. Arste said, but a teller at the United Bank & Trust Co. refused to honor it. Subsequently Vogel gave her $200 cash, and still owes $120, the witness stated. She denied that she had authorized the attorney to indorse the $370 check received from Jacob Weiss.

Milton J. Yawitz, an attorney, testified he tried to settle the dispute between the Arstes and Vogel, but Mrs. Arste demanded the $370 and did not want to pay an attorney's fee. She was unfair, and I told her to 'fly a kite'," Yawitz related.

Judge Joynt Reverses Himself

Decisions Cited by Judge.

As two of the Supreme Court decisions on which he based his ruling, Judge Joynt mentioned State ex rel. Taylor (220 Mo., p. 630) and in re Oppenstein (289 Mo., p. 427). In the former case, the court held that the word "election," as used in the Constitution, referred entirely to the election of candidates to office, and not to the mere nomination of candidates. This excluded primary elections from the law's operation, but the Constitution was amended in 1924 so that primaries are now included. As special elections on bond proposals were not mentioned in the amendment, Judge Joynt's conclusion was that the law still failed to cover them.

In the second case, he said, the Supreme Court stated that "The question is not what the people ought to have put into the Constitution; the question is, what does the provision mean which they did put into the Constitution."

Judge Joynt talked with the Circuit Attorney of the latter's intended application for a writ of mandamus. The Circuit Attorney asked the Judge to hold himself in readiness for prompt acceptance of service if such a writ should be granted. The Judge said he would do so.

No Comment on Chief Objection.

In his statement on the bench and his further explanation, Judge Joynt did not indicate his view on the technical objection on which the lawyers supporting the motion laid chief stress, and which appeared to be the heart of their case. This was the contention that the ballots cast in the bond election of 17 months ago should have been destroyed, under requirements of State law, one year after the election; and that, though preserved and now ready for examination, they are legally dead as evidence.

This point was argued before Judge Joynt Feb. 5 by two of the lawyers supporting the motion, State Representative John D. Taylor of Keytesville and former Supreme Court Judge David E. Blair of Joplin. William J. Hough, chief counsel for the plaintiffs in the motion, did not take part in the argument.

Blair and Taylor insisted that the bond election ballots should have been destroyed Sept. 10 last, one year after the election, under provisions of the general State law, which makes no exception to this rule; or that, if the special statute for cities of 100,000 population should apply, destruction of the ballots was still required.

The special cities-of-100,000 statute provides that the ballots shall be destroyed after a year unless an election contest, or a prosecution or grand jury investigation under the election law, shall be pending at that time.

Blair and Taylor contended that as no prosecution or grand jury investigation was in actual progress last September, the requirement for destroying the ballots applied; that, in fact, the Election Board (or Boards—two bodies have since been in office) were derelict in their duty in failing to order a ballot bonfire.

Circuit Attorney's Contention.

Circuit Attorney Miller contended that the formal notice which he sent to the Election Board Sept. 8, two days before the election anniversary, and which the board honored, to preserve the ballots for the grand jury's future use, met the requirements of the statute.

The motion which Judge Joynt granted today was filed two days after the grand jury, acting under Judge Joynt's directions, had asked the Judge to issue the subpena for the ballot-box evidence.

In those two days, Judge Joynt could have issued the subpena, leaving it to the objectors to appeal to the Supreme Court. But he chose, after verbal notification by Attorney Hough, to delay the matter.

For the last 12 days Judge Joynt has been considering the matter, deferring his ruling twice for the announced purpose of consultation and study of legal points.

Chief Plaintiff's Admission.

Last Wednesday, Judge Joynt asked Judges McAfee and O'Malley, as his brother judges in the criminal divisions of Circuit Court, to aid him in passing on the matter. They consented, and the three held one conference. But after the chief plaintiff in the case, George Whitelaw, confessed to Post-Dispatch reporters that he lent the use of his name, expected to be paid $2000, and did not act in good faith, to preserve the secrecy of his ballot—as he had at first professed—Judges McAfee and O'Malley lost interest in the law points of the case.

The two said they did not wish to give further time to legal points until the issue of good faith was decided, and that Judge Joynt was the one to decide it. Judge Joynt at first appeared to take this view of the matter, but he then went into the study of court decisions on which, he said today, he based his ruling.

The grand jury has this phase of the matter under investigation, and last Friday questioned Whitelaw and the reporters to whom he made his statement, and to whom he had said previously that the proceeding was his idea, and was financed by him to the extent of a $250 fee, paid by him to Hough.

From the first appearance of the motion, the four other plaintiffs have not professed any personal interest in or responsibility for the case, but have admitted that they were asked to sign their names, and obligingly agreed to become plaintiffs, paying no fee and hiring no lawyer. The five represent severally the five precincts involved in the inquiry, precincts one to five inclusive of State Senator Mike Kinney's Fifth Ward.

The political effect of Judge Joynt's ruling today seeming will be to postpone investigation of the riverfront bond issue election, if one is ever to be had, until after the municipal election in April, when Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann, who sponsored the bond election, will be seeking re-election.

Circuit Attorney Trying to Start Inquiry Since December.

Circuit Attorney Miller has been trying since early in December to get a grand jury investigation of the frauds in the riverfront memorial bond election. He submitted the matter to the December grand jury impaneled on Dec. 7 by Circuit Judge Eugene L. Padberg, who did not give specific instructions to investigate election frauds in his charge to the jury.

Although the Circuit Attorney several times submitted data to the grand jury and requested it to proceed with the inquiry, it refused to do so, and it was learned that eight out of 12 members, voting against the inquiry, justified their stand on the ground that the memorial was a "good thing" for St. Louis.

When Circuit Judge J. Wesley McAfee was assigned early in January to the criminal division of the court over which Judge Padberg had presided he called in the grand jury Judge Padberg had selected and took the unprecedented action of discharging it before expiration of its term, frankly telling its members that their views were so diametrically opposed to his that he could not work harmoniously with them.

The city was without a grand jury until the beginning of the present court term when, on Feb. 1, Judge Joynt selected and impaneled the present jury. Judge Joynt gave the grand jury specific instructions to investigate the bond issue election and informed it that it had the right to open the ballot boxes. His ruling today nullifies that instruction and probably means the present grand jury cannot proceed because its term likely will end before a ruling can be had in an appeal to the Supreme Court.

The next grand jury will be impaneled early in March by Circuit Judge Frank C. O'Malley, and Judge McAfee will name the June grand jury.

NEW DYNAMITING OPERATION ON NIAGARA FALLS CONSIDERED

Proposal Made to Remove Huge Pile of Rocks at Foot on the American Side.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Feb. 16.—A face-blasting operation on the American falls was considered today to remove the huge pile of rocks which has accumulated through the centuries at the foot of the falls. Engineers said the first major task, if the work were attempted, would be to divert the course of the roaring waterfall to permit men to set the explosive.

Rob Roy MacLeod, president of a civic group proposing the operation, said the blasts would be so arranged as to blow the heap into the deep water of the lower river.

In addition to marring the gorge scenery the rock pile has shortened the sheer drop of the waters by many feet. Small rock slides have been common in the Niagara gorge but the slide piled up at the foot of the American falls tore huge chunks out of the brink.

Another slide weakened Table Rock near the Canadian Horseshoe Falls. The rock was blasted into the gorge last July.

SUBSTITUTE SALES TAX BILL REPORTED OUT

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 16.—The House Ways and Means Committee agreed today to report favorably a bill providing for a straight 2 per cent sales tax as a substitute for the bracket sales tax which was proposed as an administration measure.

The substitute bill will go on the House calendar for perfection next Tuesday as a special order of business, Roy Hamlin, majority floor leader and a member of the committee, announced following the meeting today.

As now drafted, the 2 per cent sales tax bill follows the present 1 per cent law closely. However, the tax on newspaper and magazine advertising, laundry services and on all forms of transportation has been eliminated from the new measure.

Failure of a purchaser to pay the tax would be a misdemeanor under the bill, a provision which was recommended by the State Auditor, who collects the tax. No expiration date for the 2 per cent levy is included in the bill.

Senator Clark of Richmond has introduced a bill amending the present law to increase the tax to 2 per cent. Except for their form, the proposed measures are nearly identical.

13 TRAPPED ON FLOATING BARN IN FLOODWAY ARE RESCUED

They Spend Night Perched on Roof After Motor Boat Catches Fire and Burns.

By the Associated Press.

CHARLESTON, Mo., Feb. 16.—Thirteen men, trapped on the roof of a floating barn in the Birds Point-New Madrid floodway when their motorboat caught fire and burned yesterday, were rescued today.

James Ringo, former WPA malarial control engineer for this district; his father, L. C. Ringo, and 11 other men were on their way to Wolf Island to remove a load of corn, when they were forced to abandon their boat and climb atop the barn. During the night, the barn bobbed like a cork in the floodwaters while the cold north wind at times sent waves entirely over the structure, they said. At daylight two of the party tore boards from the barn and used them to row a small skiff to the levee more than a mile away, where they summoned aid for their companions.

Gov. Stark Renames Him and W. L. Igoe — New Members Are J. J. Nangle and F. B. Coleman.

RECOGNITION GIVEN TO TWO FACTIONS

St. Louis Senators Not Consulted on Appointments, but They Show No Disposition to Oppose Them

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 16.—Gov. Stark, in selecting the members of the St. Louis Board of Police Commissioners, whose appointments he announced late yesterday afternoon, avoided taking sides in the local Democratic factional strife. He gave recognition to both the Igoe and Mayor Dickmann factions.

While retaining William L. Igoe, now president of the board, he indicated that Albert Bond Lambert, at present a member, and reappointed, would be president of the new board. The fact that the Governor had decided to rename them was told exclusively in the Post-Dispatch two weeks ago.

However, there was no intimation until yesterday who their associates would be. Then the Governor named John J. Nangle, a lawyer, of 5092 Westminster place, treasurer of the Democratic State Committee, and Frank B. Coleman, a lawyer, of 5042 Washington avenue. Coleman was defeated for the Democratic nomination for Circuit Judge in the last primary.

Control With Neutrals.

With Mayor Dickmann, who is a member of the board under the general State law, the membership will be divided as between the factions in St. Louis, with actual control of the board resting with neutrals.

Nangle's appointment is said to have been decided on a week ago when Mayor Dickmann conferred with the Governor for more than an hour, and is a concession to the Mayor.

Coleman is not given a factional classification. He really owes nothing to either faction on the basis of his primary campaign, in which he was placed on the slate in Igoe's ward, but was left off the slate of Jimmy Miller of the Igoe faction, in the Fourth Ward. He was on the slate of Senator Kinney and of some others of the Dickmann group, but was not on the slate of others of the group. The result was that he was ninth in a field of 25 candidates for six nominations.

Coleman is considered friendly to Igoe, having formerly been associated with him in the practice of law. More recently Coleman was associated with former Judge Jesse McDonald and is now with the law firm of Curlee and Teasdale.

Though the board selects its own officers, the Governor in announcing the appointments said that he expected Lambert would be named president. Through this arrangement the Governor has avoided choosing between the two factions in the leadership of the board.

There was no general consultation with St. Louis Senators but the Governor said today that he had conferred with Senators Shea and Lewis.

Asked if he had talked to Senators Kinney and Brogan, veterans from St. Louis in the upper house, Gov. Stark replied: "We'll not go into that."

Several weeks ago Senators showed their resentment at not being consulted in the appointment of Robert B. Brooks of St. Louis as a member of the State Highway Commission by postponing confirmation for more than a week.

No Objection From Senators.

So far as can be ascertained, there is no present disposition by the St. Louis Senators to object to any of the appointments, though confirmations may be delayed for several weeks or possibly until nearly the close of the session of the Legislature, which may not be until May.

The Governor's explanation at the time he named Brooks was that he did not consider the appointment a political one and for that reason "didn't consult anybody" about it. Last week, when he named the St. Louis Board of Election Commissioners, he consulted the Senators before definitely picking the commissioners.

The terms of the present police commissioners, Igoe, Lambert, George T. Priest and John J. Phelan, expired Jan. 1, but they continue to serve until their successors are confirmed.

Lambert Has Made Intensive Study of Police Work.

During his four-year term as vice-president of the St. Louis Board of Police Commissioner, Albert Bond Lambert, who is expected to be made president of the new board, made an intensive study of police administration, crime detection and traffic problems as in former years he had devoted his time and energies to development of aviation.

For more hours than the average business man would expect to give to his work, Lambert was found informing himself at first hand as to practical as well as theoretical aspects of police work. By day he might be found at the office of the Chief of Police or familiarizing himself with the particular problem of the Captain in command of some district. By night, touring the city in a radio-equipped squad machine, he learned, by actual observation the duties of the patrolman and the detective.

Means of reducing the automobile accident death rate and solution of traffic problems have been of as great interest to Lambert as the more spectacular activities of police work. On several occasions, Lambert has instructed his private chauffeur, commissioned as a private watchman, to arrest a speeder or reckless driver.

But always Lambert has been an active exponent of the board's policy of demanding courtesy from policemen in their contacts with the public. The change in attitude of policemen toward citizens and of citizens toward policemen has been notable.

Pioneer in Aviation.

At the turn of the century. Lambert, of independent means, promoted ballooning in St. Louis and took a leading part in the first aviation meet here in 1910. Previously, he had spent months in France witnessing the first successful experiments at flying, and he was closely connected with the work of the Wright brothers and Glenn Curtiss. He organized a St. Louis balloon school which he commanded during the World War and was instrumental in acquisition and development of Lambert-St. Louis Field, the municipal airport bearing his name.

Lambert is 61 years old and resides at 2 Hortense place. Formerly, he was head of the Lambert Pharmacal Co., a family corporation. He is a Major in the Army Air Corps Reserve. He served a four-year term on the City Council from 1907 to 1911, but aviation was of greater interest than politics and efforts to bring him out as a candidate for Mayor failed. Again he declined to become a candidate for Mayor this year.

Sketches of Others.

William L. Igoe, expected to be succeeded by Lambert as president of the board but who will continue as a member, has become a figure of increasing political importance with recent Democratic ascendancy in St. Louis. He is titular head of the faction opposing Mayor Dickmann. A lawyer, he has long been a leader in Democratic politics and served several terms from the North St. Louis Congressional District, now the Thirteenth. In 1925, he was Democratic nominee for Mayor but was defeated by Victor J. Miller. He is 57 and resides at 4939 Northland place.

John J. Nangle, 45, is the youngest member of the new board. He is treasurer of the Democratic State Committee. A lawyer, he lived in Nebraska and Kansas until he became connected with the claims department of the Missouri Pacific Railroad at Kansas City in 1916. Later, he was transferred to the St. Louis claims department and became associated with the insurance firm of Lynton T. Block & Co., of which he is vice-president. He lives at 5092 Westminster place.

The fourth member, Frank B. Coleman, 5042 Washington boulevard, also is a lawyer. He is 58, a graduate of the University of Missouri and the Washington University Law School, and is associated with the firm of Curlee & Teasdale. Born in Warren County, he came to St. Louis in 1899. As a candidate for Democratic nomination for Circuit Judge last August, he was indorsed by the St. Louis Bar Association, but was defeated.

"Tessie Mears will testify the ballots were never counted. She will tell you she heard one of the three men, speaking of Mrs. Alder, say he 'would as soon punch her as a man.' She heard Drummond complain he couldn't stick around, he had to go to a party. As a matter of fact, Drummond tried to get Tessie Mears to sign the poll books, stipulating the count, before 6 o'clock, an hour before the polls closed.

162 Persons Disenfranchised.

"And when the certified count was made, Tessie Mears will testify, Walker called off the votes for the candidates from a small slip of paper, whose figures never were gained from a study of the ballots. And we will show those 162 persons were just as disenfranchised as if they had been driven bodily from the polls."

William G. Boatright, a member of the defense counsel, objected to the last statement of the District Attorney.

Judge Otis said he would hold night sessions, beginning tonight. After the 12 jurors had been chosen, Judge Otis asked that another be selected. The alternate, who will serve in event one of the others becomes ill, is J. W. Van Olinder, Palo, Mo.

Other members of the jury are: L. C. Dobyns, Corning, farmer; R. H. Franks, Thomasville, farmer; Leo Hackney, Lemons, farmer; Homey Hampy, Smithton, farmer; W. K. Holland, Steedman, farmer; Ira C. McDonnell, Columbia, merchant; C. A. Morrow, Osceola, retired produce dealer; Frank Petree, Buffalo, farmer; Jeff Poff, Gentry, retired merchant; Philip Rentchler, Clinton, grocer; Clifford G. Scruggs, Jefferson City, lumberman, and J. T. Turpin, Crocker, employe of the Federal Resettlement Administration.

Defendants in Case.

The other defendants in this trial, all charged with miscounting presidential and congressional votes, are Edson M. Walker and Loretta McEntee, Democratic precinct judges; Elijah Burke, Republican judge; Anna V. McLaughlin, Democratic clerk, and John Drummond, Democratic precinct captain. All are from the Thirteenth Precinct of the Twelfth Ward.

Defense attorneys failed in two last-day efforts to forestall the trial. Three Circuit Court Judges rejected a plea for permission to file a writ of prohibition, and Judge Otis denied a motion to quash the jury panel.

GOVERNOR TO CONFER WITH LEGISLATORS ON RELIEF

Representatives of St. Louis and Kansas City Agencies to Attend Meeting.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 17.—The conference of Gov. Stark with legislative leaders and representatives of St. Louis and Kansas City relief agencies on the question of providing additional relief funds for the remainder of February, will be held at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, the Governor announced yesterday.

The conference was planned after a delegation from the Automobile Workers' Union visited the Governor last Friday and sought aid for families of about 2000 workers who were on strike recently in St. Louis and Kansas City. Gov. Stark told the delegation he considered the $600,000 State appropriation for January and February insufficient.

PRISON TRUSTY DRIVES AWAY IN STATE AUTO

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 16.—James Widmer of St. Louis, escaped yesterday in a prison automobile from the penitentiary where he was serving a life sentence for the murder of Patrolman John H. Grogan in a robbery in which a man who tried to help Grogan also was killed. He was the third man of four found guilty of the crime who has escaped from the prison.

He disappeared after driving Ross Hardy, assistant secretary to the Prison Board, to the Capitol building shortly after 2 o'clock. Hardy reported that he left Widmer, a trusty acting as chauffeur, in the car alone for about 10 minutes. When he returned both convict and automobile were gone. The machine was found later, abandoned on Highway No. 50, a few miles west of Jefferson City.

Widmer's associates in the holdup and murders, all of whom received life sentences when convicted in 1926 in St. Louis Circuit Court, were Medford Wood, Frank Bird and Lee Sproul.

Patrolman Grogan and a civilian, Harvey Hammett, were shot to death July 3, 1925, when they attempted to halt five youths who had tried to hold up the Collins Printing Co., 1533 Washington avenue. The policeman was off duty, but entered the building when he learned a holdup was in progress. Hammett, a passerby, attempted to seize one of the youths, and two of the robbers opened fire.

SUB-COMMITTEE OF SENATE BACKS BILL TO PENSION JUSTICES

Borah said it was a possibility. He has been studying the whole problem of the Supreme Court for more than two years, he added, reminding reporters that it was over a Supreme Court issue that he broke many years ago with Theodore Roosevelt. The issue then was the first Roosevelt's proposal for recall of judicial decisions.

Borah said he had been informed that 40 Senators were now recorded in opposition to the President's measure but he added he had no way of checking this figure.

Hour and Half Debate.

Sumners appeared before the Judiciary Sub-committe today in support of his bill. For an hour and a half the committee debated the measure, besides McCarran and Logan, those voting for a favorable report to the full committee were Senator Norris of Nebraska, who has expressed serious doubt of the "wisdom" of the President's bill, and Senator Hatch of New Mexico.

"My guess is," McCarran said, "that the bill will go through and without very many dissenting votes."

Meanwhile, on both sides of the controversial issue Senators prepared new ammunition. Senator McAdoo (Dem.), California, this afternoon was finishing a speech he is to deliver tonight in favor of the President's reorganization plan. Senator Wheeler (Dem.), Montana, who came out in opposition to the proposal on Sunday, is expected to go on the air some time soon. Administration strategists expect that Wheeler's opposition will be offset by the speech which Senator La Follette, Wisconsin Progressive, expects to deliver on behalf of the administration plan to enlarge the high court.

George Joins Opposition.

Senator George (Dem.), Georgia, joined the opposition with a statement today that the proposal to increase the Supreme Court was "unwise" and would "impair the independence of the Federal judiciary."

"I have not hesitated to say to all those who have written to me that in my opinion this particular recommendation of the President is unwise and that if approved, will impair the independence of the Federal judiciary," he said.

"In the long run, a court free from both executive and congressional domination, will be found more useful to the people than the immediate enactment of any legislative program, however desirable. A subservient judiciary is worse than no judiciary at all."

SNOW AND ICE GIVE EXTRA DAY OF GRACE ON MOTOR LICENSES

Real Police Drive Against Offenders to Begin Thursday Morning; Back Door Complaint.

A light snowfall and ice-spotted streets today prevented effective operation of the drive which had been planned by police against motorists who failed to obtain 1937 State automobile licenses.

Only 13 arrests had been made up to noon by members of three crews stationed at busy intersections. Pavement conditions prevented use of motorcycles. The crews were stationed at Newstead avenue and Lindell boulevard, Magnolia avenue and Grand boulevard and Taylor and Easton avenues. Police Capt. Charles Loepker of the Traffic Division announced an intensive drive would begin Thursday morning.

Complaints were made to a Post-Dispatch reporter that favored purchasers were permitted to enter License Bureau offices, 1701 Chestnut street and 7816 Forsythe boulevard, Clayton, through back doors ahead of others who stood in long lines that prevailed yesterday. Some in the lines said that a man offered to take them to the back door upon payment of 50 cents. Others bought places in line for various prices from professional "waiters," who did not step out, but merely allowed their customers to move in ahead.

The demand for licenses continued heavy today. The Public Service Co. added 30 street cars and 20 busses to accommodate auto owners who left machines at home until new licenses were acquired.

PLEADS GUILTY, GETS TWO YEARS FOR COUNTERFEITING

Charles Meyer, Sheet Metal Worker, Also Fined $25 in U. S. District Court.

Charles Meyer, a sheet metal worker, 1421A Salisbury street, was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary and fined $25 by United States District Judge Charles B. Davis today on a plea of guilty of making and possession of counterfeit nickels, quarters and half-dollars.

On complaint of a gambling house in Venice, Ill., that he had tried to use the counterfeit coins in a slot machine, Meyer was arrested outside the place by a Deputy Constable. A large number of the counterfeit coins were in his possession, and moulds, metals and tools for making them were found at his home.

After his record was read, showing three Workhouse sentences for petty larceny and burglary, Meyer made an unsuccessful plea for leniency. He said he had no intention of using the coins except in slot machines and he made them only "to try to beat the crooked gamblers." He had, he said, filed off the impressions on one side of the coins so they could not be passed.

FIVE SALOONS TEMPORARILY CLOSED FOR VIOLATING LAW

Fights in Two of Places; Gambling Devices in Other Three.

Five saloons were ordered closed for periods ranging from two to five days by Excise Commissioner Thomas L. Anderson today following police complaints of disorderly conduct at the places.

Robert Adams was ordered to close his saloon at 4052 Olive street for five days because of a fight there last Jan. 19, and Earl Chappius, 1829 South Jefferson avenue, was ordered to close three days because of a fight Jan. 24.

The following were ordered to close two days each as a result of police raids in which gambling devices were reported found: Belle Jageman, 3534 Olive street; Harry K. Shaffner, 4674 Easton avenue, and Dominick Tarella, 3630 Washington boulevard.

$12,500 FOR LOSS OF HUSBAND TO WOMAN FOLLOWER OF HUNT

Belfast Wife Testified Mate Lost Job With Hounds, Then Joined His Admirer.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Feb. 16.—Middle-aged Mrs. Alice Lace celebrated in her modest home yesterday what she called her "tally-ho" triumph, a court award of $12,500 for the alleged enticement of her husband, a former huntsman, by a wealthy woman follower of the hunt.

In making the award in Ulster High Court, Justice Brawn said the defendant, Mrs. Madeline Yvonne Lilian Powell, had committed "an outrageous wrong on Mrs. Lace by taking away her husband."

Mrs. Lace had testified her husband lost his position with the East Antrim Hounds Hunt as a result of the affair, and then left her to live with Mrs. Powell.

When Mrs. Lace remonstrated with Mrs. Powell over her growing friendship with Lace, the wife charged Mrs. Powell threatened "to thrash the life out of her" if she bothered them.

Once, when Lace was in a hospital, his wife asserted, she found 21 letters he had received from Mrs. Powell. One of them, read in court, said:

"Eh, but I do love you, a bit more every day I think. . . . I was terribly proud of both you and your hounds today. Hurry up, sweetheart, and come and keep your lonely Vonsie company."

CONDEMNED E. ST. LOUIS PAIR LOSE IN STATE SUPREME COURT

Stay Denied to Negroes Who are to Go to Electric Chair on Friday.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 16.—The State Supreme Court declined today to stay the execution of Allen and Minnie Mitchell, East St. Louis Negroes, set for Friday at Southern Illinois Penitentiary at Menard.

The court also ruled it would not hear further evidence on an application for a writ of error filed by counsel for the Mitchells 10 days ago.

The Mitchells, man and wife, were sentenced Jan. 30 in East St. Louis to death in the electric chair for the murder of Sam Simpson, another Negro, to obtain $386 in life insurance.

Ray Hendricks, attorney for the Mitchells, said at East St. Louis today he was preparing, as a last resort, a petition to Gov. Horner for a reprieve and commutation of sentence.

MAN SHOT IN FIGHT DIES; EX-CONVICT HELD

James Hunt, 53, Formerly of St. Louis, Wounded Sunday at Charleston, Mo.

By the Associated Press.

CHARLESTON, Mo., Feb. 16.—A man who said he was James Hunt, 53 years old, died here today from bullet wounds suffered Sunday in a street fight. Sheriff Walter Beck said he was holding John Waller, 21, paroled convict, who was arrested soon after the shooting. The events preceding the shooting are under investigation.

Hunt, employed as a laborer on the Mississippi River levee near here, told attendants that his wife and five children lived at 1615 Blair avenue, St. Louis. He formerly was a jockey, he said. He told police he moved to Charleston several months ago after failing to find employment at St. Louis.

An apartment building which formerly stood at 1615 Blair avenue was torn down last July and a filling station erected on the site. Neighbors told a Post-Dispatch reporter that Mrs. Leota Hunt and five children had lived there until then, and that they had understood she was a widow.

FULL PRODUCTION RESUMED AT CHEVROLET-FISHER PLANT

St. Louis Automobile Workers On Assembly Lines Again Following Strike Settlement.

Full production was resumed today at the St. Louis Chevrolet-Fisher Body plant, Union boulevard and Natural Bridge avenue, which was closed at quitting time Jan. 15 by the strike of union automobile workers.

At the Chevrolet division it was said the three assembly lines were in operation this morning. The truck assembly line started yesterday morning with about 500 men working. The Fisher Body division also was in operation this morning. No statement as to the number of employes at work could be obtained. On Jan. 12, the day before the strike started, 4100 workers were employed in the two divisions. Production was continued through Jan. 14 and 15 on a curtailed scale.

Under the agreement reached last week at Detroit between General Motors and the United Automobile Workers of America, all employes are to return to work and there is to be no discrimination against strikers. Union members are permitted to wear the emblem of their organization in the plant.

KEEPING PACE with PROGRESS

IN FEBRUARY, 1857, a little banking institution known as the St. Louis Building and Savings Association was chartered for business and shortly afterwards opened its doors in modest quarters near the river at Second and Pine Streets. This Association, organized in the troublesome times preceding the Civil War, was destined to grow into the Mercantile-Commerce Bank and Trust Company of today.

Through the eighty changing, eventful years of its history, Mercantile-Commerce has ever kept pace with progress—constantly growing, constantly augmenting its services to meet the varying and multiplied needs of its customers. Today, the Trust Department of Mercantile-Commerce, one of the largest divisions in the bank and one of the most serviceable to the community, is an outstanding result of this progress.

The Trust Department

In the administration of trust business, whether as Executor, Administrator, Guardian or Trustee, and in the conservation of life insurance, Mercantile-Commerce renders two distinct types of service—one of a business character concerning the preservation, management, accounting and distribution of the trust property, the other of a personal nature dealing with the purely personal problems of the individual. Both are of equal importance.

From its beginning, the Trust Department has given conservative, careful attention to the business affairs of its customers. Yet it has been aggressive and courageous in its progress to make its service ever better and more valuable. The statistical department has been considerably expanded in recent years, as investment problems have become more complex. The entire department has grown steadily with the years.

Friendly, personal service has always been stressed by Mercantile-Commerce. Day after day, Trust officials are meeting serious, personal problems of patrons, advising women concerning the rearing of children, their schooling, giving assistance in the choice of vocation, and rendering extraordinary services in emergencies.

Your Family's Future

By naming Mercantile-Commerce your Executor and Trustee your family's future will be in the hands of an institution which has served the community for eighty years, which has handled some of the largest estates passing through the Probate Court. This bank is qualified by extensive facilities and wide experience to render a most beneficial business and personal service to your estate and dependents.

PENSION MEASURE REVISED TO MEET U. S. REQUIREMENT

Committee Writes Substitute for Present Law, Changing Administration and Method of Payment.

CLAIMS FOR BACK PENSION RESTRICTED

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 16. — The House Committee on Social Security completed last night its task of rewriting the present old age pension act and prepared a bill in which it proposed numerous revisions designed to make the law conform to a greater degree with the requirements of the Federal Government.

The bill, in the form of an amendment to a bill introduced by Representative Robert M. Talbert of Cape Girardeau, repeals and offers a substitute for the present law, which was enacted during the last session of the Legislature. The committee's bill will be reported favorably for passage to the House, probably tomorrow.

The new provisions contained in the measure are, for the most part, based on the recommendations made during a committee hearing last week by members of the State Old Age Assistance Board, who asked for greater administrative powers and centralization of the State pension machinery.

County Boards Advisory.

In effect, the bill confines the county old age pension boards to advisory duties and leaves the way open for the State board to establish offices in each county for the actual work of investigation of applicants and recommendation of the amounts to be awarded in pensions.

The present individual requisition method of paying the pensions is substituted with a payroll method, under direct supervision of the State board. Instead of payments by check, as is the present method, the pensions would be paid in warrants issued by the State Auditor. The bill requires the Auditor to supply the board with complete records relating to the warrants issued.

The bill also provides that the payment of the pensions shall begin on the date of certification, and not as of the date of application. This provision means that all persons whose applications have not been certified will be unable to make a claim for back pensions. It has been estimated that there are about 25,000 applicants in this classification.

However, retroactive payments could still be claimed by those persons whose applications have been certified by the board, but such payments will be made only if the necessary funds are appropriated by the Legislature.

No Appeals on Amount.

Under the bill, appeals from rulings of the State Pension Board could be made to the Circuit Court only on the ground of eligibility, and no appeals could be taken on the question of the amount of the pension awarded. There has been some doubt as to whether the present law would permit appeals based on both grounds.

The State board would still be composed of members of the Board of Managers of the eleemosynary institutions, but they would no longer be given salaries of $50 a month, as now provided. Applicants would not have to be citizens of the United States to receive the pensions, although they would be required to have resided in the State at least five years.

Under the present law, aged persons with property valued at excess of $1500 are not entitled to the pensions. The committee's bill would, however, allow an exemption up to $1000 for a homestead. This was recommended by Gov. Stark in his inaugural message.

Federal Requirement Cited.

During the committee hearing last week, Miss Reba Choate, Assistant Old Age Assistance Commissioner, said the State was in danger of losing the Federal grants because of imperfection in the present law. She said the Social Security Board in Washington required a centralized administrative machinery, which had available at all times complete records of its activities. The Federal board also insisted, she said, that pension awards be recommended by trained and experienced social workers after investigating the individual needs of the applicants.

Her recommendations were supported by C. H. Alspach, regional director of public assistance, who is in charge of the Federal Social Security program in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

UNION AND G. M. C. BEGIN BARGAINING ON SIX DEMANDS

Representatives Meet in Detroit to Negotiate Issues Not Settled in Strike Agreement.

HOURS AND WORKING CONDITIONS INCLUDED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 16.—Representatives of the United Automobile Workers of America and General Motors Corporation met today to consider six points on their merits pertaining to wages and working conditions of production employes.

Provision was made for the negotiations in the terms of the strike settlement, effective last Thursday, enabling the men to return to work while the joint conference discussed the union's original "trading points."

The six matters to be determined are abolition of piece work pay and the sbstitution of a straight hourly rate; a 30-hour week and six-hour day with time and a half for overtime; establishment of a minimum rate of pay commensurate with an American standard of living; reinstatement of all employes unjustly discharged; and seniority based on length of service.

Although no definite commitments were made, the wage question was thoroughly explored during the early sessions of the strike settlement negotiations, before the conferees got down to the fundamental subject of collective bargaining.

The points relating to seniority and the reinstatement of employes "unjustly discharged" represent the union's protection against discrimination because of union membership. The seniority provision would make length of service the first consideration in rehiring men after the annual lay-off during the "swing over" period between new models. The union has contended that the practice in some cases has been to eliminate union members by re-employing only non-union men.

Martin, Knudsen and Associates Open Negotiations.

Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers, headed the union delegation of five, which was the first to arrive in the conference room on the fifth floor of the General Motors building here. The executive vice-president of General Motors, William S. Knudsen, and his associates joined them at 10:30 a. m.

The General Motors executive has expressed belief a settlement of disputed points would not require extended conferences. A principal source of trouble may be the differing views of corporation and union on which issues may be negotiated on a national basis and which General Motors considers must be settled by individual managers of its 69 plants.

A large conference room was the scene of the negotiations between three spokesmen for the corporation and five for the union and its affiliate, the Committee for Industrial Organization.

General Motors designated Knudsen, C. E. Wilson, another vice-president, and H. W. Anderson, director of industrial relations, as its representatives in the present conference. The union negotiators are Martin, Wyndham Mortimer, Ed Hall and Walter N. Wells, U. A. W. A. vice-presidents, and John Brophy, C. I. O. director.

Martin, in a statement before negotiations opened, said the union has been worth "many millions of dollars to the automobile workers of this country in bonuses, wage increases, better working conditions, etc.," and cited pay raises by General Motors, Chrysler Corporation and Packard as "indicative of what may be attained by the automobile workers through organization."

Brophy said before entering the conference room, "the union will not give up its demand for recognition as sole bargaining agency for General Motors employes." He did not explain the remark. The agreement ending the strikes accorded the union recognition for its membership only. In a letter supplementing the agreement, however, Knudsen agreed not to negotiate with any other union for six months in the 20 plants closed by strikes of their own workers.

With nearly 80,000 of the 135,000 workers who were idle during the strike already back at work, still more were to report for their usual shifts today. By tomorrow 100,000 are expected to have returned.

Anderson (Ind.) Mayor Asks That Outside Organizers Leave.

ANDERSON, Ind., Feb. 16.—Determined to drive "outside organizers" from this city, Mayor Harry R. Baldwin declared today "if these agitators remain and martial law is lifted, we will be right back where we were before."

The mayor said, "If the union is sincere in its expressed desire to see order maintained, it will send Victor Reuther (an organizer) and his assistants away. It is for their good as well as the good of the general community."

When told of the mayor's statement Reuther, a Detroit (Mich.) resident, asserted "I will stay in Anderson as long as my work is satisfactory to the international organization and to the union in Anderson."

Col. Albert H. Whitcomb, commanding National Guardsmen here, said his officers were investigating activities of the organizers. He indicated the organizers "or anyone else" will be sent from the city if the investigation shows such action necessary.

Meanwhile, a two-way investigation of the shooting affray which immediately preceded the calling of troops, rapidly neared completion. The military authorities and the Madison County grand jury studied the activities of 13 men who remained under arrest in connection with the disorder. Reuther said Maurice Sugar of Detroit, attorney for the United Automobile Workers of America, was en route to Anderson to give legal aid to the men in jail.

Approximately 11,000 employes of the General Motors' Delco Remy and Guide Lamp plants went to work under the watch of the National Guardsmen.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

He said he remembered traveling from Memphis to Mobile on a bus, but that on arrival here his memory left him.

Mrs. A. E. Bang, 4965 Wise avenue, a sister of Brockschmidt, said he left his home unexpectedly a week ago last night and that nothing had been heard from him since. Members of the family did not worry over his absence until a few days ago, as he had frequently gone away in the same manner but always returned within two or three days, she said. Brockschmidt is 36 years old and unemployed.

NEW INSURANCE LOAN RULES VOTED BY COMMITTEE

Measure Revising Investment Requirements Sent to Missouri House After Perfunctory Hearing.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 16.—A bill, prepared by insurance and investment trusts, proposing a complete revision of the law governing investments by Missouri life insurance companies, was rushed out of the House Insurance Committee last night in less than a week after its introduction, and after only a perfunctory hearing.

The bill was introduced by Representative Thomas A. Shockley of Waynesville, chairman of the Insurance Committee.

Shockley made a brief talk, saying the purpose of the bill was to "tighten up" the investment feature of the insurance laws, and the committee voted out the bill. He afterward said in an interview that the measure had the approval of the Missouri Insurance Department, but was evasive as to who prepared it and gave it to him for introduction. Usually on important legislation notice of a public hearing is given that objection may be heard.

Whether the bill actually "tightens up" the investment law, or whether it liberalizes them for the insurance companies, is a question which remains for debate in the House.

The bill limits the proportion of assets which a company may invest in certain types of loans, whereas there is now no limitation, but it doubles the proportion of assets which may be invested in any single loan.

It also permits a company to hold as assets for 11 years bonds, stocks and other securities not authorized by law for insurance company investment, if they have been obtained through reorganization effected to reduce or avoid losses, and to hold them for five years if they have been obtained through exchange of securities received through reinsurance contracts in taking over the assets of an insolvent company.

Possibilities Under Law.

This provision would enable the General American Life in St. Louis to hold unauthorized securities in the old Missouri State Life portfolio and the Kansas City Life to hold such securities as may have been in the Continental Life portfolio, giving the companies time to work out the assets without being forced to a quick sale at possibly a loss, which could be avoided in a sale later.

Under the present law, the capital, reserve and surplus funds of life insurance companies may be invested in Government, State and municipal bonds and in the bonds of any subdivision of the State, in loans on real estate, the bonds of private corporations and in bonds of public or quasi-public corporations.

There is no limitation of the proportion of the capital and surplus which may be invested in any one of these classifications. An insurance company under the law could have all its funds invested in real estate mortgages or in United States bonds, or in railroad bonds, or in any single type of securities.

The only restrictions are in investments in bonds of private corporations, the law requiring that the bonds must have been issued at least five years prior to the time of their acquisition and must not have defaulted in interest within that time.

One provision of the present law, however, is that not to exceed 10 per cent of the capital and surplus of a company shall be invested in any single loan on real estate or in the bonds of any one private, public or quasi-public corporation.

Larger Single Investment.

The Shockley bill permits an investment of 20 per cent in a single loan on real estate or in the bonds of any county, city, school district or in the bonds or other evidences of indebtedness of any public utility, industrial or railroad corporation whose securities are held proper under the terms of the act.

In setting out the types of securities in which insurance funds may be invested, all of which with unimportant exceptions are included under the more general terms of the present law, restrictive provisions are included. Railroad underlying bonds may be accepted only if the net income of the road for each of three years has been at least twice the annual interest on the issue in question and any senior to it, and railroad mortgage bonds only if the net income for each of three years has been at least one and three-quarters times the annual interest on the total funded debt.

Equipment trust certificates are made legal for investment only if the railroad has not defaulted on any of its funded debt in the previous five years.

Utility bonds may be accepted only if the company issuing them is an operating company and has annual operating revenues of at least $200,000, has not defaulted on any obligations within three years, and has had a net income of at least one and three-quarters times the annual interest on the issue to be purchased and all senior to it.

Securities of private corporations are limited to those having annual gross earnings of at least $1,000,000 and having current assets at least three times the total current liabilities.

Realty Loan Limitations.

Only first lien real estate securities are acceptable, and then the property must have a value of 50 per cent more than the loan.

The limitations placed on investments in the several types as set out in the bill are:

Thirty per cent of the total value of admitted assets, which means the investments which are authorized by law, in any type of railroad securities, receivers' certificates or investment trust certificates.

Thirty per cent in securities of operating utility corporations.

Twenty per cent in securities of private corporations.

Thirty per cent in county, city, school district or other political subdivision bonds.

Fifty per cent in real estate securities.

The act is substantially the same as the investment section of the insurance code which Superintendent of Insurance O'Malley caused to be introduced in the Senate two years ago, and which failed of passage.

NAVY MAN'S WIFE ATTACKED, SHE SAYS

Authorities Investigating Honolulu Woman's Story of Assault After Party.

By the Associated Press.

HONOLULU, Feb. 16.—Mrs. Bennett S. Copping, 24-year-old wife of a submarine commander, reported to police today that she was seized by a man in her hotel cottage yesterday morning, dragged across 75 feet of open yard into a garage and attacked.

When Dr. Henry M. Akina, assistant city-county physician, announced after two examinations there was no indication she had been attacked, police questioned her.

Mrs. Copping was born and reared in the Philippines, where she married Lieut. Copping seven years ago. She said that as she left her hotel room at 5 o'clock yesterday morning, some hours after a drinking party, a man appeared in the hallway and seized her by the throat with both hands. Mrs. Copping said she lost consciousness. She said she recovered in the garage as her assailant was leaving. The man was dark-haired, tall and wore a gray sweater and dark trousers, she said.

She said she had been drinking and was unable to give a more detailed description.

A third medical examination was rdered to determine whether bruises on her throat indicated she was choked sufficiently to cause her to lose consciousness. Her arms and feet were also bruised.

Attempting to trace Mrs. Copping's movements Sunday, police questioned two young Navy officers and a Honolulu nurse.

They said they accompanied her to her hotel Sunday evening from a drinking party at Pearl Harbor, where the United States naval base is situated. Lieut. Copping, commander of the submarine S-28, had preceded them to the hotel and was asleep, they said.

DIVIDING PARKWAY FOR NEW HIGHWAY 40

Traffic Moving in Opposite Directions to Be Separated for About 7 Miles in County

Plans for an additional section of the so-called superhighway in St. Louis County, which will be a new location for United States highway No. 40, have provided for a new departure in State road design in the metropolitan district. This will consist of a central parkway separating one-way roadways.

By this division safety will be fostered and an opportunity provided for beautification of the thoroughfare in recognition of the residential charact of the surrounding country. Each roadway will be 20 feet wide, accommodating two lanes of traffic moving in the same direction. The central parkway w be 30 feet wide for 3.4 miles, between Lindbergh boulevard and Mason road, and 20 feet wide for nearly four miles, between Mason road and Bellefontaine.

Chief Engineer Carl W. Brown of the State Highway Department said to a Post-Dispatch reporter today that appropriate planting would be provided for the park area. Asked whether a high hedge might be placed there, to screen the lights of cars approaching each other on the adjoining roads, as has been done in Germany, he declared this would not be necessary because of the width of the parkway.

A $335,654 contract for grading between Lindbergh and Mason and construction of grade separations where No. 40 will cross Spoede and Ballas roads was expected to be consummated this week. Bids will be called for later this year for the section between Mason and Bellefontaine. The new highway has been completed between Bellefontaine and Wentzville, St. Charles County, except for a bridge over the Missouri River at Weldon Spjrngs.

There has been no route chosen for the new No. 40 between Lindbergh boulevard and the city limits. The State Highway Department has designated the new express highway, between Skinker boulevard and Vandeventer avenue, as a section of the new thoroughfare, but has not attempted to fix a route in the four-mile gap between Lindbergh and Skinker, following a controversy several years ago with property owners of that district, who objected to various locations suggested for the road.

The State's last proposal for this section was to have No. 40 cross Clayton road at Warson road and run about a quarter of a mile south of Clayton road to North and South road, then to follow Clayton road to Skinker. A check by the Regional Planning Association about two years ago showed that the stretch of Clayton road between Skinker and Big Bend boulevards was carrying the heaviest traffic of the metropolitan area.

ROOSEVELT ASKS CONGRESS TO ACT ON FARM TENANCY

'CAN NO LONGER POSTPONE' SECURITY

His Committee Proposes Opening Doors of Ownership, Loans, Guidance, Retirement of Land.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—President Roosevelt told Congress today that "action to provide security" for the nation's farm population is imperative.

Sending to the legislators a report of his special committee on farm tenancy, the President declared that "we can no longer postpone action."

Four Points by Committee.

The committee, he said, emphasized these necessities:

"First, action to open the doors of ownership to tenants who now have the requisite ability and experience, but who can become owners only with the assistance of liberal credit, on long terms, and technical advice."

"Second, modest loans, with the necessary guidance and education to prevent small owners from slipping into tenancy, and to help the masses of tenants, croppers and farm laborers at the very bottom of the agricultural ladder increase their standards of living, achieve greater security, and begin the upward climb toward land ownership.

"Third, the retirement by public agencies of land proved to be unsuited for farming, and assistance to the families living thereone in finding homes on good land.

"Fourth, co-operation with state and local agencies of government to improve the general leasing system.

Text of Message.

The text of the President's message follows:

I transmit herewith for the information of the Congress the report of the special committee on farm tenancy.

The facts presented in this report reveal a grave problem of great magnitude and complexity.

The American dream of the family-size farm, owned by the family which operates it, has become more and more remote. The agricultural ladder, on which an energetic young man might ascend from hired man to tenant to independent owner, is no longer serving its purpose.

Half a century ago one of every four farmers was a tenant. Today, two of every five are tenants, and on some of our best farm lands seven of every ten farmers are tenants.

All told, they operate land and buildings valued at 11 billion dollars.

40,000 New Ones Every Year.

For the past 10 years, the number of new tenants every year has been about 40,000. Many tenants change farms every two or three years, and apparently one out of three changes farms every year. The agricultural ladder, for these Americans, has become a treadmill.

At the same time, owners of family size farms have been slipping down. Thousands of farmers commonly considered owners are as insecure as tenants. The farm owner-operator's equity in his property is, on the average, 42 per cent, and in some of our best farming sections is as little as one-fifth.

When fully half the total farm population of the United States no longer can feel secure, when millions of our people have lost their roots in the soil, action to provide security is imperative, and will be generally approved.

A problem of such magnitude is not solved overnight, nor by any one limited approach, nor by the Federal Government alone. While aggravated by the depression, the tenancy problem is the accumulated result of generations of unthinking exploitation of our agricultural resources, both land and people.

We can no longer postpone action. We must begin at once with such resources of man power, money and experience as are available, and with such methods as will call forth the co-operative effort of local, state and Federal agencies of government, and of landlords quite as much as tenants.

Based on Our Resources.

In dealing with the problem of relief among rural people during the depression, we have already accumulatted information and experience which will be of great value in the long-time program. It will be wise to start the permanent program on a scale commensurate with our resources and experience, with the purpose of later expanding the program to a scale commensurate with the magnitude of the problem as rapidly as our experience and resources will permit.

The special committee on farm tenancy emphasizes the necessity for action of at least four types: First, action to open the doors of ownership to tenants who now have the requisite ability and experience, but who can become owners only with the assistance of liberal credit, on long terms, and technical advice; second, modest loans, with the necessary guidance and education to prevent small owners from slipping into tenancy, and to help the masses of tenants, croppers and farm laborers at the very bottom of the agricultural ladder increase their standards of living, achieve greater security, and begin the upward climb toward land ownership; third, the retirement by public agencies of land proved to be unsuited for farming, and assistance to the families living thereon in finding homes on good land; fourth, co-operation with state and local agencies of government to improve the general leasing system.

The committee has very properly emphasized the importance of health and education in any long-time program for correcting the evils from which this large section of our population suffers.

Effect of Speculation.

Attention is also called to the part which land speculation has played in bringing insecurity into the lives of rural families, and to the necessity for eliminating sharp fluctuations in land value due to speculative activity in farm lands.

The attack on the problem of farm tenancy and farm security is a logical continuation of the agricultural program this administration has been developing since March 4, 1933. Necessarily, whatever program the Congress devises will have to be closely integrated with existing activities for maintaining farm income and for conserving and improving our agricultural resources.

Obviously action by the states alone and independently can not cure the widespread ill. A nation-wide program under Federal leadership and with the assistance of states, counties, communities and individuals is the only solution. Most Americans believe that our form of government does not prohibit action on behalf of those who need help.

LACY'S DISBARMENT SUIT PUT OFF TILL MARCH 22

Attorney Gets Continuance on Plea He Was Hurt in Fall from Horse.

Hearing of the disbarment suit against Verne R. C. Lacy was postponed yesterday until March 22 at the request of his attorney, Sigmund M. Bass, who told Special Commissioner Albert M. Spradling of the St. Louis Court of Appeals, that Lacy was unable to leave his bed because of injuries suffered Jan. 31 in a fall from a horse.

Dr. Dwight L. Jennings, 4101 Washington boulevard, who appeared after Commissioner Spradling asked if a medical certificate as to Lacy's incapacity had been submitted, testified that he had attended the attorney and that he would not recommend that his patient leave home for at least two weeks. Lacy was bruised and suffers pains in hips and back, he said.

The continuance was unopposed by James E. Garstang and Joseph H. Grand, representing the St. Louis Bar Disciplinary Committee in the action against Lacy in which it is alleged that he sought to corrupt a prospective juror in the trial of Paul A. Richards, acquitted by a jury of a charge of kidnaping for ransom, and that Lacy withheld more than $10,000 from the estate of Vincenzo LoLordo.

Roosevelt, Garner Extol Farley At Testimonial Dinner; Hundreds Of Democratic Leaders Attend

President Praises Party Chairman for His Loyalty, Honor, Decency and Good Temper.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—President Roosevelt and Vice-President Garner led administration officials and party stalwarts last night in a demonstration of regard for James A. Farley, joining hundreds of others in a testimonial dinner at the Mayflower Hotel.

In an address, after saying history would mention the Postmaster-General and Democratic Chairman's loyalty, honor, decency and good temper, the President asserted: "In all my years of association with Jim Farley I have never once heard him utter one mean syllable about any human being."

The President's Address.

The text of President Roosevelt's speech follows:

"This dinner to Jim Farley is on the part of all of us a very personal affair. It is not one of those official banquets with a formal list of formal speakers, talking on formal subjects into the small hours of the morning. It is not a political gathering, or a party gathering, or a victory gathering, or even a gathering to hatch home mysterious plot or pull off a coup d'etat.

"The only label appropriate for this occasion is 'Jim Farley and his friends.' Many of us have known him through the years. Some of you have been associated with him for only a short time—but all of us have a common regard, a common affection for Jim Farley, which transcends formality because it is based on the man himself.

"History has recorded, and will continue to record, a great many interesting facts about Jim. In due time history will talk out loud about his younger days of local public service to his town and his country and his state. It will talk about his organizing of campaigns; it will speak of his fine service as the administrator of an important department of the Federal Government. It may even add his name to the distinguished list of major prophets. Even as the name of William Jennings Bryan sometimes suggests the arithmetic of 16 to one, so perhaps the name of Jim Farley will suggest the more modern arithmetic of 46 to two.

"But when history is written, after all of us have passed from the scene, there will be something more important than the chronicle of success in accomplishment. Loyalty will be written there — that loyalty to friends which results in loyalty from friends.

"Honor and decency will be written there—the honor and decency which have done much to raise the standards of public service in our nation.

Farley's Good Temper.

"Good temper will be written there—the kind of good temper which is based on a sense of perspective, a sense of humor and a sense of forgiveness. In all my years of association with iJm Farley I have never once heard him utter one mean syllable about any human being. I have never heard him suggest reprisal——except once—when after a particularly vicious and mean attack he said to me—'that fellow's mother ought to spank him.'

"On the Saturday before election, in speaking to the workers at headquarters, I praised Jim Farley for the way he had taken things on the chin and had come up smiling every time. That means courage and there is not a man in the United States who has more deepseated, thoroughgoing courage than he.

"Back of it all ultimate history analyzes the cause of human actions and human qualities. It will, I think, agree with my analysis when I say that Jim Farley is not just a Democrat with a big 'D'—he is a Democrat in the sense that he has faith in his fellowman. He likes to believe that men and women are fundamentally decent, fundamentally honest and that if they are given a chance through democratic processes, their decisions will be fundamentally sound. Because of this belief he has made, and I hope through all the years to come will continue to make, a definite contribution to the success of the democratic processes of American institutions.

"Jim would not like it if I were to say 'We love him for the enemies he has made,' but I can tell him that we love him for the friends he has made—men and women and children, regardless of party, in every community of every one of our 48 states, including Maine and Vermont.

"I ask you to join with me in wishing health and happiness through all the years to come to my friend and your friend, a faithful servant of the people of our republic, Jim Farley."

$10-a-Plate Dinner.

The chief executive sat in the banquet between Farley and Vice-President Garner, toastmaster. The crowd overflower the dining room. Tables were placed in two smaller rooms and a lobby to care for all those who wanted to eat guinea hen at $10 a plate with the Democratic leader.

Responding to the President's speech, Farley said: "I do not consider this a tribute to me personally. I am merely being used as a symbol to give you an opportunity to express the appreciation of 27,000,000 people who made possible the retention of our great President in office."

The election victory would not have been possible, he said, without the help of the assistants at national headquarters and workers in the rank and file.

Vice-President Garner also paid a tribute to Farley, saying:

"He is an honest man. That's saying a lot when you say a man's honest politically."

Others who spoke praiseworthy words for the Democratic Chairman were Governors Murphy of Michigan, Rivers of Georgia and Earle of Pennsylvania and Mayor Kelly of Chicago.

Reference to President Roosevelt's judicial reorganization program brought cheers when Gov. Earle announced receipt of a telegram that the State's house of Representatives had adopted a resolution approving the court proposals.

BAR COMMITTEE TO STUDY STATE JUDICIARY SYSTEM

Group to Be Named to Look Into Plan for Appointment of Missouri Judges.

A committee of the Missouri Bar Association will be appointed shortly, President Kenneth Teasdale of the association said today, to study the possibilities of amending the State Constitution to provide for appointment of Judges of the State courts.

Creation of a committee for this purpose was recommended by the Executive Committee of the Bar Association, meeting last week at Jefferson City. Teasdale said a number of laymen would be asked to serve on the committee in addition to lawyers who would include representatives of the Attorney-General's office and of the judiciary committees of the Legislature.

The selection of Judges by appointment would replace the present method of electing them at regular political elections. Details of the plan are subject to the committee's recommendations, but it has been suggested the appointments might be made by the Governor from nominees approved by a special commission, and that the question of whether the Judges should be retained might be submitted to the voters at regular intervals. Nomination of candidates for the bench at special judicial conventions, rather than in party primaries, has been suggested by the Judicial Council of Missouri, appointed by the State Supreme Court.

MURDER CHARGE IN KILLING OF WIFE WITH DYNAMITE

Accusation Filed Against Iowa Man; Prosecutor Questions Two Women.

By the Associated Press.

IOWA CITY, Ia., Feb. 16.—County Attorney Harold Vestermark filed a murder charge against Walter Rhodes yesterday, accusing the former roadhouse operator of tricking his wife into killing herself with a dynamite-loaded shotgun.

The County Attorney questioned Mrs. Mabel Skriver, waitress and former tavern operator, and Mrs. Myrtle Myron, wife of a Sioux City (Ia.) police Sergeant. Mrs. Skriver, Vestermark said, was the woman with whom Rhodes had been associating. Mrs. Myron, he said, has been living at the Rhodes home, while her son was treated in the University of Iowa hospital.

Mrs. Rhodes, 31 years old, the mother of two children, was killed a week ago when a shotgun exploded in her hands in the basement of her home. Her husband, who was one of her pupils when she taught school near Tama, Ia., had said they were going hunting and that the weapon exploded when his wife dragged it across the bed.

Authorities investigated when they were unable to find any shotgun pellets.

'SIT-DOWN' STRIKE PLAN CONDEMNED BY GOV. HOFFMAN

Jersey Executive Warns Lewis He Will Use 'Entire State Resources' Against Such Strategy.

CIO OPENS UNION CAMPAIGN THERE

Its Leader Says 'Every Weapon at Our Disposal' Will Be Used in 'Huge Open Shop' Area.

By the Associated Press.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 16.—Gov. Harold G. Hoffman warned organizers for John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization yesterday he would use "the entire resources of the State" to prevent seizure of company property through "sit-down" strikes.

His statement, issued a few hours after formation of the North Jersey Council for Industrial Organization, brought from Julius Emspak, 32-year-old C. I. O. leader, a challenge that the committee would "move in on" New Jersey and "use every weapon at our disposal."

Emspak, charging New Jersey was "a huge open shop territory drawing anti-labor shops and factories from adjacent states," said the C. I. O. had enlisted "about eight or nine" New Jersey unions, and expected "three or four more before the end of the week."

Vincent J. Murphy, secretary-treasurer of the New Jersey State Federation of Labor, speaking for himself, called the Governor's statement "deplorable" and said, "We in New Jersey have always struggled to organize workers, and we are not going to let ourselves be divided by an issue of this kind."

Seizure "Absolutely Lawless."

Gov. Hoffman, promising co-operation with labor "to secure greater benefits for itself and its members," said seizure of company property by striking employes would be "absolutely lawless and its occurrence and continuation in disregard and contempt of law and order would be impossible to tolerate."

"A labor union has no more right to take possession of a factory than a band of gangsters has to take possession of a bank," he said.

"The avoidance of the possibility of bloodshed is, of course, desirable, but not at the expense of surrender to, or compromise with, or toleration of, those guilty of such criminal acts.

"In order that the organizations to which I have referred may not be misled into attempting here the same conduct by which they claim to have achieved some success, and for which they have obtained immunity in Michigan, let them be warned in advance that such conduct will not be tolerated or permitted by the people of this State, nor by the Government which they have set up for their protection and the administration of their affairs."

Labor Council's Reply.

The North Jersey Council for Industrial Organization issued at its Newark headquarters a statement saying:

"We are not surprised at Gov. Hoffman's open stand as an enemy of labor. It is common knowledge that he is an ally of Frank Hague (mayor of Jersey City), head of the opposing political party in the State."

"The Governor's intemperate attack," the statement continued, "can find no excuse in the simple announcement by a group of established unions that they were opening a legitimate organization drive.

"Mr. Hoffman feels called upon to criticise the conduct of Gov. Murphy of Michigan in the auto strike. There is, indeed, a great contrast between the two public officials. The Governor of Michigan distinguished himself in the eyes of all concerned by his sanity, common sense and fairness.

"With casual claims of being a friend of labor and of disliking bloodshed, Gov. Hoffman gleefully announces his plans for a bloody attack upon the body of labor.

"Gov. Hoffman, standing guard over New Jersey's reputation as a haven for runaway sweatshops from New York and Pennsylvania, has not merely challenged our organization. He has sought to threaten us and all labor."

A bill which would facilitate collective bargaining and set up a State Labor Relations Commission modeled after New York legislation was introduced in the Legislature by Senator James I. Bowers, Somerset Democrat. "You don't see sit-downs in New York State," Bowers said.

The measure would make the public policy of the State the encouragement of collective bargaining and the protection of workers. A Labor Relations Committee of three members, paid $5000 each, would be set up in the Department of Labor to hold hearings, prevent unfair labor practices and supervise employe elections. The board's orders would be enforceable by and appealable to Chancery Court.

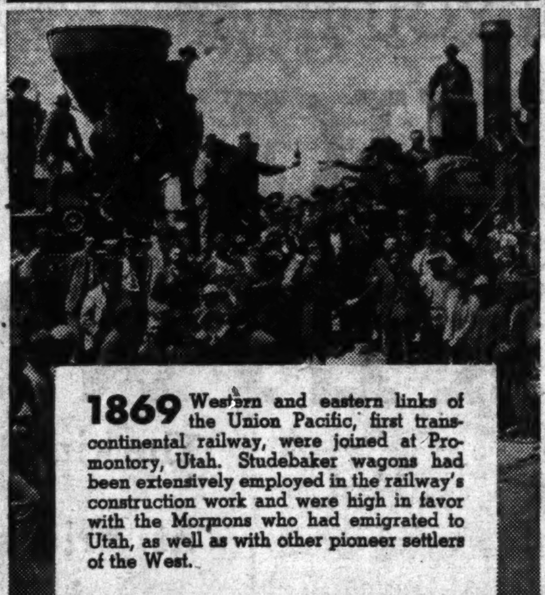
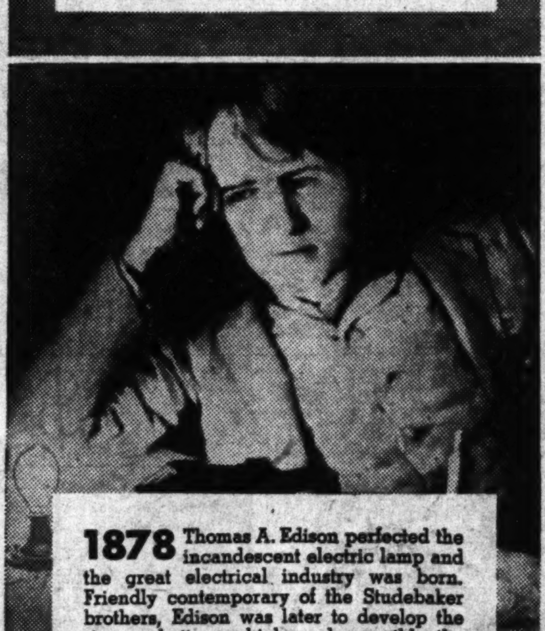
1853 Commodore Perry of the U. S. Navy arranged a trade agreement with Japan whose ports had been closed to Western nations for centuries. In the same year, the first Studebaker wagon, forerunner of tens of thousands of Studebaker vehicles to follow, completed the hazardous 'cross continent trip to California's gold fields.



1869 Western and eastern links of the Union Pacific, first transcontinental railway, were joined at Promontory, Utah. Studebaker wagons had been extensively employed in the railway's construction work and were high in favor with the Mormons who had emigrated to Utah, as well as with other pioneer settlers of the West.



1878 Thomas A. Edison perfected the incandescent electric lamp and the great electrical industry was born. Friendly contemporary of the Studebaker brothers, Edison was later to develop the storage battery which made possible the early Studebaker electric automobile, the company's first "horseless carriage".

STUDEBAKER is marching ahead more brilliantly today than at any time in its 85-year history.

In 1936, Studebaker sales of passenger cars in the United States alone were 76% ahead of 1935.

And now come the figures for January 1937 showing that Studebaker sales soared far beyond the same month a year ago and exceeded every January for the past 14 years!

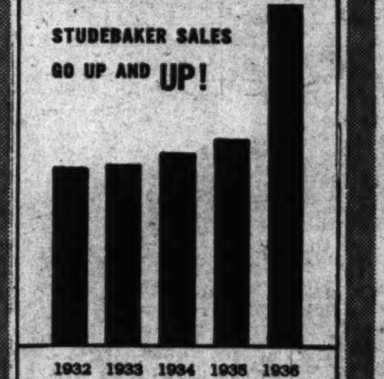
Old ideals plus new ideas!

Studebaker is making these phenomenal strides in public popularity because Studebaker is adhering steadfastly to the principles upon which John M. Studebaker and his brothers founded this business in February 1852.

"Always give a little more than your customer expects" . . . that was the Studebaker creed in the beginning. And it is the Studebaker creed today.

You see proof of it in the manifest soundness of the construction and the superb quality of the materials in the 1937 Studebaker line . . . in the amazing economy of this year's Studebakers with their gas and oil mileage that equals or betters that of smaller lowest priced cars.

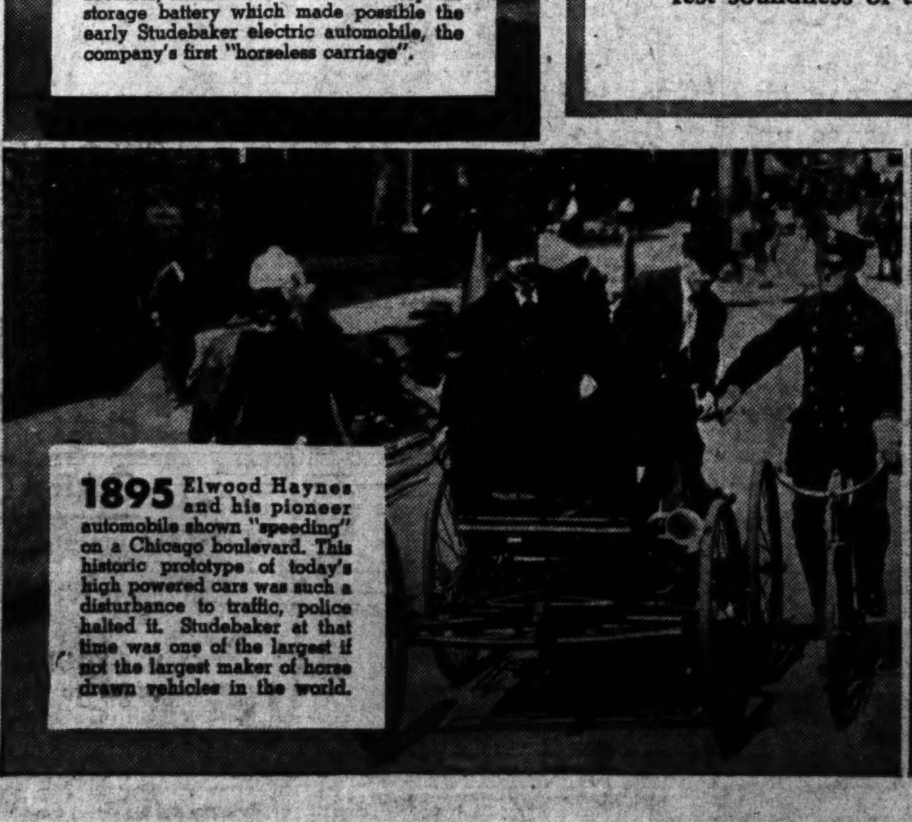
No wonder Studebaker is beginning its eighty-sixth year of public service so triumphantly! No wonder more motorists everywhere every day are calling the exciting new 1937 Studebaker Dictators and Presidents America's spotlight cars!



Studebaker sales are soaring year after year. 1936 was 76% ahead of a gratifying 1935. It was the company's best sales year since 1929 . . . and 1937 is starting brilliantly!

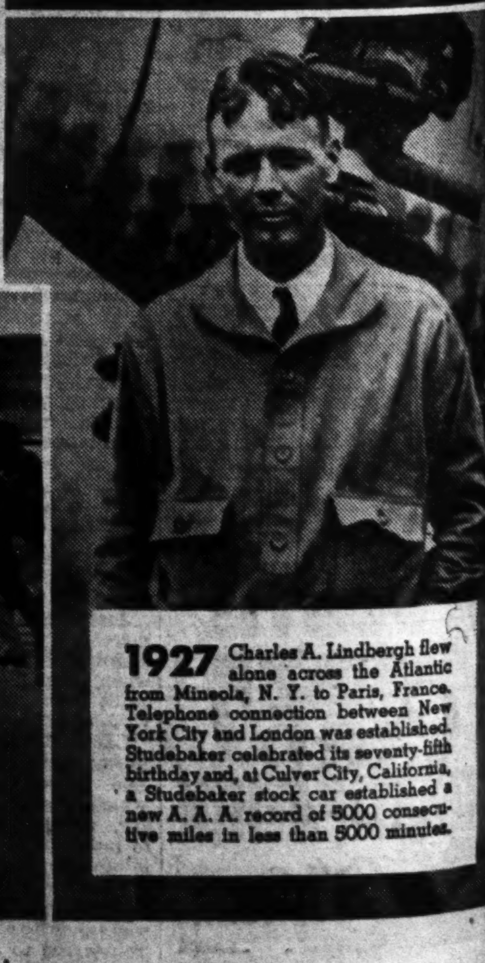
1898 Mme. Curie discovered radium, the Spanish-American war began and ended, Hawaii was annexed to the United States and Studebaker sales, worldwide in scope, amounted to $3,227,716.91 out of which $180,000.00 in dividends were paid. Plans for manufacturing motor cars were considered.

1903 Wilbur and Orville Wright made the world's first successful mechanical airplane flight from Kill Devil Hill, four miles south of Kitty Hawk, N. C. Production of Studebaker electric runabouts and trucks, begun the year before, increased substantially in 1903. Plans for gasoline propelled Studebakers were completed.



1895 Elwood Haynes and his pioneer automobile shown "speeding" on a Chicago boulevard. This historic prototype of today's high powered cars was such a disturbance to traffic, police halted it. Studebaker at that time was one of the largest if not the largest maker of horse drawn vehicles in the world.

1928 At the famous old Atlantic City racing track, now demolished, two stock Studebaker Presidents set a record for endurance that still stands unchallenged . . . 30,000 consecutive miles in less than 27,000 minutes. This record made under A. A. A. supervision constitutes an achievement in sustained speed surpassed only by meteors, comets and planets.



1927 Charles A. Lindbergh flew alone across the Atlantic from Mineola, N. Y. to Paris, France. Telephone connection between New York City and London was established. Studebaker celebrated its seventy-fifth birthday and, at Culver City, California, a Studebaker stock car established a new A. A. A. record of 5000 consecutive miles in less than 5000 minutes.

HITLER RESTORES CHURCH CONTROL TO MEMBERSHIP

NO ADMISSION OF HIS DEFEAT

Notice Says Decree Is in Line With Principle, "Law Must Rest on Will of People."

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Feb. 16.—Capitulation of Nazis to rebellious Protestant ministers was indicated today by Adolf Hitler's restoration of control to the Evangelical Church Electorate.

If the Hitler decree is carried out in accordance with an interpretation attributed to the Deutsches Nachrichtenbuero, the official German news bureau, it means the first major defeat for Hitler in his determination to bring all phases of life under control of the Nazi party.

In the face of a reported resurgence of opposition to dictatorship in church affairs—which already has caused ministers to suffer persecution—the Reichsfuehrer empowered Hans Kerrl, Reichsminister for Church Affairs, "to prepare for an election of a general synod" to direct Evangelical church affairs.

Attempt at Unity Fails.

Hitler admitted failure of a Reich committee to bring about unity in the German Evangelical Church.

The semiofficial interpretation admitted no defeat for Hitler, however, but presented the decree as in line with a fundamental Nazi principle that "all laws must rest on the will of the people."

"The principle must naturally, in so modern a democracy as the new Germany, apply also the church community," the news agency commented.

Contrary to literal readings of the manifesto, the interpretation went on to say the synod election would be conducted under church leadership rather than under Kerrl—which church circles said was an important point—and on church property.

The flat refusal of churchmen to accept a proposal by Kerrl that church affairs be handled through a state commissioner preceded Hitler's action, Protestant sources said. It was indicated in reports to Berlin that thousands of Lutheran and reformed pastors were ready to defy Kerrl.

News Bureau Statement.

The news bureau said the decree put a stop to "idle talk of church repression in Germany" and said "the state will refrain from mixing in the direction of spiritual things and also will exercise no influence in the election of the general synod to draw up a constitution."

This, the interpretation added, gave the church "a freer hand to preside over its own destiny than it ever had in such proportion."

PAROLE INVESTIGATION TO BE OPENED TODAY

Senator to Look Into Cases of "Worthy Prisoners Without Influential Friends."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 16.—An investigation of the penitentiary parole system to determine the need for corrective legislation will be begun by a joint committee of Senators and Representatives at a public hearing this afternoon.

The investigating group, composed of four members of the Penal Institutions and Reform Schools Committee of each house, was created by informal agreement between the two regular committees, and has no official status.

Inquiries of the sort planned in this case are customarily conducted by bodies specially authorized by resolution of the Legislature.

Three members of the Board of Penal Commissioners, Stephen B. Hunter, director; George D. Bryant, Parole Commissioner, and Paul V. Renz, Farm Commissioner, have been asked to appear at the hearing today, according to Representative Suggett L. Edwards of Mexico, chairman of the House sub-committee.

Senator Shea, who is chairman of the group representing the Senate committee, said the inquiry would seek to determine whether more consideration could be obtained for worthy prisoners who were without influential friends to intercede in their behalf.

The committee will inquire into particular cases in which alleged abuse of the parole system has been reported, Edwards said.

ADMITS FIRM'S BOOKS WERE DRESSED FOR RFC

George Ratermann Tells Why Salary Doesn't Show on Bankrupt's Records.

George Ratermann, former president of the bankrupt Meramec Portland Cement & Materials Co., testifying in support of the claim of himself and his brother, Al, for a total of $34,375 in salaries, told Referee in Bankruptcy John A. Hope yesterday that mention of the compensation to which they were entitled had been omitted from the firm's books in order to make a good financial showing in its application for a $250,000 Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan.

Hans Wulff, attorney for Elmer E. Pearcy, liquidating trustee of the company, is objecting to their applications on the ground that, under the by-laws, members of the board of directors were entitled to no salary unless it was fixed in advance by the board.

Al Ratermann, who was secretary, claims $5625 for superintending services and actual labor performed from April 1, 1932, until June 26, 1935, when the company filed reorganization proceedings. George Raterman seeks $28,750 as salary from June 1, 1931, to June 26, 1935. The company was adjudicated bankrupt Oct. 11, 1935, after the company was unable to arrange a financial rehabilitation.

After Wulff had presented evidence in support of his objection, Referee Hope announced he saw little use in proceeding further, as "there is not a scintilla of evidence in the books or minutes to show these men were employed at any salary."

George Ratermann then explained that the board of directors had intentionally omitted mention of salaries from the books in order to make a "good showing." Waiver of salaries was contingent on approval of the loan, he went on. It was understood, he said, that if the loan were approved—which it was not—he and his brother were not to take out compensation, but if the loan were refused, they were to claim salary.

"The whole plan was made with a view of improving the financial condition of the company, which was very bad," Ratermann said. "The arrangement was not mentioned in our application for the loan, but we had explained it in full to the RFC officers, orally."

On Referee Hope's expression of dissatisfaction with the evidence, John L. Gilmore, attorney for the Ratermanns, objected to the Referee "prejudging" the case before claimants' testimony was completed, and moved that the Referee disqualify himself. The motion was denied.

In schedules of assets and liabilities, filed soon after the application for reorganization, the company listed assets at $488,883, including $4.18 in cash, equipment at its main office at 1701 South Vandeventer and other equipment at its plant at Sherman, St. Louis County. Liabilities were listed at $457,713.

ARKANSAS HOUSE VOTES STATE INSTITUTION INQUIRY

Will Investigate Surroundings of Children, Many of Them Said to Be Normal.

By the Associated Press.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 16.—The Arkansas House of Representatives by unanimous vote authorized yesterday an investigation of conditions surrounding children at the State Hospital for Nervous Diseases.

Representative Woody Murray, co-author of the resolution, said there were between 50 and 75 children at the hospital, many of them normal.

Most of them, Murray said, were children of inmates in the hospital. He said no educational opportunities were afforded them.

O. T. REMMERS URGES NEW BOND ISSUE VOTE

Wants Any Doubt Removed as to Validity of Riverfront Election.

Oliver T. Remmers, an active proponent of the riverfront bond issue who distributed the funds to both Republican and Democratic workers in the campaign for its passage on Sept. 10, 1935, urged in a statement today that the bond issue be resubmitted to a vote of the people at the "first available election" so as to remove any doubt as to its validity.

The statement was in response to an inquiry made among proponents of the riverfront project by the Citizens' Non-Partisan Committee, which opposed the bond issue, as to their present stand on the question, in view of exposure of fraud in the bond issue election.

Long for Such a Project.

In his statement Remmers said that for the last 20 years he had been for some sort of riverfront development to stop the ever-growing and costly decay of the downtown area.

"I was for the riverfront bond issue and made speeches for it," he said. "I distributed checks issued by the treasurer of the Bond Issue Committee to the chairman of the Democratic City Central Committee for $10 a precinct and the same amount for each precinct in the wards of such Republican Committeemen and Committeewomen who were for the project. This was no secret. The press had full information on the subject and so published it.

"The Bond Issue Committee had a plan to sell. For that purpose salesmen were employed and paid the prevailing rate. From recent published reports, we surmise someone else had the job of selling the idea on the inside of the polls.

"I am still for a riverfront development that will beautify the front yard of our city and at the same time put 5000 men to work at a living wage on the project.

"But I am opposed to any improvement that is tainted with fraud. John Doe's house needs painting. Many people say so. But that does not give John the right to steal the paint.

"Honorable men and women labored for the passage of the riverfront bonds. I am sure they will join me in urging a resubmission of the question so that it can be honestly settled, removing any doubt as to its validity."

Like a New Trial, He Says.

He added that the situation was comparable to the verdict of a jury in a law suit, where, on allegations of error, the Court grants a motion for a new trial and orders a rehearing of the issues.

Remmers, a lawyer, is expected to announce his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Mayor this week. He is a former chairman of the Board of Election Commissioners, a former president of the Police Board, and has also been chairman of the Republican City Central Committee.

MUSSOLINI STARTS WORK ON ITALY'S FIRST SUBWAY

System to Be Finished in Time for World Fair Four Years Hence.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Feb. 16.—Premier Mussolini swung a pick today and buried its point deep into the pavement of Piazzo Bocca Della Verita, starting construction of Italy's first subway.

Streamlined trains are expected to start service four years from now, serving the thousands of visitors Rome hopes to attract at that time for its world exposition.

Five thousand workers will be employed on the project. The tunnel will run underground for four miles before emerging outside the city walls, to connect, at one end with the surface electric line to Ostia, Rome's seashore resort, and at the other with lines to Alban hills.

The route has been planned to avoid undermining any of Rome's historic ruins or ancient palaces and churches.

Each train on the new system will consist of three cars receiving power from a third rail. They will have a capacity of 1000 passengers each, a top speed of 65 miles an hour and a "rush hour" frequency of 40 trains an hour.

SEVEN FUGITIVE PRISONERS RELEASE THREE HOSTAGES

They Escaped from North Carolina Prison Farm With Captain and Steward.

VASS, N. C., Feb. 16.—Seven armed convicts who escaped from the Caledonia prison farm 200 miles northeast of here yesterday morning released three hostages unharmed near here last night and sped on southward in a stolen sedan.

The hostages were Capt. I. D. Hinton of the prison farm, W. L. Roberts, steward of the farm, and Walter N. Willard, 19 years old, of Raleigh, N. C.

Robert Smith, a convicted murderer, covered Capt. Hinton with a pistol in a cell block and marched him into the prison gunroom where the mutineers, three of them convicted killers, armed themselves with pistols and a shotgun.

They cut telephone lines and hastened away in a prison truck, but changed that vehicle for automobiles they commandeered two or three times in their flight.

The prisoners with Hinton and Roberts headed toward Virginia, then doubled back toward Louisburg. They took two cars, one driven by Willard, and forced Willard to accompany them. Hinton, Roberts and Willard arrived here last night, having been picked up by a motorist two and a half miles from town. One of the automobiles taken by the fugitives was found abandoned today near High Point.

CONFESSES SHAKING BABY TO DEATH BECAUSE IT BIT HIM

Lodger Held on Second Degree Murder Charge in Killing of 15-Month-Old Infant.

By the Associated Press.

ONEONTA, N. Y., Feb. 16. — Clyde Proctor, 27 years old, was held on a second degree murder charge today after the District Attorney quoted him as confessing he "shook to death" a 15-month-old baby "because it bit me."

The prosecutor, Joseph Molinari, said Proctor made his statement concerning the death of an infant son of Mrs. Thomas Hinkley last night in the presence of Chief of Police Frank N. Horton.

Proctor had been rooming at the Hinkley house on the outskirts of the city. The prosecutor reported Proctor said the baby "bit" him when he picked it up to stop it from crying.

HIGHER WAGE SCALE SIGNED ENDING KELVINATOR STRIKE

Workers to Evacuate Michigan Plant They Have Occupied Since Feb. 2.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Feb. 16.—A strike in Detroit plants of the Nash-Kelvinator Corporation ended today when representatives of the company and the Mechanics' Educational Society of America signed an agreement.

Under its terms, a minimum wage of 75 cents an hour is established for men, except in the lowest labor classifications where the hiring-in rate is to be 65 cents. Women will receive a minimum of 60 and 65 cents an hour. Matthew Smith, national secretary of the M. E. S. A., said the rates represented an average increase of 12 to 15 cents an hour for day workers. The agreement said that both men and women would receive increases of from 5 to 7½ cents an hour, based on average earnings, effective Feb. 18.

Stay-in strikers who have occupied the company's Plymouth road plant since Feb. 2, are to leave as soon as representatives of the company and the M. E. S. A. have inspected the plant. The agreement bars discrimination against strikers or union members.

HOUSE VOTES BILL TO RESTORE TREASURERS IN 86 COUNTIES

Measure Goes to Senate; Governor Would Fill Posts Immediately.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 16.—The House of Representatives passed a measure today to restore the office of County Treasurer in the 86 counties of Missouri in which it was abolished by law enacted in 1933.

The Representatives passed the bill, sponsored by T. A. Shockley of Pulaski County, by a vote of 141 to 9. It now goes to the Senate.

Shockley, in explaining his bill, said the counties had found it impractical to combine offices of the treasurer and collector. An emergency clause would enable Gov. Stark to fill the 86 county treasury posts immediately if the measure is enacted.

LOSES DRIVER'S LICENSE AND IS FINED $125

Norbert Steele Denies He Was Intoxicated and Appeals Case.

The driver's license of Norbert Steele, a freight checker, 5007 Vernon avenue, was revoked for one year when he was fined $100 for driving while intoxicated and $25 for careless driving yesterday by Police Judge Edward M. Ruddy.

The charges grew out of a minor collision Jan. 30 when Steele's automobile scraped the fender of an automobile driven by Mrs. Mabel Sisk, 4022 Cleveland avenue, as she was making a left turn into Spring avenue at Washington boulevard.

Steele, after asking police to arrest Mrs. Sisk, himself was arrested. Steele's testimony that he had had only one bottle of beer and was not intoxicated was disputed by a policeman who testified he was intoxicated. He appealed.

LIFE AT PRISON PICKED FOR HELEN BERROYER

Women at Cincinnati Workhouse Do Sewing and Laundering.

The Cincinnati workhouse, where Mrs. Helen Berroyer must soon begin to serve her five-year sentence for mail fraud in the Muench baby hoax, unless she changes her mind and elects to stay in City Jail here until her appeal is decided, allows its women inmates more freedom than does the jail here, but the discipline is fairly strict, it was said there today.

There are now 80 women and 53 men serving Federal sentences there, most of them for lesser offenses, such as narcotic and liquor law violations and interstate motor thefts. Of the remainder of the current population of 511 prisoners, the majority are serving short sentences imposed in city courts for misdemeanors.

While the privileges and comforts of the Alderson, W. Va., model Federal women's prison, where Mrs. Berroyer was sentenced originally, do not exist at the Cincinnati workhouse, there are games, occasional parties and a weekly movie. Women prisoners must clean their own cells and cell blocks and are put to work at sewing and laundering uniforms worn at the institution. They must get up at 6:30 a. m. and lights must be out in their cells at 8:30 p. m. They wear blue and white checked uniforms on week days and white dresses on Sundays.

Kitty Kelly, wife of the kidnaper, "Machine-gun" Kelly, was quartered in the workhouse for a few months several years ago, but later was transferred to a Federal prison. Federal prisoners are sent there, as in Mrs. Berroyer's case, because of the overcrowded condition of Federal prisons.

The Attorney-General's office designated the Cincinnati Workhouse as Mrs. Berroyer's prison yesterday after United States Marshal William B. Fahy was notified that Alderson could receive no prisoners for the present. When the fact she would not be taken to Alderson was published, Mrs. Berroyer wrote Fahy, asking to confer with him before she was taken elsewhere. She said she might decide to withdraw her election to go to prison pending her appeal, as she did not want to be taken any place where she would suffer hardships or be in contact with "hardened" criminals. She pointed out she had not previously been convicted of crime.

MISSOURI HOUSE HEARING ON STATE AVIATION SOUGHT

Maj. Doolittle, Col. Love, George B. Logan Give Views on Lindhorst Bill.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 16.—Regulation of intrastate aviation was recommended to a House committee last night as a way to curtail aircraft accidents and crime in Missouri.

Nine persons, three of them aviators, appeared at a hearing in behalf of a bill sponsored by Representative Will L. Lindhorst of St. Louis for the creation of a five-member bi-partisan commission for the supervision of aeronautics in the State.

Maj. James Doolittle of St. Louis, transcontinental speed flyer, warned committee members, however, that commercial aviation was in no position to pay the cost of the proposed State regulation.

Others who spoke were Lindhorst, George B. Logan, chairman of the Air Board of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce; Lieutenant-Colonel Philip R. Love of the Missouri National Guard; Oliver Parks, East St. Louis air school operator; George Parker and George S. Salley of St. Louis, private pilots; Ralph Page, manager of the St. Louis Municipal Airport, and O. R. Parks, former manager of the St. Louis Municipal Airport.

Chairman Drury said no action would be taken on Lindhorst's bill until after another sponsored by Harrison, chairman of the American Legion's committee on aviation, had been introduced. He indicated his committee would write a substitute measure, embodying parts of both.

SPEAKER CHRISTY DEMANDS ACTION BY HOUSE COMMITTEES

"This Delay Has to Stop," He Tells Missouri Legislators; Blames Chairmen.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 16.—Speaker John G. Christy today severely criticised lack of action by the House on legislative matters, and attributed delay to chairmen of various committees. who, he said, were failing to get billsout of committee. So far two bills have been passed by the House.

"We haven't had an afternoon session," he shouted, "because chairmen of the committees are not reporting out bills promptly. I want to tell the chairmen that I still have the power to remove them and appoint new chairmen, and I intend to exercise that right unless we start getting something done around here.

"This delay has got to stop. We all want to get our work done as quickly as possible, and we can do it if the committees will swing into action. Let's get some bills before the House and have some afternoon sessions, so that we won't be here indefinitely."

Members of the House, who receive only $1 a day in pay after the first 70 days of a session, cheered the Speaker.

Christy told the legislators there would be no voting on bills by previous roll calls. He said that was not done att he last session, during which he was Speaker, and it would not be done this time.

The Phyllis Wheatley Branch of the Y. W. C. A., for Negro women, is being moved from its present location at 709 North Garrison avenue because the building has been condemned as unsafe. The central branch of the Y. W. C. A. was in the North Garrison building from 1904 to 1911.

Mrs. Herman Duhme Jr. was reelected president of the Y. W. C. A. at a meeting of the board of directors yesterday. New officers named were Mrs. Robert Latzer and Mrs. Clyde McNay, vice-presidents; Mrs. Donald Smith, recording secretary, and Miss Mary Edwards, corresponding secretary.

Prudence Pevely Pointers

KNOW YOUR CHEESES

The woman who stays at home and successfully manipulates her husband's salary to make it cover the wide-spread needs of her family, deserves praise. She must not only be courageous and resourceful, but frugal as well.

Cheese belongs in the icebox of this far-sighted woman, not only because this is Lent and she is on the alert for meat substitutes, but because cheese is one of the best "buys" on the market. The Pevely Dairy offers three kinds of cheese—Cottage, Creamed Cottage and Old Fashioned Cottage. Here are two of my favorite recipes.

EGGS STUFFED WITH SPINACH, Cheese Sauce

4 eggs
1 pound of spinach
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons Pevely Butter
1 cup Pevely Milk
1 cup Pevely Creamed Cottage Cheese
1¾ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon Worcestershire Sauce
½ teaspoon paprika
6 drops tabasco sauce

Boil eggs for 20 minutes, remove shells. When eggs are cold, cut in halves lengthwise and remove yolks. Wash spinach in several waters, pick over carefully, then place in a saucepan with a cup of water. Cover and cook until tender. Drain well and chop until spinach is very fine. Season with 1 teaspoon of salt, 1 tablespoon butter and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Keep hot until ready to use.

Make a cream sauce by melting butter, adding flour and stirring until smooth then adding milk and stirring until mixture thickens. Place in double boiler, add cream cheese and seasonings, and beat with Dover egg beater until mixture is well blended.

Cut four slices of bread into rings (3 inches in diameter). Toast, and on each piece place 2 of the halved egg whites. Fill each half with 1½ tablespoons of the spinach, pour ¼ of the sauce over each portion and garnish with egg yolks which have been put through a fine sieve or potato ricer. This is a delicious first course for a luncheon.

Yield: Four servings.

LIME AND CHEESE DELIGHT

1 package lime Jello
1½ cups hot water
½ cup Pevely Creamed Cottage Cheese
1½ cups crushed pineapple with juice
1/16 teaspoon tabasco sauce
¼ teaspoon salt

Dissolve Jello in hot water. Mix other ingredients together, add dissolved Jello and place in quart melon mould. Put in icebox to congeal. This salad is pale green and delicious. Garnish with mayonnaise dressing and paprika. Yield: 8 servings.

I will be glad to help you with your Lenten meal problems. Address, Prudence Pevely, c/o Pevely Dairy Company, Grand and Chouteau.

CHILD LABOR BILL FAVORABLY REPORTED

Substitute Measure Prohibits Sale of Goods Produced by Those Under 16 or 18.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 16.—A committee substitute for the American Bar Association child labor bill, strengthening and clarifying it, was reported favorably by the Senate Committee on Labor last night.

The substitute had the approval of representatives of organized labor, who had objected to the original bill on the ground that it was subject to varying interpretations, and Mrs. Mary Edna Cruzon, State Labor Commissioner. Senator Kinney, who introduced the original bill, also approved the substitute.

The substitute, which was prepared by Senator McCormick of St. Louis County and Senator Seelig of Kansas City, prohibits the sale in Missouri of all products of mines, mills, canneries, workshops, factories, which are produced wholly or in part by child labor either within or without the State.

"Child labor" is defined in the act as the employment of persons under 16 years of age in a mill, cannery, workshop or factory, and the employment of persons under 18 years of age in the mining or quarrying of minerals.

The original bill permitted the employment of persons between 14 and 16, and proposed to make illegal the goods they produced only if they worked more than eight hours a day and six days a week, or at night.

This proposed legislation is the substitute for ratification of the child labor amendment to the Federal Constitution which has been rejected three times by the Missouri Legislature.

Senator McCormick told the committee that he believed the committee substitute more nearly met the demand for abolition of child labor than had the original bill, and that he was satisfied of its constitutionality because, while it did not prohibit the sale of goods in interstate commerce, it prohibited their sale, if made outside the State, when offered after the original sale in interstate commerce.

Penalties fixed for sale of goods produced by child labor were fixed at a fine of from $25 to $500 for the first offense and a fine of from $1000 to $3000, imprisonment for from 30 to 90 days and confiscation of the goods for each subsequent offense.

Wife Sues George E. Crandell.

CHICAGO, Feb. 16.—Charging her husband "ordered her out" of their apartment two months after they were married, Mrs. Emily M. Crandell, 34 years old, filed a separate maintenance suit in Superior Court yesterday against George E. Crandell, 52, former vice-president of Montgomery Ward & Co. They were married Sept. 12 at Crown Point, Ind., nine days after Mrs. Crandell was divoced from Charles C. Dawes, a son of Rufus C. Dawes.

ORCHID SHOW TO OPEN SUNDAY

Shaw's Garden Exhibit Late This Year Due to Hot Summer.

The annual exhibit of the Shaw's Garden collection of orchids is scheduled to be opened to the public next Sunday, providing the weather does not become cold enough to prevent bringing the flowering plants into the garden from the orchid houses at Gray Summit, George H. Pring, superintendent of the garden, said today.

A designed background for the exhibit is being set up in the floral display house at the garden. The exhibit, late this year because of hot weather last summer, will include orchids native to many parts of the world and hybrids developed at the garden.

Japanese Clothes for Hitler.

TOKIO, Feb. 16.—To celebrate the conclusion of the anti-Communist treaty between Japan and Germany the silk association of the town of Chichibu, northwest of Tokio, today presented to Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler a set of Japanese full-dress clothes. The donors, who delivered the gift to the German Embassy here, remarked that the Reichsfuehrer now could compete with his ranking aid, Colonel-General Hermann Wilhelm Goering, in spectacular uniforms.

STARK DECLARES 3-CENT GASOLINE TAX IS ESSENTIAL

FOR CONSTITUTIONAL LIMIT OF FOUR CENTS

Advance of Present Levy by One Cent, He Asserts, Would Mean $15,000,000 for Building in 1939.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 16.—Gov. Stark told the new Highway Program Committee last night that the proposed increase in the gasoline tax to 3 cents a gallon is "absolutely essential for any plan this group may develop."

Speaking at the first meeting of the committee, which was authorized by the Legislature in accordance with a request in his inaugural message, the Governor said it seemed the time would be too short for the committee to draft a new road program for consideration by the Legislature during the present session, as he had suggested.

He thought that the Legislature should prepare a constitutional amendment, limiting the gasoline tax to 4 cents a gallon, for submission to the voters at the general election in November, 1938. This proposal, to replace the present constitutional limitation of the tax to 2 cents, has been introduced in the House.

"I don't feel so strongly about the amendment as I do on the 3-cent tax," the Governor said. "We stand to lose considerable amounts if we don't pass the increase now, to take effect when the constitutional restriction expires."

Association for Delay.

Referring to objection of the Citizens' Road Association to the proposal in his inaugural message for immediate expansion of the State highway system, Gov. Stark said "there may be very good grounds for delaying definite plans for future developments." The association has asked that planning be held up until a comprehensive survey of roads in the State is completed late this year.

Gov. Stark said the Highway Department would have available $14,000,000 this year for road construction purposes and about $1,500,000 for building emergency grade separations. In 1938, $9,600,000 would be on hand for construction, and in the following year $9,200,000, he estimated.

The addition of 1 cent to the gasoline tax would increase construction funds to approximately $15,000,000 in 1939, according to the Governor. He said that Illinois is spending $32,000,000 this year for building new roads.

Fears Long Controversy.

Hugh Stephens of Jefferson City, president of the Citizens' Road Association and an appointee of the Governor to membership on the Highway Program Committee, repeated to the committee the reasons why the association is opposed to highway legislation now. The principal argument is that planning would be premature before the results of the survey are known.

He said there would be danger, if the highway subject is opened to legislation that a controversy might develop which could not be solved in a short time.

Senator Kinney of St. Louis, chairman of the Senate Committee on Roads and Highways, was elected chairman of the Highway Program Committee. The 14 members include three from both the House and the Senate, six appointed by the Governor, the chairman of the Highway Commission and the chief engineer of the Highway Department.

U. S. VETERANS' PLEA AT BERLIN

Urge Fighters to Combat Idea War Is Necessary.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Feb. 16.—The United States delegation yesterday urged the International Frontfighters' Commission to "combat the mistaken idea" that war is necessary.

The commission, organized in Rome three months ago to bring together former enemies of the World War, was told by J. L. McCann of Tuscaloosa, Ala., that veterans of all countries "have a sacred mission to perform." McCann read a statement declaring "we must encourage every effort to make international co-operation more effective, but chief of all, we must combat the mistaken idea that application of force—of war—is necessary for solution of these problems." Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Nazi Minister of Air, decried "sabre-rattling" as a practice of "people who never wielded a sabre."

Additional $478,327, Subject to Penalty and Collector's Fee, Received Last Month.

Receipts of 1936 general taxes for the city, schools and State at Collector William F. Baumann's office up to the end of January amounted to $24,266,759, or 84 per cent of the levy of $28,729,072, it was announced today.

The bulk of this was paid without delinquency, but $478,327 was paid during January and was subject to a penalty of 1 per cent and a Collector's fee of 2 per cent.

Of the total collected, $11,162,000 was for the city's general purposes. This was $362,000 more than the revenue anticipated in the municipal budget for the fiscal year ending next April, but the city has assumed extra obligations for public relief.

UPHOLDS COTTON BELT PAY-AS-YOU-GO ORDER

U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals Sustains Ruling of District Judge Davis.

The opinion of United States District Judge Charles B. Davis, approving the pay-as-you-go policy of the Cotton Belt Railroad in purchasing new equipment out of current revenue, was affirmed today in a decision of the United States Circuirt Court of Appeals.

Judge Davis had approved an order sought by Trustee Berryman Henwood authorizing the expenditure of $1,050,000 from cash on hand from earnings for new locomotives, air-conditioned cars and other equipment. Trustees for Cotton Belt bond issues contended that this was unfair to bondholders and that purchase of equipment should be financed by issuance of equipment trust certificates.

The trustees under the bond issues asserted that Judge Davis' ruling was far reaching in its effect on other railroads undergoing reorganization under the amended bankruptcy law. His decision, they said, was based not on exercise of the Court's discretion, but on a construction of Section 77 of the bankruptcy act. The language of Judge Davis' decision, they contended, showed that he considered he was bound by the law, to rule as he did and that he did not approve the "cash and carry" policy.

The Appellate Court did not decide this issue, however, but held that Judge Davis had considered all factors, including the effect upon the railroad and its bondholders, and had made his decision by exercise of his discretion rather than by construing the law.

Barbara Stanwyck says:
"Luckies make a hit with my throat"

"When talking pictures arrived, my stage experience on Broadway gave me my chance on the screen. Taking care of my throat became serious business with me, so I changed to Luckies—a light smoke. Of course I smoke other cigarettes now and then but sooner or later I come back to Luckies. They make a hit with my throat and also with my taste."

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, more than 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Miss Stanwyck verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. 19 KAYOS FEATURE FIRST NIGHT OF AMATEUR BOXING MEET

POTTS WINS IN 26 SECONDS IN HIS BOUT WITH BANTAM RIVAL

Three 1936 Title Holders Advance—Cagle, Billiken Football Star, in Action Tonight.

By W. J. McGoogan.

Only 13 of the 73 bouts on the second night's program of the second annual Golden Gloves tournament scheduled to be held at the Auditorium tonight are in the open division, which means that 60 of the contests are in the novice class.

None of the four defending champions is scheduled to appear. Three who fought on opening night won their contests. The other, Quincy Troupe, heavyweight, drew a bye and will not get into action until Thursday night.

Among the open contests on the program are four in the featherweight division; four in the lightweight; one middleweight, two light heavyweights and two heavyweights.

There are some interesting contests scheduled, however. Among them Les Cagle, St. Louis University football and basketball star, opposes Al Onafrary of Royal Arcanum in a heavyweight battle, while Monroe Harrison, Negro light heavyweight, meets Scott Taylor of the Future City A. C.

Shepard Gains Victory.

Among the three 1936 title winners who came through with victories last night were Cortland Shepard, middleweight, who won a decision over William Shead, Negro of the Pine Street Y. M. C. A.

Shepard, who won his championship under the name of Schultz, scored an easy, but unimpressive victory. Cortland did not appear to have done much boxing since the last tournament and while his defense was good his attack was not of the type to win the approval of the fans, who booed the decision in his favor. He won the fight, though, make no mistake about that, because Shead hasn't hit him yet.

Al Brendle, 1936 welterweight victor, boxing in the present tournament as a lightweight, knocked out Andrew Lylis, Columbia (Mo.) Negro in the first round. Brendle, 20 years of age, weighed about 139 pounds last year, but has shaved off enough to get within the lightweight limit for this tournament. He was too strong and clever for Lylis, who hit the canvas once for a nine count then got up only to be met by a smashing overhand right to go down for keeps.

Koberg Defeats Monaco.

Eric Koberg, Belleville, a bantamweight winner in 1936, now boxing as a featherweight, won on a decision from Tony Manaco, Tower A. C., after three rounds of the most earnest battling on the opening card. Monaco, a strong puncher, had Koberg in trouble in the first round, but was unable to put Eric away. The Belleville boy then came back in the second and third rounds and had Monaco on the verge of a kayo but couln't put it over. However, Koberg won handily.

There were 19 knockouts on the opening program of 72 bouts with a few defaults recorded in the three hours of tough scrapping.

It appeared that the fighters, particularly those in the lighter divisions, had more ability than last year and therefore knockouts were not so numerous.

There were the usual number of laughs always provoked in an amateur boxing tournament and among them was Pat Belrose, gangling South St. Louis bartender, who proved that as a fighter he was still the best ticket salesman among the entrants. Pat has been advertised as having sold 150 tickets, but that didn't awe his opponent, Pete Scott, Poplar Bluff Negro, who gave Pat quite a shellacking and deposited him on the floor just as the signal sounded ending the contest.

Scores 33-Second Victory.

So sure was Belrose that he had lost that he didn't wait long enough in the ring to hear the verdict but he just folded his tent and silently stole away as the taunts of the 150 persons he sold tickets to rang in his ears.

James Weaver, Argus Negro, scored a knockout victory in 33 seconds over Orville Campbell of the Italian-American A. C. Campbell, who did not appear to be 40 was certainly fat and fair and was no match for the well-conditioned Weaver.

That was not the quickest knockout of the evening, though. In the final bout James Dobbins, West End Gymnasium Negro heavyweight flattened Stanley Albright, Bandy A. C. Negro, in 28 seconds, and before that Forrest Potts, bantamweight disposed of Charles Fry, Columbia Negro, in 26 seconds.

Albright was knocked into the ropes on one side of the ring. He bounced off, staggered to the other side and back again whereupon Tommy Sullivan, very properly, stopped the contest and awarded Dobbins a technical knockout. But Eddie Vandeventer, the well-known Kid Bandy for whom the Bandy A. C. was named, jumped to the edge of the ring and argued with the referee that he should not have

WITH THE AMATEURS:—A Knockout and a Near Nap

The path of the amateur boxer is rough and, at times, short. At left, Eddie Pierson of Columbia is shown on the floor, knocked out by Willis McMullin of Poplar Bluff, in the lightweight open division of the tournament which opened at the Auditorium last night. Above, Ben Bruner of the South Broadway A. C., left, seems to be proceeding with eyes closed, in his engagement with Norb Coughlin, Neighborhood A. C., in the welterweight novice division. Bruner gained a decision.

Referee Counts Thil Out in Bout With Brouillard But Then He and Judges Say Champion Was Fouled

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 16.—Lou Brouillard let out a howl that could almost be heard back in his Massachusetts home today as he protested last night's foul verdict that meant a third straight failure in his efforts to win Marcel Thil's claims to the world middleweight boxing title.

In a bout that was almost a duplicate of their meeting a year ago, Thil retained his International Boxing Union championship recognition when he won on a foul in the sixth round. Some 12,000 fans protested loudly at the Palais des Sports last night when the referee, after counting out the French veteran, consulted the judges and then announced he was the winner on a foul.

Lou Is Through.

"I'll never box in Paris again," Lou roared today. "That's twice I've knocked Thil out and twice they have disqualified me. I didn't hit him low. I hit him in the stomach."

Some ringsiders figured the knockout blow struck even higher. They saw a smashing right land on the Frenchman's jaw just before he dropped to the canvas clutching his middle.

Apparently uncertain, the referee first tolled 10 over Thil, then went into a conference with the judges. Brouillard was on his way out of the ring when he was startled by the announcement he had lost.

A little more than a year ago, in their second bout, Thil was declared the winner in the fourth round under similar circumstances. Brouillard hit him what looked like a fair blow in the stomach only to be disqualified amidst vigorous protests from the customers. The French veteran, considering retirement, had not fought since then until last night. On that occasion a number of noted observers, including Georges Carpentier, believed Thil had not been fouled.

Press Okays Decision.

The faithful French press agreed today the decision of the Belgian referee was a just one and proclaimed it necessary to find "a more serious challenger."

Thil was leading on points when the bout ended. He started fast, apparently seeking a quick knockout, while Brouillard, over anxious, missed frequently. The Frenchman seemed to find the place too hot in the fifth frame, however, and slowed his pace. He was puffing in the sixth and his left eye had begun to swell.

RALLY IN LAST SESSION GIVES BEAUHULD DRAW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Aldo Spoldi, Italian lightweight, and Billy Beauhuld, St. Louis, fought to an eight-round draw before a capacity crowd of 6000 at the St. Nicholas Palace here last night.

The crowd booed the decision believing that Spoldi had the better of the argument. Beauhuld finished strongly, shaking Spoldi up twice in the final round, thereby earning, according to the opinion of the judges, equal honors with his opponent.

Spoldi opened up a cut under the Missourian's right eye in the second round and reopened it in the seventh.

Billy, who at present resides in Jersey City, unleashed a savage attack to the head and body in the final stanza and the Italian's knees sagged.

There were no knockdowns, though Beauhuld slipped to the floor in the first round partly from the effects of a push by his rival. No count was taken.

Spoldi, with several knockouts to his credit, entered the ring the favorite, but was unable to upset his less experienced rival.

By virtue of the decision Beauhuld remains undefeated in 31 professional bouts, having won 28 matches and holding draw decisions in three. Spoldi entered the ring at 134¾ against 136 for Beauhuld.

Changes Made in Football Rules Are Approved by a Big Majority Of Country's Leading Coaches

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Almost without dissent, America's leading football coaches climbed into the cheering section today to give "three long ones" for the National Football Rules Committee.

While there were a few minor objections to the results of the committee's annual meeting at Absecon, N. J., over the last week-end, an Associated Press poll produced laudatory comments from most of the tutors.

Harlow's Oponion.

Dick Harlow of Harvard sounded the note of praise when he said: "Every change made was a good, sound one. The committee did a swell job. The note on pass interference is particularly fine. It clears up the rule greatly."

"The changes give officials more ground to stand on," added Ike Armstrong of Utah University. "Clarification on pass interference was needed for a long time."

Frank Thomas of Alabama, Bernie Moore of Louisiana State, Harvey Harman of Pennsylvania and Howard Jones of Southern California also chimed in with unqualified praise. The opinion that the changes won't make any "vital difference" was voiced by Wallace Wade of Duke and W. A. Alexander of Georgia Tech.

"They will principally make it easier on officials," said Alexander, "but will not have much effect so far as the players and public are concerned."

Satisfaction with the revision of the forward-pass interference ruling, a sore spot with the coaches and a subject of widespread discussion last season after interference penalties were called at crucial points in several big games, was expressed in all parts of the country. The coaches themselves suggested the change almost as it was adopted and they agreed the committee had gone as far as possible toward straightening out difficulties.

Harry Kipke, a member of the Coaches' Rules Committee who at1 tended the week-end meeting, explained:

"That rule is the hardest thing in the world to write. We think the supplemental note will make it plain to officials that no matter how much bodily contact there is, it still doesn't have to mean interference."

"The rule still fails to state just what type of bodily contact constitutes interference," objected Gar Davidson of Army. To this Matty Bell of Southern Methodist added, "It still will be a matter of judgment on the part of officials."

The requirement on numbering of players and the rule that kickoffs going outside will not be called back also met a favorable reception, although Jock Sutherland of Pittsburgh remarked, on the latter: "I think it's a little too much in favor of the receiving team."

As to "Screening."

The coaches also agreed the committee had been very fair in leaving the matter of ineligible players "screening" forward passes up to the coaches, although they stoutly maintained they never were guilty themselves.

The ruling on the kicking of a free ball brought a howl from Ducky Pond of Yale, whose 1936 star, Larry Kelley, made the famous "soccer kick" that stirred up most of the discussion. He believes if a player accidentally strikes the ball with his foot while trying to pick it up it's "a shame that all his efforts will be rewarded by the loss of the ball."

Elmer Layden of Notre Dame demanded a further change in the rule on punts where the ball is downed by a member of the kicking team.

Football Work Is Started at Local Colleges

Informal—very informal—football work started at Washington and St. Louis universities yesterday with only the Billiken freshmen of last year turning out and but a scattering few of veteran and freshmen aspirants at Washington.

At Washington, there was also some light baseball work which consisted of throwing and catching in the gymnasium. Coach Gale Bullman had intended going out of doors with his baseballers but the weather turned cold in the late afternoon and he stuck to the indoors.

Only veteran football Bears who are engaging only one sport were called out for setting-up exercises by Coach Conzelman. The idea is to have the centers do a lot of passing to encourage accuracy and to have them and the others run a lot to get their legs in shape.

At St. Louis University, about 15 freshmen of last year's squad turned out in the chilling winds. This practice will be under the direct supervision of Head Coach Muellerleile who, fairly well fixed as to his 1937 backfield, is seeking linemen to fill several vacated positions.

The Washington and St. Louis U. basketball freshmen will play the third game of their series before the final varsity contest which is scheduled for Feb. 23. The young Billikens twice have thrashed the young Bears.

The St. Louis University baseball forces will be called out by Coach Bob Bauman when the football varsity reports on March 1.

The way things shape out at this early stage, Washington football coaches will concentrate on finding backs and those at St. Louis will have their eyes peeled for linemen.

Appling Offered $17,500 by Sox

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 16.

LUKE APPLING, who won the American League batting title last season, is going to become the highest paid of all ball players developed by the Chicago White Sox.

Appling, who has asked a $20,000 contract for 1937, yesterday was offered $17,500 by Lou Comiskey, Sox president, and if and when he accepts that figure Appling will hit an all-time high for players trained and brought up by the club.

Comiskey, who previously had offered Appling a $15,000 salary plus a $2500 bonus-attendance clause, said he expected Appling's signed contract within a few days.

Basket Tourney Entries.

Entries for the Ozark A. A. U. basketball tournament, to be held March 1-6 at Sherman Park, will close Feb. 24, William Hellmich, chairman of the association committee, announced today.

WRAY'S COLUMN

BABE RUTH has fame and wealth and nothing to worry him more nerve-wracking than his daily round of golf. And yet the Bambino is grousing. Having endured the spotlight's glare and liked it, for a quarter of a century, he now misses it. Perhaps he sees the fate of the forgotten man overtaking him.

Babe, his interviews seem to imply, thinks that perhaps baseball has not done so well by him as it should have. To be manager of a big league club was Ruth's ambition. That owners did not bid for his services was surprising and galling to him. A figure of his consequence to be pitchforked into oblivion—that was the impossible, to Babe. But it happened, or nearly so.

But perhaps Ruth is taking the wrong viewpoint. Owners can't afford to make costly experiments with untried leaders. Babe, too, had shown on several occasions, a lack of poise that might prove distressing to a major league club's pennant hopes. Offered a minor league job, Babe poohpoohed it. It was "big league or bust" with him.

Now it's a bust.

But Babe has really no grievance. He was very highly paid for his special services. If he continues to complain about his hard lot he probably will find that, as far as his public is concerned, sympathy can be found only in the dictionary.

Recalling Mr. Londos.

JIMMY LONDOS, for six years the king of the huff and puff industry, who has been flattening South African wrestlers for some months, will be seen again on the mat in this country. A news item has it that Jeemy has been recalled by the leaders of the wrestling game, because of lack of color in current title claimants.

Londos wowed his public from Maine to California and filled his exchequer with something like a million dollars profit. He had color and personality and crowds turned out to see him, although they hissed him for "getting on his bicycle" and running, as almost invariably happened in his exhibitions.

Apparently the Caseys, the O'Mahonys, the Dettons, the Levins, the Marshalls and others have not been able to put themselves over big. Receipts, with rare exceptions, have fallen away to emaciation. Now Londos is being brought back to restore patronage.

He may do it. But probably he will find difficulty in reviving interest in a public that seems to have been disillusioned by the revelations in the Shikat case at Toledo.

Nor can you expect them to take seriously a sport which weakens its own reputation for sincerity with such cheap publicity stunts as those put on by "Whiskers" Savage, Gorilla Machias, Dynamite Dawkins, "I Can Take It" Stratton, Man Mountain Dean and others.

The return of Londos may serve only to show that wrestling has lost some of its grip on the public.

Then and Now.

"YOU complain that the present day fighter is 'picked too green,'" writes a correspondent. "But you probably forget that the record book will show that Jim Jeffries, esteemed by many to be the greatest all-time fighter, had only 21 fights during his entire career. Almost any boxer of today has that many battles within a year or two. Laugh off that one."

As far as the record book goes, that's true about Jeffries. But what the correspondent forgets is that Jeffries fought more fights in training, real fights, than the modern boxer will encounter during his entire career.

In old times, fighters learned their stuff in private. In training, many severe settos were battled. A fighter did not take on an innocuous sparring partner when preparing for a championship battle. He had opponents who could extend him, even teach him. Their training bouts were fights.

Tommy Ryan, training for a title fight, had Kid McCoy for a sparring mate.

The late Jim Corbett could hav told us a lot about James J. Je fries, who came into his camp t help him prepare for the titl fight with Fitzsimmons. Jeffri found in that camp that he h power that Corbett, in spite o all his cleverness, lacked. T training bouts were in a way re tests of ability.

TODAY a champion require several sparring mates. They are not supposed to have much ability. Or, if they possess some merit, they are not supposed to use it against the champion. The big shots have soft preparation for their shows, instead being put to real tests.

When Jeffries was coming u some of his training camp fight were probably tougher than many of the contests which the publi pays to see today.

If fighters of today would tak a leaf from the book of the oldtimers, they would spend mor time learning the fundamentals of boxing before embarking in the professional fight game.

Today any boy who can put up his hands and swing or hook better than the layman, thinks he has a ring career. The public all too frequently pays to see novices trying to get along, instead of properly trained professionals.

Don Lash Carries On.

DON LASH, Indiana distanc runner, is setting records du ing his current indoor campaign. This is the same Don Lash w was outclassed in the running Olympic distance events at Berlin, last summer.

The improvement argues favorably for the future of American distance running, because heretofore this country has been utterly outclassed by Olympic foes in all races over a mile.

The only hope of this country, in so far as maintaining its track and field supremacy is concern seems to lie in building up l long-distance runners. Lash's success may be an inspiration for upcoming athletes to go in for the longer races at which we have proved an international failure for so many years.

The United States breeds just as big, strong and enduring athletes as any nation. There is no physical reason why this country should continue to suffer defeats in the distance runs. It's all a matter of training.

Our boys have fancied the more flashing victories in short races. But the real test of a runner is not only speed but stamina. The problem is to try to interest American runners in that thought.

The Terrible Finns.

AMERICANS who viewed the Olympic track and field games at Berlin will not forget the impression left by those terrible Finns. In all the distance races they actually dominated the races so that it appeared they could have won at any stage of the races. They had the speed to remain together as a team a when they turned on the heat our Don Lash and other rivals folded up and fell back.

Finland got that way by training for distance races. American athletes do not seem to like the work and preparation needed to develop distance runners. Until that state of mind is changed, until our boys come to regard a victory in a distance event as a greater achievement than a victory at 100 meters, we can't expect to compete on equal terms with the great European distance stars. Don Lash may be a great runner in America but in Berlin, against athletes like Iso Hollo and Salminen, he was just another ham-and-egger.

If America is to win at Tokio in 1940, we will have to deliver a few points in distance events. While other nations are approaching us in our specialties, we hav been doing little to wrest hono from our rivals in their own fields.

Matte Will Miss Flyer Game With Greyhound Team

The Flyers left here this mor ing for Kansas City where they are scheduled to oppose the Greyhounds in an American Hockey Association contest tonight.

A victory for the Flyers would give them first place beyond argument, although the season has some time to run. The St. Louis team is now assured of at least a tie for first place and is only one victory removed from positive possession of the lead.

Cliff Purpur, forward, who was suspended from Sunday's game because of a fight Saturday night in Tulsa, accompanied the team and is expected to play, although Joe Matte, defense star, remained in St. John's Hospital due to a badly cut foot.

The Flyers will return home immediately after the contest and rest until Sunday, when they oppose Wichita at the Arena.

MIKE JACOBS SAYS TITLE BOUT WILL BE HELD IN CHICAGO

PARK BOARD TO MEET TODAY TO DECIDE ON ITS 'TAKE' OF GATE

Braddock and Louis Expected to Sign Friday—Natie Brown Ready for Fight With Bomber.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 16.—Everyone wore a broad smile along Chicago's heavyweight title bout front today—Mike (Scatter-Sunshine) Jacobs of New York had put out the good word.

The good word, said Jacobs as he stopped here on his way to Kansas City, was that "everything is all set" for a James J. Braddock-Joe Louis 15-round title fight here next June.

There has been, at one time and another, apprehension in some circles as to whether there would be any fight. But when Jacobs, who holds exclusive rights to Louis' services, said that everything was "all set," the boys figured Jim and Joe were as good as in the ring.

Jacobs' assurance that the fight will be held even induced a Chicago hotel chef to start planning a big luncheon for next Friday noon. At that time Titleholder Jim and Challenger Joe will sign articles for the bout, and there were indications the long-awaited penmanship party will be one of the best ever.

Park Board Meets Today.

Even the New York Boxing Commission has received an invitation—or at least one of its members has. Col. D. Walker was invited by Matchmaker Joe Foley to attend the ceremony, but Col. Walker intimated he might be among those missing. He declined to disclose what action the New York body has taken or will take on the Chicago fight in view of Braddock's contract to meet Max Schmeling in New York.

No one seems partcularly concerned about site or date, or at least that's what everyone is trying to make everyone else believe. The Chicago Park Board, controlling Soldier Field, was to decide today whether it would charge 10 or 15 or 25 per cent of the gate receipts in the event the promoters want to rent the 130,000-seat stadium. If it's 10 per cent the bout may be put on there June 15. If it's more than 10, the battle is expected to be held June 22 at Comiskey Park, home of the White Sox, where 75,000 fans can be accommodated.

Louis, who meets Natie Brown at Kansas City Wednesday night, will return here Thursday. Champion Braddock will appear at a charity show in Pittsburgh tomorrow before continuing to Chicago for Friday's ceremony.

Brown Ready for Louis.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 16.—Natie Brown insisted today there is no significance in the fact Joe Louis is called the "Brown" Bomber.

Two hundred pounds of eagerness, the Washington Hebrew desired to do even better in his 10-round engagement with Louis tomorrow night than he did in 1935. Then he stayed 10 rounds with Joe—but he can't remember seven of them so well.

Billy McCarney, Brown's manager, takes the blame for the knockdown Louis scored in 1935. McCarney said he sent Brown out to carry the fight to the Bomber. Brown landed two pretty lefts, tried it again, and the roof fell in. Louis hit him with a right and left as close together as Saturday and Sunday. Brown was mentally absent the next seven rounds.

McCarney assured the same error will not be made tomorrow night. Brown will make no errors, his pilot said—and Louis will do his share of the catching.

$25,000 Gate Expected.

Harding gave Brown a good workout, forcing the action and covering up neatly. Brown again displayed a versatile left, alternately shooting it straight and swinging it like a baseball hat. His right was little in evidence, although his manager maintained Brown can pulverize with it an opponent who comes to him.

If Brown fails to go the route, it will not be because he doesn't know his way about.

He has been fighting since 1928, the records, and his face, show. He has been knocked out only twice, once in 1930, and last year by Leroy Haynes. He took decisions over Leo Lomski, Kayo Christner, Eddie Simms and Hans Birkie, and drew with Mickey Walker and Walter Neusel.

Brown's expressed confidence is not echoed by the fans, who vision a quick Louis kayo. Matchmaker Frank Gatto predicted a $25,000 gate, of which Louis will get a 40 per cent cut. Brown draws 15 per cent.

Louis was expected to leave for Kansas City today. He has been training in Chicago.

Two supporting bouts were announced by Gatto today. Jimmy Garrison, Kansas City lightweight, is booked for eight rounds against Lee Bacca of Denver, and Pat Kissinger, another Kansas City lightweight, will go eight rounds or less with Mike Colnick of Detroit.

To Skate for U. S. in International Competition

Ollie Haupt Jr., 16-year-old St. Louis skater who graduated from the junior division when he won the championship at figure skating at Chicago last week, will compete as a senior, as one of three representatives of the United States in competition against Canadians in the North American championships, Feb. 26 and 27, at Boston.

Helen Stephens Is Invited to Mexico

HELEN STEPHENS, Olympic 100-meter champion of Fulton, Mo., and Dee Boeckmann, former St. Louis woman, who was the 1936 Olympic women's team coach, have been invited by the Mexican Government to visit Mexico City for two weeks of exhibitions.

In a letter to the Post-Dispatch today Miss Boeckmann, who now lives in New Orleans, said they will likely make the trip the latter part of February or the first two weeks in March, as that is the only time Helen can leave William Woods College at Fulton.

The occasion for the invitation was to promote interest in a national athletic federation formed in Mexico. Officials asked that Miss Stephens give exhibitions of the events in which she has won national championships and that Miss Boeckmann prepare athletic programs, training rules and other pertinent information.

Eight of 15 Rookies Pitchers.

Eight of the 15 rookies going to the training camp of the Detroit Tigers this spring are pitchers.

Oliver Haupt Jr., St. Louis Fancy Skater, Is Named on U. S. Team for North American Title Tournament

A rising star in figure skating, St. Louis' Oliver Haupt Jr. has been named as one of three men to represent the United States at the North American championships at Boston, Feb. 26-27.

Home from winning the junior national title at Chicago, the 16-year-old ice performer planned to leave immediately for the scene of the international meet, where he will be coached by Willi Frick, widely known professional, for the two weeks preceding the event.

Others on Team.

With Haupt on the men's team will be Robin Lee of St. Paul, national champion, and Erle Reiter of New York, runner-up.

Appointment to the team was the second highest honor Haupt could receive, the Olympic squad being his ultimate goal.

Only a junior this year, he caught the eyes of United States international figure skating committeemen, who decided that despite his youth he was the third best skater in the country.

The boy has achieved his prominence, followers of figure skating say, through spectacular dash and daring on the ice. Difficult jumps were a feature of his performance at the Chicago meet.

He has been cutting figures in competition for eight years. In 1934 he won the national novice title. He was third in the junior men's division and with Jean Schulte of St. Louis won the junior pair in 1935. Last year he was second in the junior men's event.

Every Two Years.

The North American meet, entered by United States and Canadian skaters, is held every two years. A team championship and individual title are decided.

Katherine Durbrow of New York, former St. Louisan, who was third in the recent national event, was named the third member of the international women's team. Maribel Vinson and Polly Blodgett of Boston are the other two.

Switzer Wins In Tourney of Golf Champions

By the Associated Press.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Feb. 16.—C. D. Ward of Rochester, N. Y., eliminated Carl Dann Jr. of Orlando, Fla., by a two and one score in the first round of match play of the national tournament of golf champions today.

Dann, regarded as a tournament favorite, held two legs on the Walter J. Travis Memorial Trophy and needed only a victory this year to gain its permanent possession.

Claude Harmon of Orlando, winner last year, eliminated Bruno Minkley of Buffalo, N. Y., 3 and 2, and Charles Whitehead, Plainfield, N. J., a heavily backed favorite, defeated Bob Archibald of Jacksonville by the same score.

Other results of the first round of match play included:

Joe Switzer, St. Louis, defeated Tommy Aycock, Jacksonville, 3 and 2; Adrian J. French, Long Beach, Fla., defeated Bob Walker, Jacksonville, 3 and 2; I. L. THREE HIGH SCHOOL BASKET GAMES TODAY

Three high school basketball contests are on today's schedule. St. Charles will play at Kirkwood and Country Day entertains Chaminade this afternoon.

VETERANS WILL REJOIN CRIERS FOR CUP GAME

By Dent McSkimming.

The stage is set for a lively second round soccer cup match next Sunday when the Town Criers oppose the Burkes at West Side Park. It is probable that Jack Simmerman, center forward, and Ralph Tracy, halfback, will return to the Town Crier lineup for this important match, in which case the Burkes will have to step their game up to new heights to win.

Simmerman, an exceptional center man, has not played a game with the Criers since last November. He quit the team then in a disagreement over wages. He had started the season brilliantly, scoring two goals in helping to defeat the Maccabees of Palestine in an exhibition match at Walsh Stadium. Tracy, a halfback rich in cup match experience, has recently played with a couple of amateur clubs and is reported fit for duty. Both have been carried on the Town Crier roster as eligible players. Mac Smith, a fullback who did not play in the first round match, is also expected to be available.

Cueto's Chief Worry.

The Burke club has no dearth of playing material. Manager Cueto's chief worry is not man power but field conditions. Much of the success of the Spanish team's short passing game depends upon the fitness of the grounds. A dry, fast surface, or nice sod would suit their game best. Last season it was the Marre club (now Town Criers) which eliminated the Burkes from the cup competition in a game played on a very muddy field.

No player signed now will be eligible for divisional semifinal or final cup games. Clubs have until midnight, Feb. 21, to sign men to be eligible for the national final.

Back in the days when the Corinthians and the Pilgrims toured the United States, these and other amateur clubs were regarded as on a par with professional soccer clubs in England. Not so today. England's amateur soccer is in the doldrums. Last Saturday, Ireland beat England, 5 to 1 in an amateur international series match, and on the same afternoon the French Army team beat England's Army team, 6-0.

In scoring 71 goals in winning 17 straight games, the Shamrocks have held the opposition to a total of 16.

Nebcos Favored.

Whether it is the Fredricks or the Nebcos that survive the Intermediate Division play-offs of the Municipal Soccer League, the senior group winners will have to treat the youngsters with great respect when they enter the title series. Three senior clubs will join with the Intermediate group champion in the semifinals. If the field at Carondelet is in good shape next Sunday, the Nebcos probably will win and tie up their series with the Fredricks.

The Schumachers and St. Edwards having already clinched their group championships. The only race still open is that at Fairground where the Stags have a big lead over the Breimeyers. The latter club, a late starter, will try to catch up in its schedule with a game against St. Edwards, Saturday afternoon and another against the same club Sunday afternoon.

Retain Fencing Title.

Defeating the St. Louis fencing team, 5 to 2, the Fencers' Club retained its city epee championship in a tournament last night at the South Side Y. M. C. A. Five teams participated in the meet.

UNITED STATES TABLE TENNIS TEAM TRIUMPHS

By the Associated Press.

BIRMINGHAM, England, Feb. 16.—Table tennis stars from the United States overwhelmed their British rivals in an international team match yesterday, winning seven matches and losing only two.

The American women players made a clean sweep of their singles and doubles matches as Mrs. Dolores Probert Kuenz of St. Louis defeated Mrs. L. Booker, 21—19, 17—21, 22—20; Ruth Hughes Aarons, New York, 1936 world champion, defeated Margaret Osborne, 21—8, 21—18; Emily Fuller, South Bethlehem, O., beat Lillian Hutchings, 21—17, 19—21, 21—15, and Miss Aarons and Jay Purves, Chicago, defeated Miss Osborne and Wendy Woodhead, 18—21, 21—14, 21—15.

Sol Schiff, New York, and Jimmy McClure, Indianapolis, won in the men's singles. Schiff defeated E. J. Filby, 21—19, 15—21, 21—15, and McClure defeated Bubley, 21—13, 21—19. Lurie of England turned back Abe Berenbaum, New York, 21—18, 21—18, and paired with Bubley to take a doubles match from McClure and Bud Blattner, St. Louis, 21—15, 16—21, 21—19.

The seventh American victory came in the mixed doubles, where Blattner and Miss Aarons beat Haydon and Miss Woodhead, 18—21, 21—15, 21—18.

DEARDORFF IS VICTOR IN BILLIARD EVENT

Leo M. Dieckmeyer will seek his first victory in the Metropolitan Three-Cushion Billiard Championships when he meets Mike Seimers, holder of the fancy-shot title, in one of the two matches scheduled on tonight's program at Peterson's Academy. In the other contest Harold Wills opposes Frank Benson. The first match starts at 7 p. m.

The tourney, in which Herbert Peterson is defending his title won in 1934, opened last night with Gene Deardorff, three times runnerup for the national amateur title, scoring a 50—31 triumph over Ossie Barron in 51 innings. Deardorff had a cluster of seven for the high run.

ELECTED SHURTLEFF FOOTBALL CAPTAIN

John Keith of Gillespie, Ill. was elected unanimously football captain at Shurtleff College for the 1937 season, this morning at Alton. Keith, a junior in the school, also was voted the most valuable player to his team for 1936 by his teammates.

The captain-elect also is captain of the present basketball team. Ted Johnson of Alton was elected honorary captain of the 1936 football team. Football at Shurtleff was resumed last season after a four-year lapse.

In the Tank.

ALTHOUGH, no doubt the fittest
Is the one that should survive,
Sometime the better mittist
Is the one who takes a dive.

With suspicion we might eye him
But he doesn't care a hoot;
For we can't identify him
As he wears no diving suit.

So before you put your bet down,
Don't forget that in the ring,
There is apt to be a let-down
When the build-up is the thing.

Hep! Hep!

The Cardinals are in the market for an official march tune. How about the "Grand Old Flag?" It's a grand old flag and it's now in the bag, too.

However, no doubt something original is desired, so the musically minded, regardless of race, creed, color or previous condition of servitude are invited to get to work on "The Gashouse Blues."

Maxie Rosenbloom ran out on a match with Lee Ramage in Los Angeles on account of a hurt finger, injured more than a year ago. It was evidently the finger that he counts the gate with, as he complained that the bout would not draw in competition with the Vines-Perry tennis matches.

Looks as though Jimmy Braddock had started some peculiar epidemic that nothing but a run-out powder will cure.

Jack Torrance, who was absolved of any complicity in the recent aquatic fiasco in Baton Rouge, announces that he will continue to carry on to the best of his ability and let the swans dive where they may.

A $ Mark to Shoot At.

Babe Ruth's record salary of 80 grand still stands. And Col. Ruppert is going to let it stand as far as he is concerned.

BABE'S record pay of eighty grand
The fierce assaults of time will stand;
For of the Bam it may be spoken,
When he was made the mold was broken.

Another Record.

The longest holdout on record is that of Mike Griffin. He returned an unsigned contract to the St. Louis club in 1899 and hasn't been heard from since.—Exchange.

HE WENT out on a sit-down strike
In eighteeen ninety-nine,
And since that fatal day from Mike
They haven't had a line.

And so we tip our hat to Mike
And keep his memory green—
The only lad who makes a pike-
Er out of Dizzy Dean.

See where "Lefty" Gomez visited the Yankee headquarters the other day. He wanted to find out if it is true what they say about salaries.

It looks as though it would be only fair for the Illinois State Commission and the New York State Commission to split the commission.

COAST CATCHER WILL TRAIN WITH BROWNS

Jim Columbo, blond Italian from Oakland, Cal., who hopes to be the catcher that Rogers Hornsby and the Browns will be needing soon, was a visitor at the St. Louis American League offices this morning, to get acquainted with Bill DeWitt, business manager.

Willis Butler, the Browns' Pacific Coast League scout, saw Columbo perform with semi-pro teams, decided that he was a prospect and signed him to a San Antonio contract. However the young man will train with the Browns, catchers always being useful in a training camp.

Columbo is 22 years old, six feet tall, weighs 190 pounds, bats left-handed and of course throws right-handed. He is unusually fast, admitting modestly that he can do 100 yards in baseball togs in 11 seconds. At high school he consistently ran the century in 10 1-5 seconds.

ST. LOUIS BOY GETS TRIAL WITH BEES

Seventeen-year-old Harry Kahre of St. Louis, who played on Municipal and Beaumont High School baseball teams, will report at the Boston Bees' training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla., March 1, it was announced today.

Kahre was ordered to report by Bob Quinn, president of the Bees. The player's batting average on the Muny League Flori team was .317.

FOUR OLYMPIC SKATERS SEEK TITLES IN MEET HERE TONIGHT

Some of the country's outstanding speed and fancy iceskating stars will compete in the first annual Ozark championships tonight at the Arena. The first of 23 events will begin at 8:15 o'clock.

Eddie Schroeder, captain of the United States Olympic team, entered the championships late yesterday. He and three teammates, Leo Freisinger, Del Lamb and Bob Peterson, will race against a starry field.

Marvin Swanson, national outdoor champion, and Alex Hurd, national 220-yard titleholder, who makes St. Louis his home, are expected to furnish keen competition for the Olympic stars.

Freisinger and Hurd finished in a deadlock for honors in the Silver Skates Carnival, held here in January.

Jeanne Schulte, Midwestern junior champion; Mr. and Mrs. Len Fogassey, Midwestern waltzing champions; William Swallender, former United States junior titleholder, Francois and Maudie LeMaire; Douglas Duffy Lamb and Eugene and Ruth Banks are some of the performers entered in the figure, fancy and acrobatic events.

An amateur hockey match between the Octopus and Watch and Ward sextets will complete the program.

SUPERIOR CLUB WILL BE BROWNIE "FARM"

Nine clubs now are included in the Browns' minor league farm system, with the addition yesterday of the Superior (Wis.) club of the Northern (Class D) League.

The Browns will work with Superior through Des Moines, the Western League link, Gerald Holland, publicity director, announced.

KING SAXON AND STAND PAT OUT OF $100,000 HANDICAP

SPRECKELS ACE BREAKS BONE IN FOOT AND MAY NOT RUN AGAIN

Seagram Entry Pulls Up Lame After Working in Mud—Texas House for Repeal of Betting Bill.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 16.—Injuries to King Saxon and Stand Pat yesterday brought announcements they would not run in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap race Feb. 27.

King Saxon, purchased by A. B. Spreckels at a reported price of $50,000 from Pat Knebelkamp of New York, broke a bone in one foot in the Glendora Handicap Saturday and may not race again.

Texas House Favors Repeal.

By the Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Tex., Feb. 16.—The Texas House of Representatives passed yesterday, 109 to 25, and sent to the Senate a bill to repeal the Texas law permitting horse race betting.

Horse racing under the pari-mutuel system became legal in Texas Sept. 1, 1933. Four major tracks have been established — Arlington Downs between Dallas and Fort Worth, Epsom Downs at Houston, Alamo Downs at San Antonio and Fair Park at Dallas.

If the repeal bill is approved by two-thirds of the Senate, it would become effective immediately. Senate opponents, however, said they had good prospects of defeating it.

Trainer Earl Sande has taken a call on Hilton Dabson for the $20,000 Flamingo Stakes, a three-year-old event which will be run at Hialeah Park Feb. 27. Dabson will ride one of the two horses, owned by Maxwell Howard of Dayton, which Sande will saddle. Coup de Grace and Sceneshifter probably will be the horses.

19 KAYOES FEATURE AMATEUR BOXING MEET

4214 Attend Fights.

The attendance was 4214 with receipts $1851.15.

Three rings were in operation and the bouts were run off in jig time. So fast, in fact, that the operation of the rings on the ends of the line was stopped, and the light-heavyweights and heavyweights did all their battling in the center ring.

One surprise was the defeat of John Wotawa of the Soulard A. C. by Charles Merton of the North Side Y. M. C. A. Wotowa, a strong competitor last year, was favored to win, but he hit the canvas several times in the three rounds and was a badly beaten boy.

Two deaf boys fought on the Columbia (Mo.) team. One won and the other lost. One of them, Clarence Jones, a Negro, was defeated by Lloyd Vasquez of the South Broadway A. C., while James Haynie won from Charles Cable of the South Side Y. M. C. A.

The event, sponsored by the Globe-Democrat, continues Thursday, when 88 contests are scheduled in the open and novice divisions, with the finals in both classes on Friday night.

ASSOCIATION CONCLUDES PRESIDENT IS SEEKING SUBSERVIENT JUDICIARY

BOSTON, Feb. 15.

THE following resolution adopted by the Boston Bar Association on President Roosevelt's Supreme Court proposal has been forwarded to Massachusetts Congressmen:

The President's message in those respects which relate to the Supreme Court of the United States, is so phrased as to convey the understanding to the people that he seeks to have the court enlarged in order that it may deal efficiently with matters before it. This is neither the purpose nor the effect of the legislation which he asks the Congress to enact. The court is abreast of its works. At the adjournment of court for the summer recess of 1936 not a single case which was then ready for argument remained unargued or undecided. No enlargement is necessary and the proposed act does not assure any enlargement unless the President is unable to control the court at its present size by forcing the resignations of six justices. This is clear from a consideration of the act which the President has submitted.

By the terms of this act, the Congress does not itself increase the number of justices on the Supreme Court. The act contains no expression or implication of congressional determination that the Supreme Court ought to contain more than nine justices.

What Act Provides.

The act provides that if all of these six justices resign within six months after its passage, the court shall remain at nine justices, but that if any one or more of them continues to serve thereafter, the President shall nominate, and, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint, one additional judge for each judge who has not resigned within the prescribed time or before another is nominated, and that the membership of the court shall be permanently enlarged to the extent of the number so appointed. This means that when a justice who remains over the six-month period subsequently resigns or dies, the President has the duty to appoint a successor to him, notwithstanding the prior enlarging appointment already made. Thus it is apparent that the individual action of each elder justice with respect to resignation or retention of office will determine whether the court shall be composed of nine of 15 or some intermediate number, and this without any further action by the Congress. In this way, therefore, the Congress will surrender to the elder justices the power to determine the membership of the court. In determining this membership, the elder justices, because of a conviction that nine is a more efficient number for the work of the court than a larger number, may feel forced to resign. So by indirection the President will accomplish his purpose to force off the court, able, and independent justices.

"Subservient Judiciary."

These considerations compel the conclusion that what the President is seeking is not an increase in the membership of the court nor to establish a retirement age for the justices, but the power in the President would render the judiciary subservient to the executive, thus destroying its essential independence and violating the fundamental principle of the Constitution that the legislative, the executive and the judicial branches of the Government shall be forever completely independent of one another.

This wise division of powers was made to guarantee to the people of the United States that there could never be an encroachment by any one of the three branches of Government upon the liberties of the people. To break down this division is to destroy the existing assurance against an interference by the legislative branch, or by the executive branch, with the freedom of religion, the freedom of speech, the freedom of the press and the fundamental rights of the people of the several states to retain inviolate every power which they have not expressly delegated to the Federal Government.

If in any nation the judiciary be subservient to the executive—whether that executive be King, Dictator or President—even-handed justice for the poor and the uninfluential becomes uncertain, and oppression by the powerful inevitably follows. Our forefathers abhorred judicial subservience, for they had suffered from it. Their abhorrence manifested itself in the provisions of the Constitution which place all the judicial power of the United States in the courts and provide that the judges thereof shall hold their offices during good behavior.

No citizen can confidently rely on the equal protection of the laws, and no state can be certain that it will not forcibly and against its will be deprived of its own sovereign powers, unless the Supreme Court of the United States remains as it has always existed, a tribunal free, independent and uncontrolled

Words of Washington.

If the time should ever come when the people desire that the justices of the Supreme Court no longer should exercise full judicial power, but that their decisions should be inoperative if displeasing either to the executive or to the legislative branch of the Government, they can amend the Constitution to that end. President Washington in his farewell address said: "If in the opinion of the people, the distribution or modification of the constitutional powers be in any particular wrong let it be corrected by amendment in the way which the Constitution designates. But let there be no change by usurpation for this is the customary weapon by which free governments are destroyed."

An attempt in Congress to pass a law which is contrary to the Constitution is not an act of Congress but is an effort of less than five hundred and thirty-two men to usurp powers never given them by the people. An announcement of this by the court does not justify any assertion that the court is blocking the Congress.

We hold these principles to be incontrovertible and an attack upon them to be subversive to the fundamentals of free government. Therefore, be it resolved, that the Council of the Bar Association of the City of Boston urges the Congress of the United States to reject the proposals contained in the President's message of Feb. 5, 1937, and in the bill accompanying it, in so far as they relate to the Supreme Court of the United States; and

Resolved, that this resolution be submitted to the Senate and to the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States for their consideration.

POPE PIUS TAKES TWO STEPS, LEANING ON SECRETARY'S ARM

Physician, However, Does Not Think He Ever Will Walk Normally Again.

By the Associated Press.

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 16.—Pope Pius took two more faltering steps today. He leaned heavily on the arm of a secretary during his brief effort.

The Pope walked for the first time since his illness became serious on Sunday when he took four steps without aid.

Dr. Amita Milani, his physician, who had strongly opposed the increased exertion, indicated he did not think the Pope ever would walk normally again.

The Pontiff granted several audiences during the morning, including one to Father Agostino Gemelli, rector of the University of Milan and dean of the new pontifical academy. The Pontiff enjoyed a good rest last night.

Father Gemelli, himself a physician, said the Pope was suffering from several fundamental diseases which is impossible to eliminate, but he has regained full use of his faculties. One helpful result of the illness, he said, was that it forced the Pope to realize he was an old man and had to take better care of himself.

Father Gemelli counseled the Pope not to presume on the few steps he had taken and to avoid all exertion.

MEXICAN PARENTS PREVENT ANTI-CHURCH STUDENT PARADE

ORIZABA, Vera Cruz, Mexico, Feb. 16.—Parents, armed with clubs, stopped efforts yesterday to organize a parade of school children in protest against reopening of Catholic churches. Learning of plans of teachers who, they said, were Communists, the parents crowded the streets and threatened with sticks and stones to break up the demonstration.

In its effort to prevent disorders, the Government denied the organizers permission to hold the parade.

COURT PROPOSALS ATTACKED, UPHELD IN OTHER STATES

PENNSYLVANIA VOTES APPROVAL OF PLAN

Delaware Senate Against It —New York Chapter of New Lawyers' Guild Indorses Measure.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Feb. 16.—The Massachusetts House of Representatives voted 124 to 92 today to adopt a resolution censuring President Roosevelt's proposal to add six members to the Supreme Court if Justices over 70 do not retire. The vote was on party lines.

The Senate has not yet acted on the proposal.

The resolution was introduced by Horace T. Cahill, Republican Speaker of the House, and was slightly modified by the Rules Committee which voted, 11 to 4, to sponsor it following a three-hour hearing yesterday.

Mingled applause and boos followed a plea by Cahill that the House adopt the resolution. He charged the President's plan carried "tremendous dangers to democracy." Representative Roland D. Sawyer (Dem.), urged rejection.

Leading the attack on Roosevelt's plan to add a maximum of six Judges if members of the Court over 70 do not retire, Cahill declared yesterday the proposal opened the way in the future "for a tyrant." If one President can "pack" the Court to bring about reforms, Cahill asked, why cannot another do the same thing to repeal his predecessors' reforms?

Cahill drew aplause as he argued that the Supreme Court should be the "umpire" to see that the executive and legislative branches "play the game under the rules set by the people."

The Massachusetts Federation of Labor, through its legislative agent, Kenneth Taylor, asserted "to vote for the resolution is to assert that a special group has a vested right in having the umpire on their side." "Wage earners," Taylor contended, "agree with the President."

Illinois House Debates Roosevelt Court Scheme.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 16.—President Roosevelt's plan to reorganize the Federal judiciary and enlarge the Supreme Court was debated bitterly in the House of Representatives today before the Democratic majority, by a 77-to-55 vote, sent a Republican resolution, attacking the scheme, to the Democratic-controlled Executive Committee. Earlier, by agreement, a Democratic resolution, approving the President's plan, was sent to the same committee.

The issue was forced from the Democratic side, when Schaefer O'Neill, Alton, introduced a joint resolution declaring the Supreme Court had retarded economic progress and urged Congress to enact into law President Roosevelt's proposal. The rules were suspended by agreement to permit immediate discussion of the resolution.

Delaware Senate Votes Against the President's Plan.

By the Associated Press.

DOVER, Del., Feb. 16.—Republican majority members of the Senate, over the protest of Democrats, yesterday adopted a resolution describing President Roosevelt's plan to reorganize Federal courts and possibly increase the membership of the United States Supreme Court, as "a violation of the fundamental principles of our Government." Any change in the Court, the resolution said, should be made by constitutional amendment after submission to state legislatures or to the voters at large.

The Democratic majority in the House of Representatives previously adopted a resolution urging Delaware members of Congress to support the President's reorganization plan.

New Hampshire House Calls on Congress to Reject Plan.

CONCORD, N. H., Feb. 16.—The New Hampshire House of Representatives today called upon Congress, by a vote of 215 to 147 to turn down President Roosevelt's Supreme Court proposal.

The vote, on a roll call, came after Republicans in an hour's debate, had called the proposed measure an attempt to "pack" the court and

SAYS JUDGES BAR NEEDED MEASURES

Points Out That Five Men Have More Power Than All Members of Congress and President.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—Senator Sherman Minton (Dem.), Indiana, said in a radio address last night that President Roosevelt's Supreme Court proposal would "unpack" a court "packed now by appointees of administrations gone and repudiated."

"Do you think these administrations are more entitled to pack the court than President Roosevelt?" he asked. "Do you think Harding, Coolidge or Hoover were qualified to pick Judges for the Supreme Court but Roosevelt is not? I think the court is already packed and this bill would unpack it."

Minton spoke on the Washington Evening Star's radio forum program.

Says There Is Need for Action.

Saying the court stood in the way of legislation to aid farmers and the constitutionality of labor legislation was questioned, Minton said:

"That there is a maldistribution of wealth in the nation is evident, when we recall that 3 per cent of the people own 97 per cent of its wealth. When legislation is proposed by Congress in an effort to meet some of the problems of poverty, bankruptcy on the farm, capital and labor, and the redistribution of wealth, we find it cannot be done. Men and women who ask only the right to live by their work in comfort, and enjoy some luxuries, find themselves frustrated and their Government powerless to help them. This is the picture that confronts us today.

"In such a predicament we survey our governmental situation and find a Congress and President freshly returned from an election in which the people expressed approval with what had been done and gave their mandate to go ahead. The President and Congress are willing to go ahead, but they are unable to do so. Why? Because the Supreme Court by decisions, more often than not by a divided court, says Congress has not the power to do the things it believes necessary to do. Under our system of government, as it now operates, five men on the Supreme Court have an absolute veto power over the legislative policy of the people's elected representatives.

Power of the Supreme Court.

"Five men on that court exercise more power than 435 Congressmen, 96 Senators and the President, and that in a field where they have no restraint except that imposed by their own consciences.

"If you were given an opportunity to do so, would you put all the power of government in the hands of five men? Would you do it where you had nothing to do with the selection of any of the men? Would you do it where you have no power to remove them?

"However, that is exactly what has happened in this country under our constitutional development. This tremendous power lies in the hands of five men, who constitute a majority of the Supreme Court. This awful power should not rest in the hands of any five men. I go farther and say that no five men should want it."

Declaring some had sought to "befuddle" the issue by charging that President Roosevelt was seeking the powers of a dictator, he went on:

"The truth of the matter is that the President has only joined hands with Congress in its fight to prevent the Supreme Court, under the guise of interpreting the Constitution, from dictating the legislative policy of the Government. . . .

"The greatest Presidents in this nation's history have been at grips with the power of the Court as they sought to serve the masses of the people and found their purpose thwarted by the opinions of the Court.

"Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt have been confronted with the issue and never faltered. President Roosevelt today meets with constitutional power the same challenge, but to make it work for the masses of the people."

"Checks on Dictatorship."

The Indianan said "here was nothing new in proposals to change the size of the court, pointing out the

CONGRESSMAN URGES MASS MEETINGS ON COURT PLAN

New Jersey Republican Suggests Quick Protests Before Administration Forces Bill Through.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—Representative J. Parnell Thomas, Republican of Allendale, N. J., urged today that mass meetings be held throughout the nation to protest against the President's proposal to reorganize the judiciary.

"A protest mass meeting in every town, village and hamlet in the nation which will permit the people to convey their indignation of such a radical scheme to their representatives in Washington is the most powerful weapon available for those who still believe that Americanism is preferable to Rooseveltism," Thomas said in a statement.

"The situation is far too grave for further delay. Administration pressure already is being applied to force the bill through before public opinion reaches a dangerous pitch that might force Congress to abandon support of the plan."

GEN. JOHNSON SAYS HE FAVORS SHEPPARD WAR PROFITS BILL

Tells Senate Committee He Doubts Wisdom of Enacting Such Law Before War.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16. — Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, former NRA administrator and a World War general staff officer, said today he preferred the Sheppard war profits bill to the other proposals for wartime conscription.

Johnson, testifying before the Senate Military Committee, said, however, there was "very great doubt" in his mind as to the wisdom of attempting such legislation in advance of war.

The bill, by Chairman Sheppard (Dem.) Texas, of the military committee, would give the Government power to conscript manpower and to control industry in time of war. It would place a 95 per cent tax on all income above the previous three-year average. Another measure by Senator Nye (Rep.) North Dakota, Johnson said, would "destroy the profit system." He called it "dangerous."

26 NATIONS VOTE TO BAR MEN AND ARMS FROM SPAIN FEB. 20

Neutrality Policy Provides for Enforcement by Naval Blockade if Necessary—Portugal Only Country Dissenting.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 16. — Twenty-six nations approved a Neutrality Committee proposal today to halt the flow of volunteers and munitions into Spain by Saturday midnight.

With the exception of Portugal, every nation represented on the comittee ratified the deadline set for midnight, Feb. 20. They also accepted a supervisory enforcement plan to become effective March 6.

The committee delegated the Portuguese question to the committee which last night recommended the bar on volunteers and complete isolation of the Spanish civil war through stationing of neutral observers and enforcement of a naval blockade.

Observers said the blockade would be extended to the coast of Portugal if that was necessary to make it effective.

Ivan Maisky, Russian Ambassador to Great Britain, who is the Soviet representative on the committee, warned that if full co-operation were not achieved his country would be forced "into a position of having to reconsider its attitude."

If Portugal refuses to co-operate, Maisky said, "It will jeopardize the whole structure of the scheme."

The naval patrol program resulted from the refusal of the Valencia Government and the insurgent administration to permit neutral observers to be stationed on their territory.

The ships, while having no authority to stop and search suspected vessels, would report their movements to the international committee and governments would be asked to penalize the owners.

Ships on the way to Spain would be compelled to stop at certain ports where committee representatives would examine them to ascertain that they contained neither war materials nor volunteers.

The plan also provides for more than 1000 observers along the French-Spanish and Gibraltar-Spanish frontiers to report to the committee violations which then would be made the subject of strong representations to the offending governments. The approximate cost would be apportioned among committee members.

The sudden belligerent stand of Premier Blum of France concerning Italian aid to the Spanish insurgents is thought to have influenced the committee to take serious action.

Blum warned Italy that France would not tolerate the "open invasion of Spain," asserting French patience is being taxed almost to the point of independent action.

Blum told the Italian envoy at Paris that the landing of Italian troops from a warship near Malaga, Spain, was a flagrant violation of Italy's pledges of non-intervention and was a potential menace to French communication with North Africa.

NEW PRESIDENT IN FINLAND

Premier Kallio, Agrarian, Chosen on Second Ballot for 6-Year Term.

By the Associated Press.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Feb. 16.—Kyosti Kallio was elected President of Finland by the Electoral College yesterday. Premier since Oct. 6, 1936, he will resign that post to become Chief Executive.

The 300-member board selected Kallio to succeed 75-year-old President Pehr Evind Svinhufvud on the second ballot, after former President Kaarlo Juho Stahlberg had missed getting a majority by just one vote on the first ballot. The President serves six years. Kallio, who is 63, had only seven years of schooling, but has been active in politics since 1904 as leader of the Agrarian party. He was an unsuccessful candidate for the presidency in 1931. A new Cabinet will be formed.

Revises U. S. Execution Methods.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16. — The House passed yesterday a bill to make the manner of inflicting capital punishment under Federal laws conform to the method prevailing in the state in which the sentence is imposed. Hanging now is the Federal method.

JAPANESE PEER TELLS OF POLICE TORTURE

Once a Victim Himself, He Demands Government Stop Practice.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Feb. 16.—Kisichi Kokubo, a Japanese peer, 72 years old, attacked the Government in the upper house of Parliament today for allowing police to torture prisoners to get confessions.

He described his own torture some years ago for an alleged political crime and demanded the new Government of Senjuro Hayashi end such practices and dismiss responsible officials.

Kokubo cited cases in which he said police hung their victims by the heels, poured water down their nostrils, burned them on the forehead and flogged them unmercifully to force confessions to violations of election laws.

When Kokubo returned to his seat the House broke into cheers.

The Minister for Home Affairs assured Kokubo the cases mentioned already had been dealt with and promised that such methods would be abolished in the future.

"The methods of torture resembled those employed in medieval days," the peer exclaimed in his accusation.

"The prisoners first would have smoke and water forced up their nostrils.

"Then they were subjected to an unmerciful kicking and finally would be branded with a red hot iron."

ENGLAND UNWILLING TO HOLD ECONOMIC CONFERENCE NOW

Prime Minister Baldwin Tells Commons Time Is Not Right for World Parley.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—Great Britain is unwilling to reassemble the 1933 world economic conference at the present time, Prime Minister Baldwin told the House of Commons today.

Baldwin said he agreed with Cordell Hull, United States Secretary of State, that revival of foreign trade would be the most powerful factor in averting war but that the time is not propitious for a world parley.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The name and address of the author must accompany every contribution, but on request will not be published. Letters not exceeding 200 words will receive preference.

Miss Johnson's Reply.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

SOME reply seems necessary to the County Court's statement on pauper relief last Friday.

My article on the subject was not in any sense part of a "pressure campaign to make jobs for social workers." I am heartily in accord with the belief that overhead should be cut to the minimum of adequate efficiency. It is unfortunate that efforts to obtain a decent standard of living for people in need should be construed as a job-seeking campaign. This is entirely untrue.

The court has had to labor against certain legal limitations in connection with pauper relief, but expenses have not "been cut in every direction except for charity," as was stated by the court. Nor is it true that the $10 a month assistance (which was considered an "adequate" and comfortable living) has been given to each pauper family, as was also claimed.

I sincerely hope that the court will substantiate its claims of more and better care when the plan is fully put into operation, but up to the time of my statement, this was not the case. In writing, I was instigated by the persistent and somewhat bewildered attempts of families to receive aid. There have been promises and investigations and promises. It is hoped that in the future there will be real assistance.

JOSEPHINE W. JOHNSON.

For Two-Chamber System.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A NEWS item reports that a bulldoze law against editors, passed by the Tennessee Senate, was killed in the lower house of the Legislature. This case illustrates the efficacy of the two-chamber system that the framers had in mind when they established our Government. If Tennessee had had a one-chamber Legislature, the gag bill might now be law.

A predatory clique would find it easy to control one body, and it seems to me that the two-chamber system is the better safeguard of democracy.

F. H. PEIPERS.

He Dissents From Dr. Seelig.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

ANENT Dr. M. G. Seelig's interesting article, "The Aseptic Technique in Surgery":

This able surgeon writes: "The next step in the procedure is for the operating team to clothe themselves in gowns that have been steamed, to don caps that are similarly sterilized and that guard against wayward hairs and flakes of dandruff heavily freighted with cargoes of germs, shedding into the wound during the operation. This is a substitute for the manifest impossibility of boiling the heads of surgeons and nurses."

I wish to differ somewhat with Dr. Seelig as to the manifest impossibility of the boiling of the heads of surgeons.

I maintain that the heads of some surgeons can be boiled, and I emphasize the fact that some surgeons' heads should be boiled, and boiled until they are well done.

DR. J. FELLOWS.

Can't Believe It of Roosevelt.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IF John L. Lewis were in the White House, we would not be surprised at the things seemingly coming to pass.

But for a man of Mr. Roosevelt's antecedents and education, it is unbelievable, unthinkable. And then to hear a demagogue like La Follette accuse the Supreme Court of usurpation!

At this rate, it won't be long before I would be punished for writing this letter and you for publishing it. One doesn't know whether to laugh or cry or to wish that one had died in the undisturbed faith of his fathers.

Private Use of City Cars.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

AS long as the city allows an employe to keep one of its cars in his own garage overnight, the privilege will be abused. The committeeman will always have a political excuse when some employe is reported for using the car outside of business hours.

It is common to see city cars parked in front of churches on Sundays, also at political meetings and at downtown bowling alleys. Some employes hang a cover over the name on the outside; others paint over the name with stove polish and wash it off before reporting for work.

All city-owned automobiles should be under the sole supervision of the City Comptroller, as they formerly were.

ONE WHO KNOWS.

He Voted for It.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

EVERYONE knew, nor did the President deny, that he had been disappointed in the Supreme Court's ruling on New Deal legislation. We all thought that if he were re-elected he would try to remove this obstacle in the path of progress. The people of this country are sympathetic with New Deal legislation, wrecked by the Supreme Court. Why call for a constitutional amendment? All but two states of this nation of ours voted decisively on Nov. 3 for what they wanted, make no mistake about that.

R. A. W.

A TYPICAL HEARST SCARE.

In a characteristic attempt to dismay its readers, the Hearst press, commenting on the President's proposal to pack the Supreme Court, publishes an obituary on democracy.

The Hearst press, by assuming that Congress will rubber-stamp the President's program, deserts the field of battle before the guns are unlimbered.

"Democracy's last stand was in America," we are told, "and now nobody here wants democracy, not even the Democrats.

"Wherefore, democracy through the world would seem to be dead and buried.

"Toll the knell!"

So democracy is dead, is it?

Well, not many years ago the Japanese, armed to the teeth and more numerous than the sands of the beach, were at our throats and had in blueprint seized the Hawaiian Islands and California. The Hearst press said so. It called this dream "the yellow peril."

Then, when it was obvious that the country was taking "the yellow peril" in stride, the Mexican peril arose. The Hearst press said so. It screamed: "Our army should go forward into Mexico, first to rescue Americans, secondly to redeem Mexicans. . . . If we have no right in Mexico, we have no right anywhere in the United States." Publisher Hearst had extensive mining and oil properties in Mexico.

But when the people refused to be frightened by enemies from without, the Hearst press turned to enemies from within. It raised the Communist bogy. We were surrounded by Communists; in fact, everyone who disagreed with Hearst was suspect, including teachers, religious leaders, Presidents and members of Congress.

It must have nettled the Hearst press to find the country calm and collected under the charge that many of our leading men and women were, in reality, tools of Moscow, so it began to flirt with Fascism.

Mussolini's adventure in Ethiopia stirred the Hearst press into violent spasms of delight. And, in addition to the marvelous feat of seizing a practically defenseless country by force, it seems that Fascism has other virtues. For example, in February, 1935, a Hearst writer said: "One pleasant feature of Fascism is its refusal to recognize the rights of union labor."

In the last campaign, prior to Nov. 3, President Roosevelt, according to the Hearst press, was a Communist, crackpot, dictator, etc. But Nov. 4, or soon thereafter, Publisher Hearst looked again upon Mr. Roosevelt and there discerned another Andrew Jackson.

The American people for 40 years have survived the wild alarums of the Hearst press, and they are hardly likely now to assist it in its self-appointed job of undertaker for democracy.

Democracy in this country is not a sickly, cowardly thing, ready to succumb at the first thrust. It is not going to lie down and die because a President, swollen with a sense of power, proposes to destroy the independence of the judiciary.

It is going to meet that challenge as it has met other challenges, with faith in its own great destiny.

WISE ACTION IN TENNESSEE.

Thanks to protests both within and outside Tennessee, the press-gag bill which went through its Senate with only one dissenting vote has now been stopped short. The Judiciary Committee of the House has tabled the measure, an action which virtually kills it. A two-thirds vote would be required to bring it to the floor, and there is no indication that this will occur.

George Fort Milton, editor and president of the Chattanooga News, and other Tennessee newspaper editors, who went to the Legislature to oppose the bill as a violation of a free press, not only served their profession but have saved their State the embarrassment of an unconstitutional law.

The decisions of the United States Supreme Court in the Minnesota and Louisiana press-gag cases leave no doubt about what would happen to the Tennessee gag were it enacted and then challenged in the name of a free press.

A BEATITUDE FOR COMMONWEALTH.

On second thought, Commonwealth College, which plugged along for 11 years at a formidable task without anybody taking much notice of it, may find grounds for self-congratulation in attacks made on it in the last two years and coming to a head now in the Arkansas Legislature. The House Committee on Education has approved a bill to provide one to five years in prison for anyone teaching "Communism" (with "violence," of course) or "free love."

Neither appears in the Commonwealth curriculum. A legislative committee in 1935 was unable to find any "advocacy of violence." Neither violence nor "free love" is a plausible element in the function of a pioneer labor college. That function is to infuse a leaven in the workers' movement with fundamental information to place in fair perspective the bread-and-butter facts which most workers know too well. It is an objective which, without snobbery, might be approved from either side of the fence. But in pursuit of that objective, the little workers' school has attempted to be a good neighbor to the poor people of its community at Mena and nearby. It has pointed with pride to aid in getting medical care for farmers' wives in need, to scholarships for sharecroppers and to help in their organization.

There's the rub, indeed. Obviously, "violence" and "free love" are appearing here in their stale and familiar roles as red herrings. Commonwealth has simply become troublesome to the element which would profit by keeping its part of the South in the state of the Belgian Congo in the bad old days. And the severity of the reaction indicates that Commonwealth is at last getting somewhere. "Blessed are ye when men shall revile you, and persecute you"—for it means that the culprits have felt the lash.

THE LABOR SPY BUSINESS.

Testimony before the La Follette Committee continues its disclosures of the widespread, devious and highly profitable business of labor espionage. A Pinkerton informant "sat down" with the strikers at one Fisher Body plant; another, like the Greeks bringing gifts, contrived to enter a plant by taking food to the strikers. The agency continued its reports on "labor conditions" until Jan. 31—two and a half months after the strike began, and four weeks after Flint became its center—by which time, presumably, General Motors was able to see "labor conditions" for itself.

Here is a gamut from melodrama to mere slickerism that could be achieved by only the most jittery of the national messiahs across the water. But, as a fantastic parody of the imported article, it lacks any indication of counter-spying in the Continental tradition. Suppose John L. Lewis had planted "secret informants" (the accepted euphemism) among the secretaries and file clerks of the "front office." We wonder how Messrs. Sloan and Knudsen would feel about that return in kind.

This is all fantastic enough, but it is not funny. It should be purged from the American scene.

BLUM TAKES HIS STAND.

Premier Blum's policy throughout the trying days of the war in Spain has been a masterpiece of restraint. His backers, the Popular Front group, have strong sympathies for the Spanish loyalists. All parties realize the grave danger for France if a Fascist Power is established behind the Pyrenees. Yet Blum, fearing a general war if other nations took a hand, at the outset waived his country's right to aid Madrid, and brought about the non-intervention agreement. He saw Italy and Germany blandly disregard the pact, but refused to let France be stampeded into interference.

Now, however, it is plain that France and Blum can be pushed just so far. The Premier, taking note of the verified reports that Italian troops took part in the capture of Malaga, has given warning that France will not tolerate "the open invasion of Spain." It was French mobilization that halted the German adventure in Morocco a few weeks ago, and it is obvious that further Italian activity will meet a similar reception. France desires peace, but she can no longer let her chief Mediterranean rival run wild.

France's tolerant attitude has been caused in part by inability to rely on Britain if a showdown came. Blum's warning to Italy may signify that at last he has assurance of British support. Certainly it is high time that the neutrality pact be made effective, or that the farce be abandoned.

QUESTION FOR MR. CUMMINGS.

Attorney-General Cummings, defending the President's judicial reorganization plan, said, as to charges of packing the court, that "nothing could be farther from the truth." Suggestion of dictatorship, he said, was "irresponsible talk, and ignored the realities." Much of the remainder of his address was devoted to discussion of "aged and infirm Judges"; men who at 70 have "lost vigor, their minds are not as active, their senses not as acute," etc.

One question, Mr. Attorney-General: Suppose the court had upheld the New Deal program, would there, even if the Justices' ages averaged 90, be any "judicial reorganization" plan today?

IN A NEW YORK TENEMENT.

The other day there was printed a story of a widow and 14 children who had deserted a defunct mining town for three rooms under the roof of a New York tenement. Being ineligible for relief, they subsisted on $28 turned in weekly by two of the girls, who worked in cafes. They pooled their shabby clothes. When an ambulance carried one little girl to the hospital, her eldest brother insisted on going along; her dress and shoes couldn't be spared. Two dimes' worth of bread and coffee was the daily ration per child. Hence the ambulance.

This tale evoked floods of pity. The first caller mounted the dark steps before 7 next morning. For two days visitors brought gifts. Liveried chauffeurs came stiffly up toting baskets stuffed with pate de foie gras, Devon cream and potted clam chowder. A suspected criminal came with an offering. Small traders offered of their stores. A financier with a flower in his lapel tipped his derby, presented his package and brushed past reporters, blushing. Presents included a roulette wheel and an elegant golf suit, complete with spiked shoes. Among several jobs offered the eldest boy was one from an office he'd haunted hopelessly for three weeks. Within two days, the family pleaded that the barrage of charity be discontinued; the three rooms were choked with riches.

The little story is bottomless with implications. To us, two things stick out suggestively. This family wouldn't consider returning to Pennsylvania, where conditions, though unpublicized, had been far more terrible. And had they been eligible for relief, they wouldn't have got a sou more than the $28 per week on which they were slowly starving to death.

TOYS FOR YOUNG FLOOD VICTIMS.

The appeal of the Red Cross for toys for children in flood refugee camps should meet with a generous response. Life in such camps is dull at best. For children, who have been taken from their homes and normal play habits, it is tedious and trying. Many homes in the St. Louis area can spare some of their Christmas games, toys and books and in the doing know that they are helping relieve the monotony of life for the young among the flood sufferers. With the public, private and parochial schools participating in the collection, St. Louis doubtless will do its part in this incidental but nonetheless important phase of flood relief.

RESULTS OF NAZI MARRIAGE LOANS.

Marriage loans have proved highly successful in Germany, says a report just issued by the Ministry of Finance. Some 700,000 couples have found it possible to marry by borrowing a total of $105,000,000 from the Government in the last three years. For each child born, the Government cancels 25 per cent of the loan. The results, says the report, have been:

1. Birth of 500,000 children to the beneficiaries, or more than double the normal German birth rate.
2. Creation of 650,000 jobs, by removal of women from industry.
3. Great benefits to furniture and other industries by establishment of new households.

There are other results as well, but the Ministry does not announce them. They are:

1. More cannon-fodder for Hitler.
2. A greater population for Germany, to increase the population pressure on which the Nazis base their claims for expansion into colonies or their neighbors' territory.

PUTS TRUST IN SENATE.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

OF all the editorial comment critical of the President's thinly-camouflaged plan to become the judicial arm of the Government, none surpasses yours of Feb. 7 and 9.

You make a sound analysis of the motive that promoted the sudden projection of this plot to seize, and make subservient to himself, the last and greatest safeguard to our rights, privileges and immunities.

In the coming struggle in Congress over the bill, little can be expected from the House. Its members are still motivated by the miracle of Santa Claus. But there are yet analytical minds in the Senate who have ability and courage to express their convictions; and they, with the support of a press opinion such as yours, may deliver the country from a government, not of political principles, nor even of considered and consistent policies, but of the whims of a mind drunk with the dazzle of delegated power.

DISRESPECT FOR ELDERS.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IT seems to me that Mr. Roosevelt is very short-sighted, and, for him, singularly uninformed. If he will study great events and great men, he will find an amazing number who have used keen minds and intellects after 70. The counsel of experience is valuable. Judges at 70 have actually seen events from inception to end, and they know whereof they speak and make decisions.

Mr. Roosevelt is building a wall against old people of 70 and past that is taking away their self-respect and happiness, and is causing disrespect from the younger generation.

WHAT ABOUT ENGLAND?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN a recent editorial, you ably and eloquently defended the rights of man.

It was implied in your editorial that our fundamental liberties are in danger unless the court retains its unlimited authority to pass on the constitutionality of legislation. I do not believe you will deny that Great Britain preserves the liberty of her people as well as any country in the world. No court can declare an act of Parliament unconstitutional. It is true that they do not have a written constitution nor do they have a dual form of government such as prevails in the United States, but the point I make is that a legislative body can and does protect individuals in the exercise of their natural rights.

In my opinion, the court should have the power to pass on the constitutionality of laws, in this country, but I do not believe our fundamental liberties depend for their existence on this authority of the courts.

COURT AS A STABILIZING FACTOR.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IT is granted that the present personnel of the Supreme Court, with exceptions, cling to outmoded precepts of government with tenacious fervor, and that were they to let go, the chances for our ship of state riding out this storm of governmental "progress" might be improved. But this clinging and subsequent "retarding" of progress does exert a necessary balancing force on an otherwise galloping legislature.

Time flies in governmental progress in the attempt to catch up with the rest of human endeavor. We are in for rapid and long strides in one direction or another regarding our economic conduct. But if we are to keep our seat at the round table of progress, and we do want to keep it and not relinquish it to a dominating force, dictatorship or what have you, then we should not discard the Supreme Court's stabilizing factor with respect to undesired (by the nation) rampant legislation.

SUMMONS YOUTH TO FIGHT SCHEME.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

NOW that the Republic is about to take on the external and ignominious form of that pest of European society today, Fascism, may I, as a young man, voice my extreme protest against the latest move on the part of our President?

Our Constitution, that has assisted in guaranteeing freedom to the American people during the last 150 years, is now to become on a par with the well-known European "treaties"—a scrap of paper.

Anyone at all familiar with our scheme of government and the theory of checks and balances as its inherent part and soul, should be gravely alarmed at the radical attempt to create a court subservient to the executive branch. It is the primary duty of all young people to write their Representatives and Senators urging them to override this latest attempt to make America a Fascist nation.

The man in the street, amidst all this hue and cry about the President's seizing unlimited powers, recognizes only too clearly that he's right now trying to eke out his existence under the pressure of the most ruthless economic dictatorship.

WOULD LEAVE IT TO THE PEOPLE.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

SAYS PEOPLE SUPPORT PLAN.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

NOTWITHSTANDING your editorials and Jim Reed's vitriolic tongue, the analysis is simply this: Do we have a representative form of government? When five men of the Supreme Court see fit to annul the voice of millions of people speaking through their representatives, it is time to sit up and take notice.

We sought to have child labor controlled. We wanted the sweat shop abolished. No, said the court. When agriculture sought a remedy similar to the protected East, No, said the court; it is a local question.

The people are behind the President. The Constitution is elastic; the trouble is only in the inelasticity of a few Judges.

For the last few years, this country has been ruled by a judicial oligarchy. "The times are ripe and rotten ripe for change." Here is luck, Mr. President; go to it!

Mr. Cochran's Air-Safety Plan

From an Address in Congress by Representative John J. Cochran of Missouri.

MR. SPEAKER, regardless of what was responsible for crashes in the past, it seems to me the Congress and the Bureau of Air Commerce must take some action that will make it more safe to travel by air.

I am sure the public, like myself, was shocked to read the charge made Feb. 6 that air lines forced pilots to fly in bad weather. David L. Behncke, president of the Air Line Pilots' Association, insisted at the hearing before the Air Commerce Bureau that pressure on pilots had been used to require them to fly regardless of weather conditions. An affidavit by Mrs. Livermore, widow of Pilot Joe Livermore, who lost his life in a crash on Dec. 18, 1936, stated her husband was given to understand he must fly regardless of weather or lose his job. Of course, the charge was denied by the air lines.

It is not my purpose to discuss the charges or the denials, nor is it my purpose to discuss what has happened in the past but rather to offer a suggestion that might, if adopted, result in making travel by air more safe for our citizens who use this means of transportation.

We have enacted legislation that has made travel by rail, highway and sea more safe. I deplore the suggestion that our safety-at-sea law be repealed, and hope this effort will not even be dignified by a hearing.

A pilot cannot leave the ground with passengers unless he is in possession of a license issued by the Department of Commerce. The Government can control the licensed pilot. Failure to obey regulations should mean forfeiture of license.

We can also reach the officials of air lines through the Postoffice Department. Without the air-mail contracts, they cannot exist. Of course, our first duty is the safety of our citizens, but we are also charged with the safe transportation of the mails.

It seems to me laws are not needed, but if they are, I am sure Congress will respond promptly. This situation can be controlled by regulation.

Let the Bureau of Air Commerce issue a regulation which will provide that no licensed pilot can leave the ground without a clearance from a Bureau of Air Commerce inspector. Place at every airport used by transport planes a competent official whose responsibility will be to issue the clearance papers. That inspector will be in possession of all weather reports. He should be selected as the result of a civil-service examination, and the salary should be sufficient to attract the best available personnel.

If this suggestion is adopted, pilots will not fear the loss of their jobs. I am speaking now only from the standpoint of the pilot. Regulations providing for improved instruments, etc., should also be issued.

There is no reason why the air lines should not pay a reasonable price for clearance certificates, thus making the service sustain itself.

I have talked with officials of the Bureau of Air Commerce and also the Assistant Secretary of Commerce, and the information I receive is they have the power under existing law to issue the regulations.

If a better plan can be advanced, adopt it, but something must be done, and the time to do it is now.

TASK FOR CONGRESS.

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

Instead of spending its time on plans to keep Supreme Court Justices below 70, Congress ought to turn its attention to keeping the Ohio River here below 70.

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

"The Change in Moral Climate"

"FROM reading the papers of the last few days, I have almost begun to feel that fear motivates most of our thought," said Mrs. Roosevelt in her column recently.

That statement is true. Are there not reasons for fear?

There are brutal dictatorships in Russia, in Germany and in Italy. In all of these countries, civil rights and constitutional government, representations of minorities, and the appeal of the citizen against the state, have been abolished.

Spain is in flames. Much of Eastern Europe and many of the South American states are despotisms masquerading under other names. Democracy is a beleaguered island set now in a stormy sea of dictatorship. Day by day, the geographical areas of liberty contract.

There is a fear of war. The other day, in Edinburgh, the British War Minister, Duff Cooper, warned his audience that "catastrophe approaches," and Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, has proposed to the House of Commons a two-billion dollar loan for armaments.

We are apprehensive that in the next four years fateful events will occur abroad. We know that, whatever our policy may be, they will effect us mightily. We know that in times of stress and chaos, men tend toward dictatorship, rushing to put into the hands of others responsibilities which they feel too heavy to be borne themselves.

And some of us think that we see, and think that we see quite clearly, that the step which President Roosevelt now proposes to take, in filling the Supreme Court with his own appointees, is the first fateful step toward establishing the legal technique of dictatorship.

Liberty depends upon the maintenance of its safeguards. Freedom is watchful and jealous. When it ceases to be so, the love of freedom is already moribund. And all history proves that the greatest safeguard of freedom is the independence of the courts. This proposal is a direct assault upon this independence. By no stretch of sympathetic imagination can it be otherwise regarded.

At the very moment when the President recommends a reorganization of the Federal administration to take important offices out of the spoils system, including the long-abused postoffice, he proposes to put the Supreme Court of the land INTO the spoils system! What would you think of this proposal if another man, with other purposes, sat in the White House? Huey Long did just this thing—he packed the Louisiana courts.

What would the liberals of this country think of this proposal if the President of the United States were the candidate of the Liberty League, or supported by the Black Legion?

All the arguments speciously advanced at the outset have already faded away. The docket of the Supreme Court is not overcrowded. Two vacancies in the Federal Courts have been open for a year, unfilled. It has been impossible to establish any connection between the age of the Judges and the crowding of the dockets. The President himself has dropped the argument.

The truth is now apparent. The personnel of the Supreme Court must be supplanted because the President and the present Congress do not like their decisions. The charge is that they are old fogies, false to the true spirit of the Constitution. The implication is that Chief Justice Hughes does not understand the letter and spirit of the Constitution. Who then does?

The President must reorganize the Supreme Court, it is said, because it is not in tune with the times. He must reorganize it because, they say, the Constitution prevents much social legislation which the people of this country have demanded by overwhelming vote. He must reorganize it because it blocks the democratic process.

These are the noblest arguments that can be advanced for the procedure. And they must be met. But there are established ways for meeting them. By open covenants, openly arrived at.

The arguments were answered once by Daniel Webster and in more recent years by Justice Brandeis.

Said Webster: "It is hardly too strong to say that the Constitution was made to guard the people against the dangers of good intentions, real or pretended. . . . There are men in all ages who mean to exercise power usefully—but who mean to exercise it. They mean to govern well, but they mean to govern. They promise to be kind masters, but they mean to be masters."

And said Justice Brandeis: "Experience should teach us to be most on guard to protect liberty when purposes of government are beneficent. Men born to freedom are naturally alert to repel invasion of their liberty by evil-minded persons. The greatest dangers to liberty lurk in insidious encroachment by men of zeal, well-meaning, but without understanding."

Oh, yes, there is fear abroad. The fear was first engendered by the method of launching this proposal, without consultation, even with the Cabinet, its essential purposes carefully masked. There is fear because the proposal belies the President's own attitude during the campaign, his promise to seek "legislation within the Constitution," and if that were impossible, to "seek clarifying amendment."

There is fear because indirection is substituted for direction. Because, instead of clarifying amendment, what is sought is blanket power, resting upon the choice of personalities. For this method must rest upon such choice. Otherwise, it is utterly senseless and will accomplish nothing. The President must know that the men appointed share his personal views regarding the Constitution, and are, therefore, to all intents and purposes, part of the administration. And that is the end of independent justice.

There is fear because many of us know that men in Washington, in positions of influence, are not speaking their true minds. There are men in the President's Cabinet torn today between loyalty to their chief and loyalty to their consciences. There are men in Congress disturbed at heart, wondering whether they should speak their reservations or continue to trust.

"The greatest change we have witnessed has been the change in the moral climate in America," said the President in his second inaugural address. Today, millions pray to our President that those words shall not be written sardonically in our history.

Seek a clarifying amendment, Mr. President! Thousands of us whose faces are against you in this moment will rally to your support.

DISPUTE ON OWNERSHIP OF RADIO BY PRESS

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16. — A sharp difference of opinion has arisen within the Roosevelt administration over the constitutionality of proposed legislation prohibiting newspapers from owning radio broadcasting sations, it was learned here today.

On the one hand, Attorney-General Cummings, in a confidential opinion sent to President Roosevelt, ruled that such a law would be unconstitutional. Hampson Gary, general counsel of the Federal Communications Commission, has taken the opposite stand, ruling that the prohibitory legislation would in all probability be upheld by the courts.

The Department of Justice declined to give out Cummings' opinion on the ground that it was of a confidential nature. The President, it was learned at the department, sent the opinion to Senator Burton K. Wheeler, chairman of the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce, who announced recently he would introduce the proposed law barring newspaper ownership of broadcasting stations.

Reports have reached various Senators of White House pressure upon the Communications Commission on behalf of newspaper applicants. These reports have aroused considerable indignation, and, while Wheeler would not comment on them, it is known that they were a factor in his decision to sponsor the proposed legislation.

Hearst Interests Have 10 Stations.

At the time he announced he would seek such a law, Wheeler pointed to the trend toward newspaper ownership of major broadcasting facilities. A report submitted to him by the Communications Commissions shows that the Hearst newspapers own or control 10 radio stations, all but two of them with unlimited time. Three of these stations are in Texas cities. Elliot Roosevelt, son of the President, has been employed by Hearst radio interests in Texas.

Wheeler himself called on the counsel of the Communications Commission for an opinion as to the constitutionality of his proposal. In his reply, Gary said that while he could not give a categorical answer because the question "is not free from doubts," he was of the opinion that the law proposed by the Montanan would be constitutional.

"It is established," Gary said, "that all radio broadcasting is interstate commerce; that under the Constitution, the Congress has the power to regulate interstate and foreign commerce; that the criterion to be applied is whether the proposed legislation has a reasonable relation to a purpose which is within constitutional authority; and, that the power to regulate interstate and foreign commerce is limited only by the provisions of the Constitution itself.

Bearing on Interstate Commerce.

"I am of the opinion that the mutual ownership and control of newspapers and broadcast stations bears a reasonable relation to and has an effect upon interstate commerce, and therefore, if the Congress enacted a law of the purport suggested, it should meet the constitutional requirements."

In calling on the commission for an opinion, Wheeler had asked "whether, if the commission has not such authority at the present time, legislation could be passed denying the right for all newspapers to acquire radio stations in the future and requiring all newspapers within a reasonable time to divest themselves of the ownership and control of such stations."

The commission, Gary said, does not at present have the power "to deny an application to a newspaper owner for radio facilities solely upon the ground that the granting of such an application would be against public policy."

"It is clear, however, that the commission has the duty," Gary wrote, "of examining the facts in each particular case to determine whether the granting of an application will serve 'public interest, convenience or necessity.' One fact among others to be considered by the commission is the business connections of the applicant, newspaper or other, and in my opinion the commission has the power to refuse a license to a newspaper owner if upon all the facts before it in a given case the commission is unable to find that the granting of such an application would serve public interest, convenience or necessity."

On Freedom of the Press.

Gary denied that such a law would abrigade the "freedom of the press" as defined in the first amendment to the Constitution. He wrote in his opinion to Wheeler:

"It is submitted that legislation such as that proposed would constitute no abridgement of freedom of speech or of the press since ownership or control of a radio broadcast station is not essential to the right to speak or the dissemination of news, and the owning or controlling of a broadcast station as a business has nothing to do with the freedom of speech or of the press as such, because the newspaper would still have the same right to communicate by printing or broadcasting which is enjoyed by any other person or class."

Wheeler on Sunday made public a lengthy statement taking issue with President Roosevelt's proposal to increase the size of the Supreme Court. His statement was couched in vigorous language and reflects an extremely bitter attitude toward the suggested "reform" of the judiciary.

Pennsylvania Legislature, at Earle's Request, Approves Plan.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 16.—Pennsylvania's Democratic Legislature voted last night in favor of President Roosevelt's proposal to reorganize the Federal judiciary. Gov. Earle requested the action.

Speeches on the history of the Supreme Court preceded the vote. The Senate passed the resolution, 30 to 14. Voting with 13 Republicans was Weldon Heyburn, Democrat, of Delaware, who said he "did not believe in tampering with the Supreme Court." In the House the vote was 145 to 53. The resolution held that the effect of the President's plan "will be to hasten those urgently needed governmental and economic reforms demanded by the people, which have been obstructed by the political and economic opinions of certain present Supreme Court Justices."

Meanwhile, the Montgomery County Bar Association termed the President's suggestion "a menace to the independence of the judiciary."

Sterling G. McNess, president of the Pennsylvania Bar Association, in a statement said "every group and individual in the State is vitally affected by the proposed changes" and should "get the facts," consider them, and advise "your representatives."

"The guaranty of liberty of our people is not in acts of Congress," McNees said. "It is in the Constitution as interpreted by the Supreme Court."

"This may well be the most important thing which will happen in your lifetime," he noted.

Denver Bar Association Asks Other Groups to Fight Scheme.

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, Feb. 16.—The Denver Bar Association, over protests of a minority of its members, opened a campaign today against President Roosevelt's proposal for changes in the Supreme Court.

A resolution adopted, 172 to 55, by the association at a special meeting last night "condemned" the proposed change and directed the association president to name a committee to "solicit the co-operation of the American Bar Association, each state bar association . . . and other selected professional, business and trade organizations' to oppose the proposals.

New York Chapter of Lawyers' Guild Approves Proposal.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—The New York City chapter of the National Lawyers' Guild adopted a resolution last night indorsing President Roosevelt's recommendations affecting the Supreme Court, and proposed that a similar resolution be prepared for the national convention of the guild, to be held in Washington Feb. 22.

The National Lawyers' Guild was formed last December by Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the New York power authority, and chairman of the executive committee of the Progressive National Committee, which campaigned for Roosevelt's re-election. He termed formation of the guild a revolt against "the reactionary minority" of the legal profession.

MINTON DECLARES BILL WILL "UNPACK A PACKED COURT"

number of Judges had been changed six times in the past.

He denied assertions of opponents that the bill would encourage dictatorship, saying:

"If the bill passed, the President can nominate, but the Senate has to confirm. That is check number one on dictatorship. And the President and Senate have to answer to the people; that is check number two. After a Judge is appointed he is there for life or good behavior; that is check number three. Check number four is the honor and integrity of President Roosevelt in whom you and I have confidence. . . .

"It has been suggested that a constitutional amendment is the proper way. Of course, this suggestion comes loudest from those who would not support such an amendment. But why an amendment since this method is clearly within the Constitution and whatever the Constitution provides is certainly American? Why seek more power if we already have the power to meet a situation? The way of amendment, like that of the transgressor, is hard. . . .

"There is nothing in the pending bill that would keep us from amending the Constitution after the bill passes. Let us have an amendment, but we must have action now. We don't believe we should be required to wait 15 or 20 years on a prospect of action."

Foreign Minister Answers Questions on Spanish War

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Spanish Communists "at present show the most enthusiasm in defense of the republic" against insurgents, Spanish Foreign Minister Julia Alvarez del Vayo declared in response to questions cabled by the New York World-Telegram and the Scripps-Howard chain and published in a copyrighted article yesterday.

The administration has shown "a greater left tendency" during the civil war than in the government formed after the Popular Front elections in February, 1936, Del Vayo said.

The Foreign Minister added, however, "this does not presuppose that a proletarian state in any fixed form would result from a triumph by loyalist Spain."

The statements were in answer to identical questions cabled to both the Valencia and Burgos governments. Insurgent Dictator Francisco Franco's replies were published Feb. 2.

Denies Charge of Communism.

Q.—Is the Spanish loyalist leadership Communistic?

A.—In the last League of Nations session, I rejected the legend that Spain is Communistic, a legend deliberately spread by those who use the fight against Bolshevism as a pretext to hide their designs of aggression and war.

Q.—America hailed the Popular Front Election in February as liberal, but since September the swing has been drastically to the left. Does this forecast some form of proletarian state in the event of loyalist victory?

A.—After the election, the Popular Front Government started a campaign of republican conciliation. Then right elements—openly Fascist and in collusion with a group of irresponsible generals—started the coup d'etat (civil war) of July 18. Consequently, it was obvious that the legal government should be supported by all those who hated the idea of a Fascist Spain. This support of all anti-Fascist elements culminated in the inclusion in the government of two most extreme elements—the Basque Catholic party and the National Labor Confederation, with anarchistic leanings. The participation of the latter caused a greater left tendency than in the government formed immediately after the elections. However, this does not presuppose that a proletarian state in any fixed form would result from a triumph by loyalist Spain.

Republic With Social Legislation.

Q.—What form of government—French, American or the Soviet type republic—would receive the largest vote if a plebiscite were possible?

A.—I consider the most obvious pattern will be a continuation of a democratic republic which will permit extremely advanced social legislation.

Q.—How do you estimate the relative numerical strength within the loyalist group of Republicans, Socialists, Communists, Syndicalists and Anarchists?

A.—The civil war has made secondary the question of the clash between different shades of opinion on the Government side. However, proletarian organizations have extraordinary force in Spain today. I admit that the Communists at present show the most enthusiasm in the defense of the republic, and are most firmly opposed to certain premature experiences of agricultural collectivization.

Q.—Because of the wide divergence of views within both the Government and insurgent camps it has been repeatedly stated that victory for either of the present belligerent factions would be followed by another civil war within the victors' ranks. How real is this danger?

A. The mere fact that Republicans, Catholics, anarchists, Communists and Socialists fight side by side in the same trenches created sufficient solidarity that they can continue like this even after victory. Never shall we forget the activity of the German fleet that has shown, with a few ships, that it is capable of more insolence and audacity than the world fleets combined. Never shall we forget that foreign intervention has permitted the destruction of Madrid by German planes.

No Anti-Religious Movement.

Q. What, broadly, are the Loyalist plans for better social, labor and agrarian legislation?

A. The Government has already begun a wide education program, including the instruction of the adult masses, and has taken economic dispositions to utilize better the potential capacity of Spanish economy.

Q. With the separation of church and state accomplished, will Spain duplicate Russia's effort to stamp out religion?

A. In Spain, no real anti-religious movement exists. It must be remembered, however, that for centuries the Catholic religion in Spain, instead of being purely spiritual, was equally political. The insurgents' hatred of Catholic priests in the Basque country who have put themselves on the side of the people is shown by their cruelty in Basque villages they have captured. Their first victims are always priests who have not taken up arms against the legitimate government.

Q. Would the Government sanction permanent Catalonion independence? Could Catalonia be restored without another war?

A. The myth of an independent Catalonia forms part of a series of tendentious statements regarding Spain spread by those who are interested in making the actual situation in Spain appear utterly hopeless. When these persons saw that military success was not a monopoly of the rebels, they manufactured the story of a totally independent Catalonia separated from the rest of Spain and subjected to anarchist terror.

10,000 Foreigners With Loyalists.

Q. How many foreign troops are aiding the Loyalists, and what percentage of them are French? What percentage are Russian?

A. The number of foreign volunteers fighting on our side is much less than is generally believed. While it is not possible to give exact figures, I do not believe the number exceeds 10,000 to 12,000 foreigners. I can absolutely and truthfully state that there is not a single Russian soldier on our fronts.

Q. How many foreign troops do you estimate are with the rebels, and of what nationalities are they?

A. I regard the number of foreigners fighting for the rebels as very much superior to those on our side. I affirm that Franco and his Generals, who, to begin with, were Fascist marionettes, now play a purely secondary role because Germans and Italians occupy all the posts of responsibility and are at the side of every enemy gun and machine gun.

Q. Will the fate of Madrid decide the issue of the war?

A. Madrid is indeed the center of Spanish resistance. The capital of Spain has written a most glorious page in this new war of independence. Madrid, I affirm, cannot be taken now.

WHEAT MARKET DOWN SHARPLY WITH LIVERPOOL

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 16.—Late declines carried Chicago wheat prices down today 2 cents maximum.

New crop months, July and September, encountered buying on a scale down, demand being stimulated by reports of adverse soil conditions in parts of domestic winter crop territory, especially indications that the extent of damage from drifting could not be known until growth started.

At the close, wheat was ⅛@2 cents under yesterday's finish, May $1.35¼@1.35⅝, July $1.18⅛@1.18¼; corn changed to ⅞c lower, May $1.09⅛@1.09¼, July $1.04@1.04⅛; oats off, and provisions unchanged to 20 cents higher.

An allround material setback of Chicago wheat prices resulted largely early today from nearly 3 cents a bushel unexpected market tumble at Liverpool.

Cables reported heavy arrivals of Argentine wheat in Great Britain and a pause in European continental demand. It was added that unsold Canadian wheat was arriving at British ports and was being put into store. Talk was also current that with 59,000,000 bushels of wheat afloat on ocean passage to importing countries, the needs of importers were supplied for at least the present.

There were also trade figures at hand indicating that the three principal surplus producing countries—Canada, Argentina and Australia—had available for export just a quantity of wheat just about equal to estimated world wheat needs during the remainder of the current crop year.

Forecasts suggesting likelihood of moisture relief in Kansas and Nebraska tended further to give an advantage to the selling side of the wheat market. Prices of new crop deliveries, July and September, held up better, however, than did May, representing wheat already on hand. Chicago May wheat contracts declined at some stages more than 1¾ cents, responsive to downturns of values at Liverpool and to Winnipeg advices telling of dearth of new export business in Canadian wheat.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 35,925,000 bushels, corn 3,821,000. Open interest in wheat was 106,143,000 and in corn 38,404,000.

STOCK PRICE MOVEMENTS ARE ERRATIC; CLOSE MIXED

Demand for Copper Issues Whipped Up by 14c Metal Tapers Off Late—Pressure on Steel Shares Lifts Some — Higher Shares in List.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—The stock market milled around erratically today with demand rotating quietly in some sections of the list. Transactions totaled about 2,100,000 shares.

Kennecott lost some of its early rise after declaration of a 50-cent dividend which contrasted with the year-end payment of 85 cents. Other coppers in favor most of the period were Anaconda, Howe Sound, Miami, Cerro de Pasco and Calumet & Hecla.

The cloud of selling which hovered over the steels lifted somewhat in the final hour and more resilience was shown by U. S. Steel and Bethlehem.

Chrysler was in favor and turned in a gain of around 3 points. Issues not without friends were Nash-Kelvinator, International Telephone, Goodrich, U. S. Rubber, Deere, Sears Roebuck, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Industrial Rayon, Omnibus, Pennsylvania and St. Joseph Lead.

Utilities enjoyed the benefit of spasmodic demand and improvement was scored by some members of this group.

Some pointed out there have been scattered industrial wage increases in the past few days and predictions are more may follow.

Cotton was under pressure. Bonds wer mixed with declines in some U. S. Governments. French francs at mid-afternoon were up .00 1-16 of a cent to 4.65⅞. Sterling was up ¼ of a cent to $4.89¾. Dutch guilders declined. Wheat was ½ to 2 cents a bushel lower, corn unchanged to off ⅞ cents.

Stocks which moved into the buying lime-light around the finish were Remington Rand, Zenith Radio, National Biscuit, Studebaker, Continental Baking and International Nickel.

News of the Day.

Speculative circles said they were unable to pin the declines in many issues on any specific factors.

Some suggested selling may have been prompted by failure of the market as a whole to respond more cheerfully to the rally in the coppers.

It was noted that for a while during the early brisk rise in coppers some issues in other groups did stiffen somewhat. When this forward urge played out, professional floor traders moved over to the selling side, it was said.

Still uppermost in the minds of many Wall streeters was yesterday's move by Washington monetary officials in the direction of stemming the inflow of foreign funds.

Providing the financial community with a stout peg on which to hang favorable sentiment were annual earning reports, some of which show better results in the final quarter of 1936 than expected.

Overnight Developments.

Estimates that rail freight shipments last week advanced to a new 1937 high engaged the attention of share market analysts.

Discussion among New Deal financial heads of possible methods of controlling the inflow of foreign capital, as manifest in the unchecked import of gold, has raised the question in some quarters whether a drop in European buying of securities in this market would be felt severely.

Reports of additional substantial buying of American securities from abroad last year do not tally with quarterly figures of three large corporations on the number of foreign shareholders.

American Telephone & Telegraph for December reported 7382 foreign stockholders compared with 7825 a year before. Foreign holders of U. S. Steel shares declined to 3866 in September from 3925 at end of the previous year and of Pennsylvania Railroad shares from 3111 to 3076.

It was pointed out, however, that concentration of larger holdings in hands of fewer individuals may have taken place abroad, in line with a trend in this country on the rise in share prices.

ELIMINATION OF 'IN AND OUT' TRADING PUT UP TO EXCHANGE

Federal Reserve Board Reserves Right to Take Action if Found Necessary.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16. — The Federal Reserve Board put up to stock exchanges today the question of eliminating "in and out" trading, but reserved the right to take official action if deemed necessary.

The board had considered amending a regulation to eliminate the three-day grace period within which customers buying securities on margin have been permitted to put up the margin.

The board said some traders had been taking advantage of this provision to get "in and out" of the market within the three-day period without posting any margin.

The board's announcement quoted representatives of the New York Stock Exchange as saying they were prepared to provide regulations which "would effectively eliminate" this practice.

"Having . . . taken account of the representations made in behalf of the New York Stock Exchange and other national securities exchanges," the announcement said, "the board has deferred adoption of the proposed amendment . . . in order to afford national securities exchanges an opportunity to eliminate the practice."

The board's action, however, was without prejudice "to its complete freedom" to formulate regulations of its own.

Must Make Deposits Next Day.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Plans for tightening margin regulations to curb so-called "free riding" by traders was announced by the New York Stock Exchange today.

The effect of the new rule, it was said in exchange circles, would be to require stock traders to deposit margin the day following execution of orders. In exceptional cases the three-day privilege will stand.

Virtually all the recent domesti price advances have been force by the bull market abroad, wher armaments requirements vied wit expanding industry and speculativ buying in forcing constantly highe quotations.

Trading in copper futures in th New York commodity exchang opened strong today, with so months quoted as much as .29 a cent a pound higher.

WELL, I'LL TELL YOU—By BOB BURNS

EVERY time I make a trip on the train, I promise myself I'll get me one of them fancy toilet kits so I can show off a little bit in the washroom. I suppose it's because I was raised up with a wash pan and a bucket of cold water out on the back porch. I'll never forget a trip I made with my Cousin Wafford. In the mornin', we was sittin' up in the Pullman washroom and in come one of them dude fellas with a fancy dressin' robe on. At first he spread a towel on the shelf and then he undid a big leather toilet kit and he started takin' out more toilet articles than Doc Meier's got in his whole drug store back home. He put oil on his hair and he trimmed his moustache, he scrubbed his teeth, then shaved and put lotion on his face and some powder. Wafford never took his eyes off of him. When the fella was all through, Wafford said "Mister, pardon me for askin' you but I just got to know—are you always that much trouble to yourself?"

The Entry Cards

By Ely Culbertson

(Copyright, 1937.)

COMMUNICATION plays deal with entries. An entry card is a card which will win a trick, allowing the player to lead to the next trick. Since a finesse depends upon the lead coming from a certain hand, plays which deal with entries are among the most important in bridge.

In Figure 1, you will see how an established long suit winner may be an entry. Since both North and South hold a long card in diamonds, on the fourth round of the suit North's ♦7 is an entry, for it will win over South's ♦3.

A ruffing entry is automatically produced whenever a player wins a trick by ruffing. In Figure 2 you will notice that it is desirable for North to lead to a finesse in spades. In order to obtain the lead he ruffs South's ace of diamonds, although that card would have won the trick if unmolested. By ruffing North does not gain a trick, but an entry.

There are safe finesses and dangerous finesses. Since both types often occur in the same hand, it behooves declarer to separate the sheep from the goats.

South, dealer.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Double	3 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

East was tempted to bid four hearts over what he recognized as a shut-out three-spade bid, but, feeling that his partner might have shaded his take-out double because of opponents' part score, decided that discretion was the better course.

WEST was not crazy about any opening lead that offered itself. A trump appeared the only safe one, but he was afraid that the tempo which probably would be abandoned on that lead might be more serious than losing a trick in one of the other suits. He therefore bravely pushed out his fourth highest heart. East won with the ace, and correctly returned his highest club. Declarer refused to risk the opening up of the club suit, in which the play of the queen might result, and merely took the precaution of covering East's club with the nine spot, to insure that the lead would pass in West's hand. West won with the ten, and now could make no better return than a trump. Declarer won with the ace, and overtook his own jack with dummy's queen, then led a low diamond and played the ten. He really did not care much whether this lost to the queen or the ace. The crux was that West would be on lead, and be unable to capture the club queen.

As it happened, West took the queen of diamonds and was helpless to avert disaster. A club return would be up to South's ace-queen tenace. The diamond ace would merely establish dummy's suit for club discards, and a heart return would only delay this same inevitable setting up of the diamonds.

The hand, of course, was not at all difficult, but teaches a lesson to average players not to finesse willy-nilly instead of selectively.

TODAY'S QUESTION

♠AJ7 ♥KJ8 ♦A1076 ♣QJ7.

Baked Sausage

Place links of country sausage in the bottom of a baking pan and over the top first put a layer of sliced tomatoes, then a layer of sliced tart apples. Dot with butter and sprinkle lightly with sugar, salt and pepper. Cover and bake in a moderate oven for a half-hour, then remove lid and bake until nicely browned. The apples and tomatoes will draw sufficient juice to do away with basting.

Banana Pudding

Arrange in a pudding dish alternate layers of sliced bananas and split ladyfingers. Make a custard of the yolks of three eggs, one-half cup sugar, a pinch of salt and two cups scalded milk. Cook in a double boiler until slightly thickened, then pour over bananas and cake. Make a meringue of the egg whites and three tablespoons sugar and after the pudding has cooled, place it on the top in attractive dabs. Brown lightly in the oven.

SILK and LINGERIE BLOUSES

The Suit Vogue Makes Them Important Wardrobe Items

BY PRUNELLA WOOD

SUITS are in again, and those who live in cold places are wearing them under fur coats, while those in the sunny spots just live in them. Travellers especially are suit-minded, for the find them adjustable to a changing thermometer, as they speed from clime to clime.

And what's a suit without a blouse—without several blouses, in fact? You get almost as many changes of costume as you have blouses, especially if you choose a suit that is not so severely tailored as to attract only mannish shirt blouses.

Tie silk, taffeta, both plain and printed crepe are all good 1937 blouse fabrics—and is the black marquisette dinner blouse, sketched top left, news, or is it news? Its bar buttons are black mother-of-pearl.

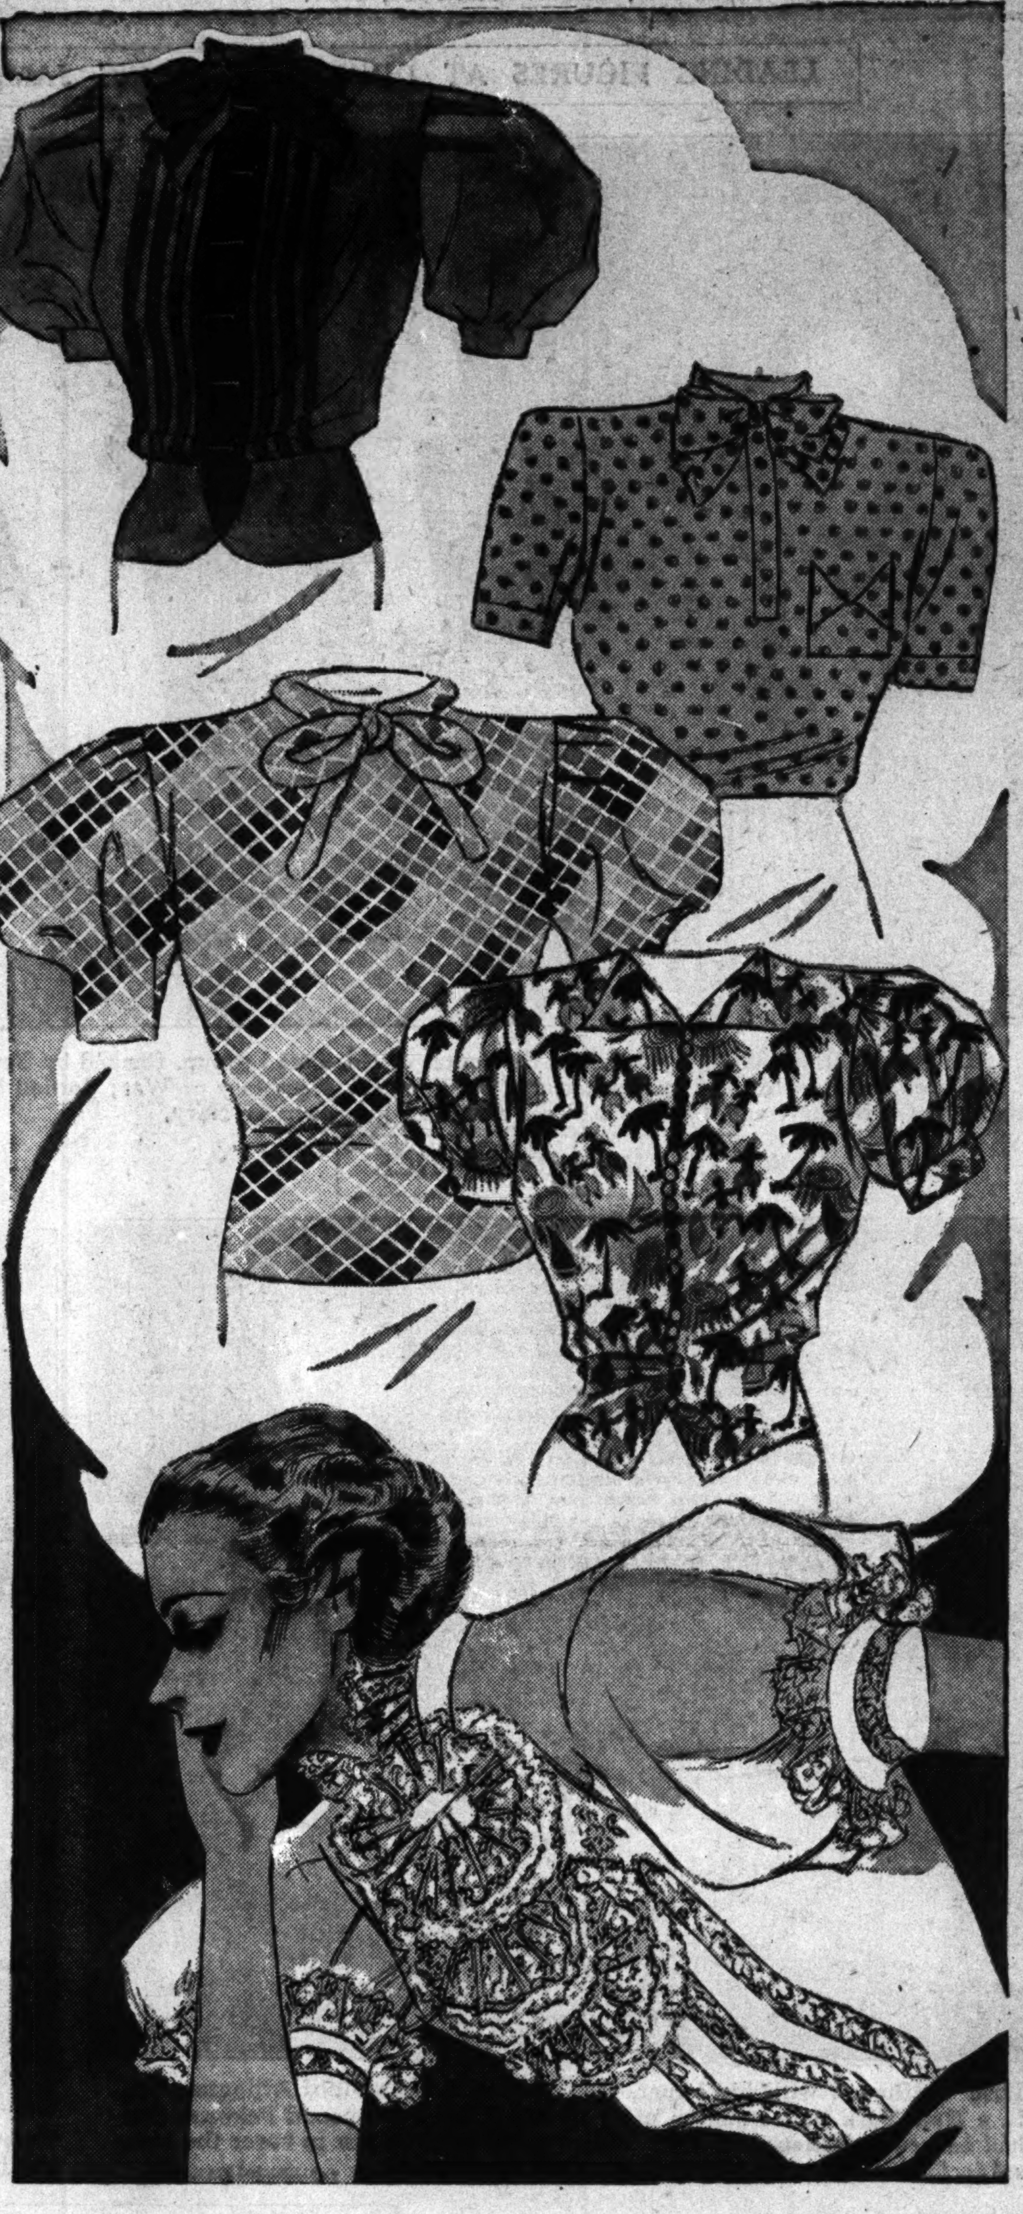
JUST below the black dinner blouse is a plaid taffeta blouse finished with a bowed cable about the neck. It is dashing in red and black, or in brown and orange. The print blouse is a silk shantung, with an African design in which green, rust or blue may predominate. The little buttons are of differing colors, matching the colors in the prints.

The lingerie blouse, sketched bottom, is trimmed with hand embroidery and Val type lace. It doesn't open in front beneath the triple chou jabot, but down the back, where it ties at the neckline.



The Canine Trait Of Hand-Licking

By Albert Payson Terhune

I DON'T let my dogs lick my hand. It is a slimy stunt, at best. Yet it is a world-old canine trait. Darwin took a fall out of its origin, some 70 years ago. He wrote:

"This habit probably originated in the females, carefully licking their puppies; the dearest objects of their love. . . . Thus the habit will have become associated with the emotion of love, however afterward it may be aroused."

Now, on most subjects, Darwin forgot more in a day than ever I can hope to know in a lifetime. But I don't agree with him as to the origin of hand-licking by dogs. A dog's tongue serves various functions; among them those of healing and of giving consolation. What does a dog do when it has a sore or a hurt? It licks the afflicted spot, most assiduously. Vets say there is healing in these licks. I believe them.

To offer consolation to an unhappy human owner, the dog tries this same curative process; either on hand or on face, the only two exposed skin surfaces. Or when the dog has incurred his master's displeasure; and sues to be forgiven. This on the principle of self-healing. What do YOU think about it? Is it an instinctive attempt at curing a hurt?

Baked Potatoes

Break the baked potato open when taking it from the oven to let out the steam and prevent sogginess. Then place a lump of butter in the opening and dredge with paprika. They look so much more attractive when they make their appearance besides being decidedly more delicious to eat.

The Nervous Parent Needs Simple Remedy

"It Is Wanting Too Much That Causes the Unrest in Older Persons."

By Angelo Patri

"I JUST feel miserable. I can't put my finger on anything, but I'm so nervous, so irritable. The children are driving me crazy, and I'm sure that it is my condition that makes them as they are. I can't sleep a night through. I don't enjoy my food. I simply don't enjoy anything any more."

Angelo Patri

The doctor looked gravely at the mother who was sitting in the chair by his desk, noted the nervous fluttering of her hands, the pale skin, the twitching mouth, noted the sharp tone in her voice and the restlessness in her eyes. "Worn to a frazzle worrying," said he to himself. Then aloud, "Anything worrying you, Mrs. Sproul? Anything in particular?"

"Nothing more than what everybody else has to worry about these days. Less money, less everything, more expenses—all that. If one of us should fall sick, I don't know. When money is so scarce how is one to save to send children to college? Or for emergencies? But no. I'm really not worrying about anything special."

"Will you do what I ask even if it sounds silly to you?" said the doctor.

"Certainly. If you can think of anything that will help me get on my feet, help me to get a hold on myself, I'll be glad to do it."

"This afternoon, walk to the shopping district."

"I haven't been there for a year. What's the use? I haven't a penny to spend, even for necessities, much less for all the things I see and want."

"Yes, I know. You don't need a penny for this trip. I would like you to go down Main street and study the shop windows on both sides of the street, and note down everything you see that you do not want and would not take if it were offered you. And study the people you meet and see how many of them you would like to change places with this day. Do this just because I suggest it, and see what happens. Walk down and walk back."

SO this anxious, nervous, weary mother walked down Main street to see all the things she did not want and would not take if they were handed her. She saw plenty. By and by she began to laugh at this game. The pet shop—no she wanted none of the parrots, none of the puppies, none of the cats. The drug store. The windows were filled with things that she did not want and hoped she would never need. The windows of the dry goods shops were the hardest. Mother did like some of the dresses, but she remembered she was to look for what she did not want. There was the funny dress with the bunchy frills and no back, and no sleeves, the sports dress with stripes going round and round, the blue slippers with heels five inches high and the size of a dime at the bottom. This was funny.

And the people she met. Some of them very cheerful, some sad, some shabby and others gaily dressed. "No, I wouldn't change with you, nor with you, nor you." One had sickness, another had grief, one had tragedy, another a bad husband. Mother began to feel better.

It is a great relief to find that somebody has something you do not want and would not accept if you could help it. It is wanting too much that makes most of us sick.

The Hollywood Scene

By Robbin Coons

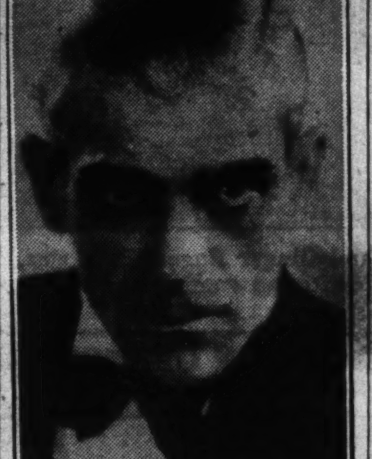
HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 15.

THE benign old gentleman, between sniffles, insisted he ought to die.

At least Boris Karloff, who was present somewhere beneath the benign old gentleman's exterior, insisted for him. The nice old boy, central figure in "Night Key," really had nothing to say about it. He was merely a pawn to be juggled by scenarists, producer, director and (Karloff hoped) by Karloff.

His fate would have to be decided pretty soon, too. For one thing, they were well into the picture. For another, the sniffles belonged to Karloff, not to the old man, and Karloff, not long out of a hospital bed, was working on a drafty, clammily frigid sound stage.

"He's got to die," said Karloff between scenes. "He's a sympathetic character—sniff—old and nearly blind. He's honest, and the things he does are not intended to harm anyone but merely to get back his rightful share from the man who robbed him of his invention. It's not his fault that gangsters step in. And if he doesn't die—sniff—what can be done with him? Have him shake hands with his old enemy and live happily—sniff—ever after?"



BORIS KARLOFF

I suggested facetiously that perhaps the old enemy could present him with a Seeing-Eye Dog. Karloff, a sniffle overtaking a chuckle, croaked:

"Not so loudly. A writer might be hiding under a stone and hear you. Ah, but there's the villain of the piece, the producer. Excuse me. I'm going to speak to him about this cold stage."

Karloff and the benign old gentleman left together to confer with Bob Presnell, while set attendants trundled into Karloff's canvas dressing hut an army cot. Over it they set up an arc light for warmth. Karloff and Presnell huddled, and then Karloff had to do a scene.

After it, he joined me in the hut, where the heat was good but dangerous—when you left it. He wouldn't lie down, although he was supposed to. He insisted on being courteous, which was more than I'd have been, wheezing and sniffling and makeup forbidding a handkerchief. There ought to be a limit to this show-must-go-on-thing.

But Karloff was happy, in a way. This picture was his first in six years that couldn't possibly be called a "horror" film. As a matter of record, he said, the only strictly "horror" stuff he had done was the Frankenstein duo. The rest were just mystery pictures. . . .

"By the way," I asked, "did you get anything done about some heat?"

"Forgot it," he chuck-sniffed. "All we talked about was the way the picture should end."

DAILY MAGAZINE

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

By Martha Carr

My dear Mrs. Carr:

WE WONDER if you think we have been wrong about something. While we know ourselves that nothing is wrong about it, we wonder what the gossips would say in the matter.

A very dear friend of mine is a school teacher about 28 years old, whose parents are dead, lives alone in the small town home of her grandmother and aunt; these two living in the city where the aunt is employed.

This girl is engaged to a young man who lives 20 miles away and who must come by bus to see her, since he does not own a car. Unless he remains over night, he can be with her only a few hours. He comes Friday, they go to the show, come in about ten, sit in the front room next to the one in which I sleep (I always stay there at night when he is in town) and where she turns in later with me.

This man carries out the ashes and does other things about the place. The girl does the cooking and other work. He stays Saturday night and goes home Sunday. This occurs about twice a month. There are no prospects of immediate marriage, on account of the work problem.

I am a married woman 46 years old. Is my presence in the home sufficient to make this young man's visits proper?

ANXIOUS TO KNOW.

I can see no impropriety in the arrangements you describe, especially since the couple is engaged. Gossips may make something out of it; but knowing the impossibility of achieving their standards (a moveable commodity with them); I believe they are not worth considering.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM a young man 22 years old. I want to learn to be a radio and television engineer operator. And in order to take this course I would have to go to Kansas City and study. The course will take from eight months to a year. Here is my problem:

I have part of the money saved from a very small salary and would like to know if there is any institution in St. Louis that has a fund set aside for such cases. I will be able to pay it back later on. W. V.

I believe there should be some such fund available here, although I do not know of an especial scholarship available for this work. We will hope, if any of the readers of this column have a suggestion, they will write in as soon as possible and tell us about it.

My dear Martha Carr:

SINCE your column has been helpful in attracting members to an amateur group and has helped us help those who, in the holidays, wanted dramatics and amateur performers for their entertainments, we would like to offer to give our services to St. Louis or St. Louis County organizations for an evenings entertainment, proceeds to go for the St. Louis chapter of the American Red Cross, for flood relief.

Of course, it will be unedrstood that all proceeds will be turned over to the Red Cross, with only a very small allowance for expense if that is necessary. And before such a request will be honored, it must be accompanied by a letter from the Red Cross, on their stationery, addressed to the group sponsoring the play.

We must be sure our efforts will be used as intended. We can accept dates for such performances until about the last week in February.

For further information, address Miss Lillian G. Roeder, business manager, Toy Theater Guild, JEfferson 2227. L. R.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM a girl 13 years old and am very anxious to learn to play the piano. But my mother's a widow and isn't able to buy a new one. Mother would pay, though, for having one hauled. So if you know of someone having a piano they don't want, I'd be so glad to have it.

MUSIC LOVER.

And where, Miss Music Lover, would you expect them to find you, as you gave neither name or address. And when you do send your name and address kindly send along some references.

Dear Martha Carr:

WE ARE planing a trip to Colorado this July. We will go the Southern route and come back the Northern. We would like to know what clothing would be necessary as we will indulge only in sports. We expect to be in the mountains only on short trips, as we will camp in the valleys.

We want to spend as little as possible on clothing, but must be sure to be dressed comfortably.

COLORADO BOUND.

Take warm clothing for the mountains and after sundown; thinner sports frocks and prints for street in town in the middle of the day. July can be quite warm in Colorado in day-time, while early in August one notices a cooler atmosphere and a more moderate sun.

Knitted things for wear in the mountains and washable sports frocks for the midday in the valleys. If you wear riding breeches or knickers for climbing, remember that the old blue denim is this year one of the best materials.

If you go to a good hotel for dinner, wear an afternoon dress, unless you go for dancing, when an evening dress will be suitable.

The men wear regular spring clothes, soft lightweight suits, riding knickers, a dinner jacket for dress, an overcoat warm and woolly, but not too winterish, must be carried along.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

The Delights Of New York Beauty Salons

By Alice Hughes

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.

(Copyright, 1937.)

WE MAY have thought, we mere women, that the art of beauty culture had gotten somewhere in the past decade; but I, for one, simply didn't know anything about such matters, and I've played guinea pig for the best of them.

Fifth Avenue, in the Fifties, is now lined with Shrines of Beauty. No more beauty parlors, if you please, or even the tonier salons de beaute. These are downright shrines—complete with soft lights, sweet music, mural paintings, worshipping attendants and all the rest of it. For the two greatest rivals in their field, Arden and Rubinstein, are operating practically cheek by jowl, and each trying frantically to outglamor and outshine the other.

Rubinstein's shrine covers no less than five floors of an entire establishment. The first visit is to a doctor, in order to see that your blood pressure, while being made gorgeous, will not blow you to Kingdom come as well. The other delights are too numerous to mention — save that I may add that there is a real beach, complete with sun and sand, and I suppose an attendant whooshing water in a pail to simulate surf.

Miss Arden's latest pride is her new exercise room—perdon me, "gymnasium moderne." It boasts a huge new Georgia O'Keefee painting, "The Miracle Flower," quite in the O'Keefee mood, and is fitted with all the torture appliances of the day which make modern body culture such a thing of anguish.

But the Battle of the Beauticians is just now at its most thrilling. You should come over — but look out for flying lotions!

ROSAMOND PINCHOT'S life in the theatre is a strange one. Many years ago, you remember, she played The Nun in the "Miracle." The other night I saw her playing Bathsheeba in the new Reinhardt production, "The Eternal Road"—and Bathy is far from a nun, as you recall. And in between these varying roles big Rosamond did little or nothing in the acting lines! . . .

Morris Ernst's new book on the constitution is having a great success among the more liberal minded souls—and it is also pleasing Mrs. Ernst very much. She has a busy life of her own, teaching etymology at our city and country school, and is accounted a leading authority. Then there are three Ernst children, one an 18-year-old daughter who is at Bennington College. . . .

Our big comedy hit show, "You Can't Take It With You," caused quite a ruckus the other day when it announced that seats were on sale 18 weeks ahead, or well into the summer. But it takes more than that to daunt our citizens, several of whom have walked right up the wicket and bought some seats for well along in May. Well, that's a form of faith, all right. Who knows where in the cosmos we'll be in May? . . .

Our local romance-fanciers opine that the love affair between Patricia Ziegfeld, Billie Burke's young daughter, and young Ben Ali Haggin, son of the late millionaire artist, has run its course. Most of the family friends say it was a matter of too darned much publicity—and that's possible. No kids like to live in the spotlight for long!

One of the smartest Fifth Avenue style sharks has just cabled me from Paris that the Coronation is having an even greater effect on the new clothes collections than we suspected. She says that elaborate gold and silver brocades are being used on sheer fabrics. Rochas seems to be going in for polychrome stripes, while Vionnet is featuring silk and wool plaids. Oh dear—doesn't it seem remote from our own petty goings and comings, and that small collection of fairly ancient items hanging in our closets!

Panned Oysters

Two dozen large oysters, one teaspoon lemon juice, one-half teaspoon salt, a pinch of paprika. Place a large lump of butter in the top of the double boiler, add the salt and paprika and the oysters. Cover and cook until oysters are curled at the edges, removing cover to stir frequently. Add lemon juice and serve on squares of toast.

How Lovely Clare Luce Dissects Ladies in a Revenge-on-Her-Critics Play, Which Everybody Hates and Yet Fights Way in to See

BETTY LAWFORD IN THE STARTLING BATHTUB SCENE.

THE WORLD'S MOST HORRID WOMEN!

By LEONARD HALL

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.

THERE is one smash-hit show on Broadway this season which performs one of the theater's first functions. It makes people talk—pro or con, but they talk. No one has yet been known to leave the theater where "The Women" is playing in a state of limp, pre-night club boredom. They are either whooping or sneering.

This precious opus is the work of a lady programmed as Clare Boothe, which is precisely half her name. Next comes "Brokaw," which is a holdover from a previous marriage, and finally comes the proud name of "Luce," which she happily shares with Henry R. Luce, midas of the slick paper magazines. And certainly "The Women" seems to prove that father is not the only breadwinner in the little family, for the playhouse is crammed nightly with ladies and gentlemen who howl, snort, leer and protest.

Last year the lady, in company with Mrs. Beatrice Kaufman (of the George F. Kaufmans) took a brief and unproductive whirl at Broadway with a play called "Abide With Me," which abode nowhere very long. Now, going it alone and full steam ahead, she has written a smash hit in this upsetting, somewhat daring show. By so doing, she has won sweet revenge on the group who did not pull their punches about her writing ability, after her first fiasco.

What is there about "The Women" which has stirred up such dust on Broadway—which has set husband against wife, boy-friend against cutie-pie?

Simply because it tells, in sometimes brash and bitter words, what quite possibly goes on in the sacred Beauty Chamber of Horrors, the fashionable fitting room, the boudoir and even the classier sort of maternity hospital.

Gentlemen with tender natures, inclined to the Victorian belief that all women are graduate angels, have been known to leave the theater shuddering and in tears, while old bucks made of sterner stuff go out of the playhouse snarling short, cruel epithets. A close study of the play's audiences inclines me to the belief that most women begin by being slightly horrified and wind up at 11 no little amused.

For it is a brutal business, "The Women."

Miss Boothe (or Mrs. Luce) corralled many of the most loathesome types of her sex now infesting the salons and saloons of Manhattan and turned them loose upon a quivering stage. Most of them are composite pictures of the roto, El Morocco, "21" crowd—perfectly groomed, alert with hair-trigger nifties.

With glee they leap on poor Mary Haines, played by Margalo Gillmore, and bust her marriage wide open, really against her will and that of her ever-loving spouse, who is struggling through a spot of amour with a blonde played by Betty Lawford.

And listen to the quick-trigger bon mots that Miss Boothe puts into the mouths of her appalling characters—who, in turn fire them right back at a staggered audience:

"I'm just a frozen asset," remarks the play's lone young lady, as several old dowagers reach for the smelling salts.

One member of the cast, finding a moment to ask an unanswerable question, says, "Why does every man in a taxicab act like Harpo Marx," and another, apropos of practically nothing, remarks "Watercress! Why that's like eating your way across a lawn!"

These literary gems will give you a very pale notion of the spine-straighteners and brain-nudgers with which "The Women" is studded, like cloves in a holiday ham.

Thirty-five women enact this public vivisection of a once proud and somewhat secretive sex, and when they get through, their particular sort of woman hasn't one secret left from anyone with the price of a ticket. Not a man appears —not even a male toddler in knickerbockers. No male voice is heard offstage. It is a battle royal between members of the gentle sex, and it turns a quiet evening at the play into a shambles.

"A MIRROR SO WOMEN CAN SEE THEMSELVES AS THE REALLY ARE."

ACE gossip of the piece is the long, dark Ilka Chase, a specialist in such feline roles, who finally ends in Reno herself, and a good job, too. Miss Gillmore is practically the only one who suffers, save her own small daughter. The rest drink gin and tear up names and reputations.

It is as a show that "The Women" draws the customers, and what not.

We hear the most outrageous sort of conversation among a group of ladies ostensibly gathered for tea—such talk as, if indulged in at a well-conducted male saloon, would result in all the participants being soundly bounced onto the pave without.

We are faced with the heart-rending spectacle of a dear little girl being divvied up legally by a divorce no one really wants, and is merely the result of the prattle of these two-legged tabbies.

We see women being stretched and rolled and bounced and untangled on a wrestling mat in a world-famous reducing parlor, but never so out of breath that they can't sound off the nastiest cracks about their sisters in the other room.

Then we are vouchsafed a very tasty scene in the fitting rooms of one of Fifth avenue's greatest stores, in which young lady models parade around in sparse and costly lingerie—in fact, our daddies and granddaddies might recall similar scenes from their salad days, though not in fitting rooms.

All these colorful and revelatory scenes really lead up to the great "bath number," in which the luxurious Miss Lawford reclines always in full view of the patrons, in a modernistic tub filled with the lady and with the most opaque soapsuds ever designed by chemical science. Dozens of eager sitters in the cheap seats upstairs, are waiting for those soap bubbles to burst—but alas, they never do. Science once more outsmarts the human race.

I'VE heard middle-aged women come out of the playhouse muttering "Vile cats!" and "Shameless hussies!" and even more vituperative names. This is a play, for all its local color, and its quaint type of decadent females, which possesses enormous power to stir up the animals.

As a matter of fact, if I had the honor of being a woman (and no doubt it is still considered an honor in the better circles) I should seriously resent having this show tagged with such an embracing title.

It is unthinkable that this play represents the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. Church of Muncie, Ind., as much as it does those lush, handsome products of the beauticians' art who frivol away their time in the fancier spots on Fifty-second street, New York, and adjacent highways. No—"The Women" takes in far too much territory—and I feel that as soon as a few thousand ladies from around the country get a good look at Miss Boothe's clever, brittle extravaganza they may take steps.

There would be no objection to some such title as "Thirty-five Women Who Hang Around Some of New York's Chromium Saloons"—though perhaps the electrician couldn't get that in lights. Just the same, as the merest of men, I protest against labeling this fascinating catfight with the proud name of that sex without which we could hardly exist—if at all!

Problems of Social Usage And Business

Courtesy to a Fellow Worker's Mother—Announcement of Birth to Employer.

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post:

MY husband and I have become very fond of one of his young business associates who lives here alone. We have him often at the house and naturally have heard him speak about the members of his family. Today my husband brought the sad news that his mother is very ill and that he left hurriedly for her bedside. Understand we have never met her but if possible would nevertheless like to do something for her for his sake. What is your feeling about this and what do you suggest?

Emily Post

Answer: If you can arrange for it, sending her flowers would be the nicest thing possible.

Dear Mrs. Post: Do you think we should send announcements, when our baby arrives, to my husband's employer and the other men in his office? I mean, of course, addressed to their wives and sent to the house. Or perhaps since I do not know the wives you will think a verbal announcement at the office sufficient. The reason I ask is that since we are having forms printed you might think it more polite to include these people.

Answer: I don't think any one but you can answer this definitely because it is so much a matter of your personal impulse. If your husband would like to send the announcements to the other men in the office, then do so by all means, and also address the envelopes "Mr. and Mrs." if you would like to. On the other hand, since baby announcements are apt to be sent only to friends who might otherwise not hear of the event soon, and too, since these wives might feel under the circumstances that they ought to send a present to the baby, a verbal announcement at the office might be simplest. In other words, I don't think they could possibly be hurt at not having announcements sent them.

Dear Mrs. Post: As owner of the smarest hairdressing salon in town, I have many social registerites for customers. Sometimes these people send me invitations to weddings, and I never know whether I ought to send presents or not. I never go, of course.

Answer: Most people who are invited to a wedding breakfast or a reception send presents. But this is not obligatory unless the bride or groom or their families are really intimate friends, and then only if you are able to send something.

POULETTE PIE A LA CHASE
RASPBERRY MOUSSE
SPICED ANGEL CAKE

Poulette a la Chase

Make a puff paste as follows:

One cup butter.

Two cups flour.

Six to eight tablespoons cold water.

Pinch of salt.

Cut one-half of the butter into the flour, which has been sifted with a pinch of salt. Add the cold water and knead for five minutes. Roll out one-fourth inch thick. Cut the remaining butter into bits and scatter over dough. Fold, forming an envelope, and pat down to keep in the air. Roll and refold, and repeat the rolling four times. Put the dough in a cold earthen bowl and cover with a napkin wrung out of cold water, and chill in refrigerator for several hours. Roll out in a thin sheet and cut in rounds or three by five inch strips. Prick with fork. Grease a cookie sheet and bake to a delicate brown. Carefully lift one piece to each individual heat-resisting dish and over this spread chicken liver puree made by grinding the livers, using the finest blade and heating them in a skillet with a little butter. Let simmer for five minutes and add a little cream to form a paste. Season to taste. Over this place a thin slice from the breast of a roasted chicken and over this place slices of sauted mushrooms. Make a sauce of two tablespoons of butter and two of flour, gradually pouring on two cups of rich, well seasoned chicken broth, adding sherry to flavor. Remove from stove and stir in two slightly beaten egg kolks. Stir over hot water until thickened. Remove from fire and fold in one cup of whipped cream. Pour some of this over the chicken. Cover with another piece of the baked crust and over all pour the remaining sauce. Run all in the oven to thoroughly heat.

Aspic Layer Salad

Simmer four cups of tomato juice with one bay leaf, one onion, a few stalks of celery, 12 whole black peppers, two tablespoons of sugar and salt to taste, for 30 minutes. Strain. Three should be three cups of the juice. Soften two tablespoons of gelatin in one-fourth cup of cold water and dissolve this in the heated tomato juice. Pour one-half of this in a lightly oiled loaf pan and chill in refrigerator. Prepare one cup of chopped cucumbers, one-half cup of cut-up celery and a little chopped green pepper (optional). Heat one cup of water with two tablespoons of lemon juice and seasoned with a little onion juice, salt and pepper. In this dissolve one slightly rounded teaspoon of gelatin previously softened in a little cold water. Cool slightly and then stir in the cucumbers and celery. When beginning to jell pour over the layer of tomato aspic. Chill and when set pour on the remaining tomato mixture. Place again in refrigerator until firm. Unmold, by dipping up and down in hot water, on serving platter and surround with chicory and garnish with mayonnaise.

Raspberry Mousse

Juice of one-half lemon.

Twenty marshmallows.

One and one-half cups of cream.

Strain and heat the juice. Cut up the marshmallows and dissolve in the juice. Cool, add the lemon juice and the cream, which has been whipped stiff. Fill sherbet glasses with the mousse and chill.

Spiced Angel Cake

Three-fourths teaspoon of cinnamon.

One-half teaspoon of cloves.

One-fourth teaspoon each of allspice and nutmeg.

One and one-half cups of egg whites.

One teaspoon of vanilla.

On a large platter place the egg whites, cold water, salt, cream of tartar and vanilla. Beat until the whites will barely hold a peak, but not dry. To this add one cup of sugar, a little at a time, beating gently at first and folding at the last. Sift the one-half cup of sugar with the spices and flour three or four times. Add this gradually to the first mixture, folding in gently but thoroughly until the mixture is smooth. Pile lightly in an ungreased angel cakepan seeing that the batter is smooth on top. Place in a slow oven for the first 30 minutes, then increase heat slightly and bake from 45 minutes to an hour. Invert cakepan to cool before removing from pan.

Onion and Oyster Chowder

Cook two cups minced onions in butter until soft. Add one pint drained oysters, one teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon paprika, one teaspoon mixed garden herbs and three cups fish stock or liquor from the oysters. Cook until the oysters begin to curl, then add one cup sweet cream. Heat through and serve with minced parsley sprinkled over the top.

Plain Muffins

One well-beaten egg, two and one-half cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, two tablespoons butter, one-fourth cup sugar, one teaspoon salt. Beat until light. Bake in greased muffin pans in a quick oven.

A DOCTOR TALKS OF HEALTH

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

THE most important thing which the lay person can realize about backache is that it is a very complicated affair and may be due to any number of causes. This is also true of the general subject of arthritis and rheumatism.

Dr. Clendening

I have just been reading a review of all the work that has been done on the subject in the last year or two, and find out that there were 17 books and 535 papers written on it.

Just as in sciatica, backache may be due to changes in the bones, joint structure, or in the muscles, nerves or tendons. Only a good history and careful physical examination, and a well taken X-ray may differentiate these satisfactorily. Most of them, it is true, are due to changes in the muscles and nerves from infection, or posture, or both.

It is said that in cases of muscular pain they are aggravated by cold or damp, and partially relieved by exercise, while changes in the bone are aggravated by exercise. Pain which is worse in the morning on arising, but which disappears after brief activity, is due to inflammation around the joints, in the ligaments and muscles. Backaches appearing in the afternoon or evening are usually due to fatigue or poor posture.

RECENT studies have resulted in what is called the newer anatomy of the spine, in which attention is paid to the cartilaginous disks between the vertebrae rather than to the bones themselves. In general, we think of the spine as consisting of 24 vertebral bones and 23 inter-vertebral joints, but according to Rechtman there are in all 134 joints in the spine and any one of them may be the cause of disability. For this reason very careful interpretation of X-ray plates has to be made, and the spine must be pictured from several angles.

Most satisfactory results in treatment have been those which are quite simple, consisting in rest (on a firm bed with or without extension, strapping or braces). The use of heat, massage, and light treatment in the form of lamps and X-ray exposure are very helpful.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven phamhlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a 3-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The phamphlets are "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Mimi Has Lunch With Ruth Thornton, Who Tells Her Some Surprising Things About Cliff and His Activities.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN.

THE cafeteria was so familiar. Mimi knew every table, every dish on the long counter, every face behind the long counter. For three years she had eaten here with Ruth or other girls in the Childers' Electrical Products Company, for the place was around the corner from the Broadway Building. Soup, a salad, coffee, or salad, pie and coffee. She could have walked blindfolded and picked out for herself a good lunch.

Today is wasn't the same, though, not exactly the same. She was here at the regular lunch hour of the girls in the sales' department, but she wasn't one of them any more. She saw the difference plainly for the first time.

Saw how quick their steps were past the counter, the eagerness that showed in their eyes to be finished with their lunch and out for their shopping and their window shopping. She had been the same—only three weeks ago. Lunch was necessary, but the sooner it was accomplished the better—and the more time there was left to look in the shops to buy some needed little thing, to manage a manicure, or a shampoo.

She felt as she ate that she was standing still, that the other girls around her were passing her by at full speed. She looked at Ruth beside her, and she had the same feeling about her, although Ruth was eating quite slowly.

"If you have any shopping to do —" Mimi suggested, "I'm finished, or I can be finished in a minute."

"I've nothing to do. I called you up to come down and have lunch with me because I wanted to talk to you. We can talk here as well as any place else. Fielding is out anyway, so I don't have to be back so early."

Mimi waved to Hanna Burke who was coming in, then to Martha Otis behind her. It was good seeing everybody again. She hadn't been near the neighborhood of the office since she had left. The three weeks semed so much longer. Today they seemed like three years.

She found herself looking around at the girls to see if they had changed, and wondering, too, if they found her changed.

"It must be Martha's new hat," Mimi turned back to Ruth. "First becoming hat I've even seen on her. She looks quite nice. And there's a little color in her face—she's not so sallow. It is the hat, isn't it?"

"She does look better, doesn't she?" Ruth said slowly, looking toward the counter where Martha and Hannah were choosing their lunch. Her eyes followed them down the counter to the cash register, and then to the table across the room where they carried their trays. Mimi found herself watching them, too, especially Martha.

The off-the-face hat of navy blue Martha was wearing made a halo around her face, softened the dark horn-rimmed glasses over her eyes, and brought out the smoothness of her forehead.

> SYNOPSIS:
> MIMI PARRISH and her husband, DOUG, both worked. They loved life and each other and their joint income provided those luxuries which spelled happiness to them. Even CANDY, their Negro maid, was a luxury. There were Mimi's sister-in-law, ELLA GRAY, and her husband, CLIFF, who lived frugally to the point of parsimony. But Ella and Cliff were parents of three children. Then one day Mimi learned she, too, was to experience motherhood.
> MISS FIELDING, Mimi's prim employer, who disapproves of mothers working, learns of Mimi's condition and promptly discharges her. Worried, Mimi releases Candy. On her first lonesome day at home, Cliff phones. The brown house across from him and Ella, he says, is vacant. He urges Mimi to rent the bungalow. Mimi, with Ella, sees the house, but abhors the thought of moving into it. Her discouragement mounts when, returning home, an automobile collector greets her demanding payment on their coupe. Doug borrows $75 to meet the payment. Her worries now doubled, Mimi finally suggests that they give up the $65-a-month apartment for the $30 house. Doug indignantly refuses. He attempts to cheer Mimi by reminding her that next Friday is her twenty-third birthday. Against her will, he insists on having a party then.

"I wanted to talk to you about her. That's why I called you to come down."

"Talk to me about Martha!"

"Yes—but now that you're here, I don't know just how to start."

"Martha!" And Mimi laughed, but Ruth's face remained quite serious. Her eyes were troubled.

"It's about Cliff—and Martha. I thought you should know."

"Cliff and who?"

"Cliff and Martha."

"YOU'RE quite out of your head, Ruth Nothing to it at all. In the first place, Cliff wouldn't look at another woman but Ella, and in the second place, if he wanted to look at another woman, I doubt whether he'd look at Martha Otis."

"I saw him out with her Saturday night. Bob and I went out to dinner with Bob's brother, who was in town for the night, and we saw them, Cliff and Martha. They didn't see us, thank goodness. They were there when we got to the place—Bob's brother wanted to eat at Musso's—and we stayed a couple of hours just talking, and they were still at the same table when we went out."

"Cliff was working Saturday night. Ella told me so. He was working Sunday, too."

But after she had spoken, Mimi knew she was only quoting Ella. For all she knew, Cliff might have been out with Martha. Ruth had said she had seen them together. Ruth knew both Martha and Cliff and Ella.

But Cliff—it was impossible. He was the last person in the world who would do such a thing. And Martha.

Mimi looked again at the table across the room, at the small figure in the too large navy blue suit, and the new blue hat. Martha who seemed such a part of the Childers' Electrical Products Co. that she was almost a fixture. She had been there when Mimi had first come, she would be there, Mimi had always thought, as long as the company existed.

She was that kind of a girl. Quiet, self-effacing, useful, a hard worker, not brilliant, and not likely to be advanced because of her timidity. A lonely girl with a look of loneliness about her, in her eyes, in her face, her lips trembling with it.

She seldom smiled and when she did, her smile was a shy one. The girls in the office were friendly enough—Mimi and Ruth had especially tried to be friendly—but they always said that something in Martha turned them away. Whether it was Martha herself or her loneliness making a shell about her, they didn't know.

Martha came and went in the office, did her work. Outside the office she was seldom seen, and what she did with her life outside the office no one knew.

Behind her dark rimmed glasses which were too large for her small face, her gray blue eyes were serious, but they were not unattractive. Ruth said her eyes were her best features. Next she said the smooth dark shining braids around her head were her second best feature. But on the whole, Martha was plain, and small, with tiny hands and tiny feet and usually the wrong kind of clothes.

HOW old she was, no one seemed to know, but Ruth and Mimi had guessed about 26, for she had been at the Childers Company seven years, and she had come there straight from business college.

Cliff going out with Martha!

"There must be a mistake, somewhere," Mimi murmured more to herself than to Ruth.

"I don't think so. It was Cliff and Martha I saw Saturday night. And Cliff was so absorbed in her that he didn't see me. He didn't even look up as I passed. Miller in the purchasing department told me this morning he had seen them Sunday at the lake. That's Saturday and Sunday. I didn't want to tell you at first,. Mimi, and then I thought I should. Cliff's your brother and I know Ella, and I thought —well, I thought you'd know what to do. I wouldn't go to Ella, though —"

"Ella's so much prettier than Martha, Ruth. She used to be beautiful when she was younger—I don't understand it." She couldn't keep her eyes away from Martha, and as she looked at her she was trying to see her as Cliff must be seeing her. But her efforts weren't a success. She couldn't put herself in her brother's place. Martha was more attractive than she ever had been before in the new hat, and with the new glow in her face, but still she remained much the same Martha to Mimi.

Quiet frightened Martha, her loneliness making a barrier around her, a wall, her shyness growing in her eyes as they looked at you, a tightness all around her.

Martha and Cliff.

If it had been Hannah with her hair that was like spun gold, and her eyes that were as blue as Ella's had once been, and her willowy lovely figure, Mimi wouldn't have been so surprised. But Martha. Little wren Martha.

"You don't mind my telling you?"

"No, I'm glad. There must be something I can do." Just what it was then Mimi didn't know. And as they left the cafeteria, she was thinking how strange it was that she was playing older sister to Cliff after all these years. That it was she who would be advising him, she who was 10 years younger than he was, and who had been a little girl when he married Ella.

But when Ruth left her and she walked on alone, the strangeness passed, and the situation seemed a normal one. She felt almost like Cliff's mother instead of his sister. There was a warm fierce love in her for Cliff, and for the first time in several years she thought of Gordon and Dennis and little Alice Ann as his children, not Ella's.

As for Ella, she was remembering her words as they stood on the porch of the Gray home last Sunday, "Usually all I do Sundays is to pick up hammers and nails and put them away—he potters around so much and always forgets to clean up his mess."

Kindness is A Sovereign Duty of Life

By The Rev. J. F. Newton

"IN the meantime, let us be kind to one another," Dr. Johnson wrote in a letter to his friend Taylor on the last Easter Monday of his life. And what he taught he had practiced faithfully.

Boswell tells how the old man would slip pennies into the shut hands of little children whom he found sleeping at night in doorways on the Strand; that when they woke they might be happy.

"Be kind—be very kind," said a famous man of letters as he lay dying; and he added: "What oppresses me is that I have not taken time enough just to do little acts of kindness to people."

Kindness is the final joy of life, and the central, supreme simplicity of religion, as Jesus taught us A cup of cold water given to a thirsty fellow man, He said, means more than long prayers.

"Put on, as the elect of God, compassion, kindness," said St. Paul. There are some happy souls who seem to wear the white robe of kindness as their native dress; for others it is an effort to put it on.

No matter; it is the one sovereign duty and delight of life, the source of solace and the secret of happiness. Not many of us can be clever, but all of us can be kind, very kind, to everybody.

What else is there that we can do in the crazy, cruel world? Little indeed, so little that it looks like giving pills to cure earthquakes. Yet, little though it be, it is the one needed thing.

In the last resort, the world is what we are in our hearts. Each of us can add a mite, if no more, to the sum total of goodwill, and help to kill the microbe of hate which makes the earth feverish.

At times kindness seems unavailing; it does not do what it might, either because it is misdirected, or not directed at all. A vague feeling of kindness is not enough, it must bloom in words and deeds.

Jesus talked of little else but the value of kindness of God, and the duty and joy of being kind to our fellows, most of all to those whom we dislike, or who dislike us—just a crusade of kindness!

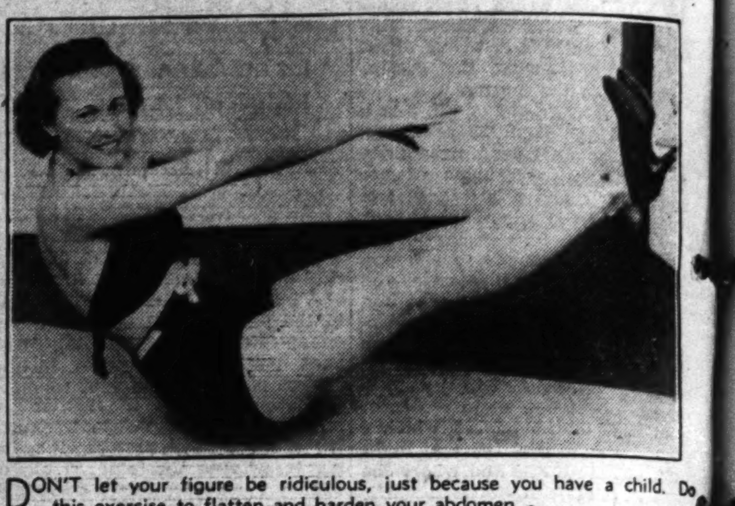
Breaded Tongue

Cut cooked tongue in slices one-eighth inch thick and dip in beaten egg and breadcrumbs. Repeat. Fry in deep fat until nicely browned. Drain and serve garnished with dabs of tart jelly and sprigs of parsley.

WHY GROW OLD?

By Josephine Lowman



DON'T let your figure be ridiculous, just because you have a child. Do this exercise to flatten and harden your abdomen.

Lie on your back with your arms at your sides. Raise your trunk and your legs at the same time. Lower them. Raise them an equal distance from the floor. This exercise looks like a knife closing up. Don't try to bring the legs and trunk too far off the floor at first.

What is your figure moulding problem? If you want your questions answered directly, send a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope. All correspondence will be strictly confidential. Address your letters to Josephine Lowman, care of St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Don't Insist Upon It

Just because you were a skating fiend when a youngster or very strenuous in all sports, it does not mean that your child will enjoy those same things. You may have an artistic child to whom painting and the arts appeal more than the sports. Don't spoil this creative ability by insisting that the child enjoy the same things you did because he or she will never be a success at these sports if done entirely against their liking or nature. Let the child find his own way of real enjoyment and entertainment.

The water in flower vases should be changed daily.

Soused Mackerel

Clean mackerel and cook for 15 minutes in water slightly flavored with vinegar. Drain and partly cool. Place in a crock and pour over it a weak solution of tarragon vinegar, two whole cloves, a bay leaf, salt, peppercorns, a slice raw onion and a sprig of thyme. Let stand for 24 hours, then drain and serve cold.

Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fourth night if needed

How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminants, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and toxines. Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package. (Adv.)

What's all this talk about the STEVENS

TALK, TALK, TALK—Groups here, groups there—in club lounges, drawing rooms, parlor cars, at the bar on the new streamliners. Excuse it please, we listened in.

The buzz was all about the new joy of living that has invaded The Stevens; new services stepping up the comfort for travel-wearies; the after-dark entertainment adventures beckoning those who like a flare to their living.

It's grand to know that people like the things you do to make life more pleasant for them —to hear so many of our friends marveling that so much living can be had for so little paying. This kind of gossip is a good thing.

ARE WE ALL SQUARE NOW, BLUDGEON?
I GUESS SO, BUT IF YOU GUYS GET ME ANOTHER DATE LIKE THE LAST ONE, I'LL WRECK YOUR BUREAU!
WELL, WHAT ARE YOU STARING AT, BUD SHEKELS?
BOY, YOU ARE REALLY AND TRULY UGLY, FELLA!
SAY, IF I HAD A FACE LIKE YOURS, I WOULDN'T WEAR ANYTHING BUT LACE COLLARS AND CUFFS!
PIPE DOWN, BUD—BLUDGEON WILL PROBABLY HAVE A DATE WITH THAT MOVIE STAR WHO'LL BE HERE TOMORROW
I'LL BET I COULD GET ONE QUICKER'N HE COULD, AT THAT!
OKAY, HORROR-FACE—IT'S A BET!

Laundered Curtains

When putting freshly laundered curtains away in a drawer, fold them so that the tops and bottoms are together. Then when they are hung the creases will not work out. If they are folded lengthwise the creases will stay in, as there is no weight to bring them out.
